OUR 65TH YEAR, NO. 50 P.O. Box G-1, Carmel, CA 93921 (408) 624-0162 DECEMBER 13, 1979

TURBULENT SEAS that wash the sands along the Big Sur coast are captured in this photograph by Dr. Martin Chester of Carmel Valley. With the fast approach of winter storms, angry waves become a common yet beautiful sight at the Carmel beaches.

How to hide Carmel

Dear Editor:

If you don't know where you're going, any road will take you there.

If you do know where you're going, no road will take you there.

This was my feeling while trying to drive around Massachusetts recently.

In the process of constantly getting lost and turning up an hour late for any appointments I had made, an idea occurred to me which, if put into practice, might succeed in keeping people away from Carmel. Of course this is disregarding those who really want more people to come here!

First, starting some miles away, say Salinas and Watsonville or even farther, remove all signs mentioning Carmel and pointing the way to the town.

If some persistent people succeed in getting closer, take away the signs pointing into town from Highway 1.

If there are still hardy souls who find their way down into town, signs on buildings or businesses which indicate they are in Carmel can be removed, also those of the main streets—Ocean, Dolores, Santa Lucia, Rio Road, etc. so only side street signs are left. Finally, the post office sign could be changed to "Salinas" as that is where our mail goes anyway. Anyone who still thinks he is in Carmel is entitled to stay here!

On a rainy Sunday afternoon I drove out of Boston, headed for East Weymouth where I was born—not far, actually, but it took me an hour longer to find it than I had figured it should.

Unfortunately, since the sun was not out, I could not tell if I was going toward East Weymouth, North Weymouth, South Weymouth or Weymouth Landing and found myself in all of them—and in Weymouth four times; also in Hingham and Quincy where I had no intention of going at all.

I passed a lot of lovely colonial homes, some of them several times, and had forgotten how many beautiful trees there are back there.

Even when I arrived in Weymouth for the third time I didn't know that was where I was, but suddenly I saw a post office and figured I would at last find out. But no, the post office sign read, "Boston!"

At one time I did see a sign to East Weymouth and thought my travels were near an end, but it left me at a dead end without a clue as to whether I should go left or right. I think I tried both but still didn't find it.

It is such a small town it would be easy to go right through it and miss it entirely.

Because it was Sunday and raining there were few people out and few stores or gas stations open, but finally I gave up and asked directions from a lady who had braved the rain.

Of course East Weymouth was close by and I finally arrived.

Wouldn't it be great if we could keep Carmel this well hidden?!

For a few bucks...

Dear Editor:

The recent ruling not to allow the cutting of redwood timber in the higher elevations of Carmel Valley was justified from the problems created by logging trucks not only as they entered onto Carmel Valley road, but the narrow twisting roads leading down to the Valley road.

If one has experienced, as I have, the nerve-racking experience of meeting loaded logging trucks barreling toward you on a narrow crooked road, one does not dispute the right-of-way, you head for the ditch and let them roll by. In spite of this, one does have to have a grudging admiration for these "logging jockeys" as they maneuver the big rigs and squirt water on brake drums to cool them down.

Irrespective of the trucking problem, I do believe what few spots we have in this area of the Coastal Redwoods (sequoia sempervirens) should be off-limits to indiscriminate logging. Fifteen or so years ago loggers laid waste to a fine redwood grove 12 or so miles inland up Palo Colorado canyon. What was once a majestic grove was left a colossal mess.

Back in 1923 I had occasion to work in one of the redwood logging camps a few miles south of Eureka. In those days they logged on the premise that the redwood timberlands were inexhaustible. The wastage was appalling to my conservative New England upbringing. The increased mechanization in logging rapidly ate up these vast areas of the redwoods and it was only through the actions of concerned organizations that the slaughter was stopped before these ancient trees were gobbled up.

The occasional stands of remaining Coastal Redwoods we have in this area do not grow to the size of sequoia gigantea found largely in the coastal north of this state. In this area sempervirens are now seen in the bottoms of canyons where they have a better access to water. One can still see the evidence of logging 50 to 75 years ago.

Fortunately, the viability of the redwood is shown by the regeneration of second growth trees springing from the old stumps. If one were to wait several hundred years, this second growth timber might attain the size of the mother tree. This is questionable, however, as there are four or five second growth trees existing on one root system and competitive factors would come into play.

What makes these redwoods such prized timber and what accounts for their longevity? The thick bark acts as insulation for the vital cambium layer against the ravages of fire. One often observes an older tree gutted inside by fire, but the tree still growing strongly because the cambium layer just under the bark has not been hurt. There is also an ingredient in the wood that is poisonous to insects and repels rot. No wonder the wood is highly prized in construction.

Should the cutting of what few Coastal Redwoods we have in the area be allowed? Under proper supervision of the Forest Service, selective cutting of second growth timber might be advisable — advisable in the sense that of the several second growth trees arising from the same stump one or two of the bigger trees could be removed, thus allowing the remaining to mature to a more marketable size and also inducing a new series of sprouts to come along. In other words, properly handled, we could then create a renewable source.

As for the occasional virgin timber one finds in these groves, they should be considered a NO-NO so that future generations can also appreciate the majesty of these timeless trees in their native habitat. One does not have to travel too far up Robinson Canyon or Palo Colorado to see the above in action.

Under today's logging techniques and chainsaws, it takes only half an hour to topple something that has been created and living for hundreds of years for the sake of a few lousy bucks.

We're ignored

Dear Editor:

At last! There will be hearings to determine whether the California Coastal Commission should continue to receive heavy funding from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA). Two hearings: one in Los Angeles and one in San Francisco.

Great! San Francisco isn't even included in the coastal plan! But what about Monterey, Carmel, Big Sur? Why not a hearing in Monterey County? This most sensitive area needs to give its input, and now.

The hearings have been called for by a group of environmentally concerned private property owners, many of whom have been the victims of attempted landgrabs by prescriptive rights, or "blackmail" by which the commission grants permits in exchange for "donations" of substantial acreage of private land. This group is called the California Coastal Council, and it hopes to create a groundswell that will either clean up the commission or abolish it. There are now 9,000 members and growing.

The hearings will be monitored by U.S. Senators Cranston, Hayakawa and others. Now the problem: How to get a hearing set in Monterey? This evaluation of the Coastal Commission calls for "public participation," yet efforts seem to be made to conduct the hearings as far away from Monterey as possible.

What to do? Write letters and send telegrams to your Sacramento legislators (Mello, Hallett, Nimmo, Panetta) and demand, loudly and strongly that they demand a hearing in Monterey.

More foolishness from the council

By AL EISNER

ALLOWING CARMEL RESIDENTS to park for two hours in a one-hour parking zone downtown or for 40 minutes in a 20-minute green zone would seem to be a simple solution to the problem of providing badly needed parking for residents. The City Council took the first step toward implementing a preferential parking plan for city residents Monday night (see story elsewhere in this issue).

The folks who devised the seemingly simple solution, however, overlooked one key fact: allowing locals to park twice as long doesn't create one additional parking space. Matter of fact, while Carmel residents occupy the available one-hour spaces for two hours, it removes that parking space from possible use by anybody else.

It will also compound the problem caused by real estate salesmen and other people employed downtown who park in front of their places of business. If they happen to be residents of the city, it means they will only have to move their cars half as often while they squat on otherwise available spaces.

In characteristic fashion, a majority of the council brushed aside concerns that implementation of the permit parking plan and creating additional 20-minute and one-hour spaces would only create confusion when the city tries to determine the effectiveness of the two programs. In fact, one might cancel out the benefits created by the other part of the plan, and we'd never really know whether either part of the program made any sense.

I believe that one hour is enough time for most local people to take care of their business when they come downtown. The preferential program is another bit of foolishness by the council that is consistent with its attitude during the past several years: "what is good only for the residents is somehow good for the city—automatically."

The plain fact is that this City Council is sitting firmly on its hands and won't do a darn thing about creating more parking spaces. Councilman Les Gross, in an indiscreet statement to the Tiburon City Council that was reprinted in the Pine Cone several weeks ago, admitted—nay, boasted—that the city was deliberately doing nothing.

Starting a free mini-bus system that could be used by tourists and locals alike would be a big step forward. The council is not pushing hard for that program either.

You see, dear reader, when Councilman Mike Brown comes up for re-election—or when he campaigns for mayor, perhaps—he can point with pride to a highly visible accomplishment that provided a highly visible benefit to local residents. I don't think it's a coincidence that the beneficiaries of the preferential parking plan would be precisely those people who are the only ones allowed to vote in municipal elections. If the plan doesn't work, it will be abandoned, but not until a lot of political capital has been made.

The council did show good sense, however, by dropping the planning commission proposal to create another 100-or-so additional two-hour spaces in areas adjacent to the residential district where all-day parking is now allowed. This would have simply pushed all-day parkers further into the residential district. The puzzling fact is that this hare-brained idea got as far as it did.

SUPERVISOR SAM FARR ran into a stone wall when he tried to push through major revisions to the Carmel Valley Master Plan Tuesday. Fortunately, a majority of the board balked at approving sweeping changes in the much-discussed plan that they didn't have a chance to study.

Several highly controversial alterations were suggested by Farr and his fellow committeeman Supervisor Michal Moore. Their report was prepared quickly (hastily?) and dropped in the laps of the other members of the board shortly before the scheduled meeting.

Supervisor Petrovic echoed the sentiments of the rest of the board when he asked, "What's the hurry?"

When one considers that the future of Carmel Valley will be determined by the new Master Plan, it is hard to justify Farr's reasoning. Since the public will not be allowed to speak any further, it should be able to see, read and examine the changes recommended by Farr and Moore, and at least write to the board expressing their views. To do anything less would short-circuit the process.

After more than 2½ years of agonizing work, rushing ahead now without benefit of public scrutiny would be unfair and foolhardy.

New dispute engulfs proposed CV Master Plan

By STEVE HELLMAN

FINAL COMPROMISES that were presented Tuesday, Dec. 11, to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors to speed adoption of the revised Carmel Valley Master Plan have backfired, creating a new wave of dispute.

The five-member board was thrown into open disagreement over the subcommittee report unveiled by Chairman Sam Farr and Supervisor Michal Moore. Supervisors decided to postpone adoption of the long-awaited Master Plan until at least Jan. 15.

The unexpected delay was forced by supervisors Barbara Shipnuck, Dusan Petrovic and Kenneth Blohm. They were unhappy with the major changes proposed by the subcommittee concerning:

- A move to limit approval of 100 of the 500 units planned for Carmel Valley Ranch, the largest project in the Valley's history.
- A compromise on the Odello farmland at the mouth of the Valley that would allow less development than proposed, but more than opponents want.
- Elimination of the provision that would have required all new developments to meet standard subdivision requirements, regardless of size.
- The slight lifting of development restrictions on all agricultural lands.
- A remodeling of the unique quota and allocation system with a proposed increase in the overall quota of new units for the Valley in the next 20 years from 2,500 to 2,719.
- A weakening of the incentives for developers to construct low- and moderate-income housing.

BLOHM LABELED THE subcommittee report "confusing" and attacked its provisions for the Carmel Valley Ranch and Odello property. "I thought we settled it (the dispute over Carmel Valley Ranch)," Blohm said. "They're entitled to 500 units." He also called for the quota and allocation system to be "left out of the plan entirely."

Petrovic opposed the changes for the Odello property that would leave it in the Area of Development Concentration, but eliminate visitor accommodations as suitable for the 134-acre agricultural parcel.

"There is no rush to approve the plan," Petrovic said. He said that there should be "public scrutiny" first of the subcommittee report.

And Shipnuck, decrying the disunity on the board, said that there "had to be a better way" to approve the Master Plan. She called for the one-month postponement to allow time for "interests to lobby the individual board members" on the subcommittee's major proposals.

AT THE CLOSE OF public hearings on Nov. 27, Farr said that he wanted the Master Plan approved before Christmas. He appointed himself and Moore to review the voluminous public comment that had followed the controversial revisions approved by the planning commission in November.

Farr and Moore spent less than a week preparing the subcommittee report. Farr said on Tuesday that it represented thorough compromises on the most talked-about provisions.

In response to the lashing from his colleagues, Farr said, "I've become frustrated working on the board. I'm concerned with the idea that if we just delay it, then things will get better."

"Everything has been addressed in the report," he said.

MOORE STATED FLATLY in the face of the continuing dispute over the Master Plan, "I'm ready to bite the bullet and vote for this thing."

"It's a reasonable approach to land use planning," he said. He took to task the critics of Carmel Valley Ranch, saying he would challenge anyone in the room to present a better project.

"I oppose the diatribes against large projects," he said. "The preservation of open space is accomplished best through large subdivisions where it can be donated up front."

Moore's comments, however, lent some credence to the charge that the subcommittee report is confusing. He called for large subdivisions, but the report asks for the elimination of the provision that would allow only standard subdivisions—paving the way for continuation of the minor subdivision process.

And in respect to the Odello property, Moore said that it should be allowed to have visitor accommodations, but the subcommittee report said that it should not.

FOLLOWING THE MEETING—Tuesday, Farr defended the subcommittee report. He told the Pine Cone, "We pulled back from the decisions of the planning commission where it gave too much to large developments. And we went further in allowing some development on agricultural land and in increasing the quota."

In a sharp break from the 2½ years of work by the 13-member Master Plan Study Committee, Farr and Moore suggested that the overall quota of 2,500 new units be increased. They want the quota, which puts a lid on new units to be built in Carmel Valley in the next 20 years, to be raised to 2,719.

The study committee had decided on the 2,500-unit lid by allowing for 540 lots of record; 500 units for Carmel Valley Ranch, and 1,430 new units with no more than 73 lots developed per year.

The subcommittee's larger figure is obtained by adding the 219 lots that have been created through the standard subdivision process since 1977. It would also allow for 85 new units to be developed annually.

WRESTLING WITH THE largest target of public debate, the subcommittee suggested that the 100 units planned for Carmel Valley Ranch on a 200-acre land reserve be "removed from the (project's) Specific Plan."

"Subdivision of the land reserve area shall be done in conformity with the quota and allocation system of this Master Plan," the subcommittee provision states.

Attorney Myron Etienne, representing the Carmel Valley Ranch, told this reporter after the meeting, "I am not very happy with it (the change in the 100 units)."

Referring to the estimated $4 million that he said the developer has spent on road improvements and other costs tied to the eventual construction of 500 condominium units, Etienne said, "We've already been to the altar with our sacrificial lamb. We're entitled to 500 units."

But the subcommittee provided partial relief to the developer, Landmark Lands Company of Oklahoma, by allowing that the contributions to road improvements and open space could be counted when the 100 units compete for approval. It also allowed the remaining 400 units to be exempted from the competition.

THE SUBCOMMITTEE'S recommendation, Farr said, answered the charges of opponents who contended that it was unfair to automatically include all 500 units in the quota and allocation system. Opponents had repeatedly pointed out that the project would represent one out of every five new units that could be built in the Valley in the next 20 years.

It also answered some deep-seated concerns of the Master Plan Study Committee members who complained that they had not been allowed to review the Carmel Valley Ranch Specific Plan.

The supervisors approved the Specific Plan in 1976, just weeks before the study committee began its work. The committee was asked not to tamper with the Specific Plan, and to consider the 500 units planned for the project as part of the Master Plan.

The study committee voted in October to recommend that the supervisors force the developer to compete for approval of the 100 units in the land reserve under the system in the Master Plan.

PRAISING THE proposal from Farr and Moore for the 100 units, one study committee member told the Pine Cone on Tuesday, "It's finally a crack in the attitude toward Carmel Valley Ranch."

The study committee member, who asked not to be named, said that Farr and Moore had "made some movement" away from the planning commission provisions that had significantly altered the Master Plan revision in favor of large development.

"But the Odello thing is not solved at all," the study committee member said. "Our committee didn't want it (Odello property) to be any part of the Area of Development Concentration."

The subcommittee calls for the 134-acre Odello east property to be put back under the aegis of the county plan despite the fact it is governed by the Coastal Act because it lies within the coastal zone.

Both Petrovic and Blohm supported the planning commission recommendation that the Odello property be excluded from major provisions of the Master Plan, including the quota and allocation system. The planning commission, in a move that drew sharp criticism from the city of Carmel, whose zone of influence includes the Odello land, decided to also place the Odello property in the Area of Development Concentration instead of the original designation as agricultural open space.

BRUNO ODELLO AND his family welcomed the planning commission decision because they want to construct a 200-unit hotel, 97 condominiums and a farmers market on 20 of their 134 acres. The land is currently used to grow artichokes, but the Odellos say they cannot pay rising taxes on the land without developing a portion of it.

Farr said that he and Moore sought a compromise that would include the Odello property in the Area of Development Concentration, but restrict it to residential zoning that will not allow visitor accommodations.

They also added language that provides for clustered residential development on one-third of the Odello property, and on portions of all other agricultural lands that are not in cultivation.

"I DON'T KNOW WHY they couldn't leave us be," Bruna Odello said after the meeting. Odello said that she and her brother (Bruno) were willing to be included in the allocation formula as a trade-off for allowing their project.

"But now they're putting us in a box by not allowing visitor accommodations," she said. Noting the overlapping jurisdictions of the Master Plan and Coastal Act on their property, she said, "How many more blankets are they going to put on us?"

COUNTERING ANOTHER provision approved by the planning commission, Farr and Moore want the low- and moderate-income housing units built in the Valley to be included in the quota.

Shipnuck, the board's most outspoken proponent of low-cost housing, objected to the subcommittee proposal. She said that the units should not be counted in the quota unless low- and moderate-income units were counted throughout the county. She said that Carmel Valley should not be excluded from the objective of providing 15 percent low- and moderate-income housing in the county.

Local Sierra Club questions PG & E oil spill plan

Mrs. Mary Henderson, Chairman
Central Coast Regional Commission
701 Ocean Ave., Room 310
Santa Cruz, CA 95060

Dear Mrs. Henderson,

A SIERRA CLUB task force, representing both Ventana Chapter and the Northern California Regional Conservation Committee, has reviewed the Oil Spill Contingency Plan and Operating Manual which were released last July. The plan and manual are both required as parts of the conditions set by the regional and state coastal commissions for the permit for PG&E to construct and operate a 90,000-DWT tanker terminal at Moss Landing.

Here are some comments and questions about the two documents. We have tried not to duplicate questions already raised about the plans by other individuals and organizations. It is likely that we will have additional comments and questions to introduce orally at the forthcoming workshops which begin Thursday, Dec. 13, at the Monterey Convention Center.

We find both documents to be inadequate and to some extent confusing. The reader gets the impression that the spill plan was drafted for any near-shore ocean body, since there seems to be no recognition of the facts that 1) Monterey Bay is "a 25-mile-wide inlet of Pacific Ocean," as PG&E described it in 1974, that 2) because Monterey Bay is influenced by many currents and is limited by landforms both north and south, water movements within the Bay are complicated and unpredictable, and that 3) the shores of Monterey Bay contain a high concentration of unusually fragile and vulnerable areas.

We find little or no provision in either plan for a spill during stormy weather. It is as if the planners expected the waters of the Bay to remain calm or with waves no higher than three feet throughout the year, while in fact they are subject to rapid and violent changes, as anyone who has sailed between Pescadero Point and Point Pinos can attest.

We understand that a separate plan is being drafted to deal specifically with bird and mammal rescue and clean-up. Presumably this will become part of the Oil Spill Contingency Plan. We look forward to the opportunity to read and comment on this part of the plan.

Sierra Club Proposals

Several proposals for additional conditions were made on behalf of Sierra Club at the appeals hearing of the state Coastal Commission last June. During the course of the hearing and in the final motion, the commission agreed to refer all these proposals to the Regional Commission for possible inclusion in the spill plan and/or Operating Manual. The proposed conditions were:

Split vote keeps proposal alive

Council moves ahead with preferential parking plan

A PREFERENTIAL PARKING program for Carmel residents that also alters time-limited parking zones in the commercial district won approval from the City Council on a split vote Monday night.

The council voted 3-2 to authorize the staff to draft an ordinance to implement a resident permit sticker system that would allow the holder to park twice as long in one hour and 20-minute zones.

Also on a 3-2 vote, the council revised the parking zone expansion phase of the program recommended by the Planning Commission, deleting the creation of 135 new time-limit parking spaces. This would have been achieved by converting no-time limit zones, mostly in the center island of Junipero north of Ocean, to two-hour zones.

Both the city staff and majority of council members opposed the conversion plan because the elimination of the no-time limit zones would force all-day parkers deeper into the residential area.

THE PROGRAM, RECOMMENDED by the Carmel Planning Commission, provides for a parking permit sticker that would be issued to residents who are both registered voters and registered car owners or lessees. The permit would allow them to park for two hours in one-hour zones.

The program also calls for the designation of parking areas on each full block between Ocean and Sixth, from the west side of Junipero through the west side of Lincoln, as 20-minute "green zones" spaces. This would provide 44 short-time parking spaces convenient to most businesses north and south of Ocean.

This would add 35 "green zone" spaces throughout the downtown district, for a total of 108. It would also add 135 one-hour zones for a total of 504.

THE COMMISSION URGED the council to implement the Resident Permit Parking Program immediately and to conduct it for 12 months on a trial basis.

City Administrator Doug Peterson estimated that it would take about three months to start the program once it is approved by the council. This is the estimated time, he said, needed to obtain the parking signs and to establish the sticker process.

Councilman Howard Brunn argued that the council ought to consider the program in two stages: the parking plan and the permit proposal. "It is sort of like good news and bad news," he noted. Later in the meeting he admitted his tactic as a "defensive maneuver to get this done (parking plan) because the other (permit) is so offensive."

COUNCILMAN MIKE BROWN said that he first proposed resident permit parking in September of 1977 and since then "the parking problems haven't been alleviated."

"I don't think it is unreasonable to allow us this privilege, and I doubt visitors would object to this," Brown said.

Brunn said that there is no great rush to enact the program since the city has been studying preferential parking for residents off-and-on since 1950.

Although he said that he "supports more green zones" and is opposed to "expanding two-hour zones into the residential area," Brunn moved that the council accept the commission's recommendation and enact the entire parking zone plan. Council member Helen Arnold seconded the motion.

They both joined Brown later to vote against the motion after Peterson and Police Chief William Ellis warned the council that the "serious part of the plan" is the conversion of no-time zones into two-hour ones. They said this will force all-day parkers further into the residential district in search of parking.

Peterson also reported that additional parking in these areas would be detrimental to tree roots and would compact the soil. He said that it would also make it even more difficult for residents to park in front of their homes.

Ellis also noted that this would result in concentrated parking on both sides of the narrow residential streets and make it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for emergency vehicles to use the streets.

Mayor Gunnar Norberg agreed. He said that the expansion program would leave 135 drivers in search of all-day parking "out in the residential area."

Ellis also suggested that residents be surveyed "to get their feeling about having a two-hour parking zone in front of their home."

"Why?" smiled Norberg. "We know the answer would be, 'No.'"

IN SUPPORT OF THE green zones expansion, Ellis revealed that a person can park longer than 20 minutes. "Usually almost an hour," he said explaining that it takes a metermaid about an hour to complete her rounds.

"I always felt green zones were our residents' parking zones," interjected Brunn. "We have savvy residents—and they're all savvy—they understand green zone parking."

Norberg said that residents tell him, however, that one hour isn't enough time to shop.

BROWN WARNED THE council that because "we haven't been able to alleviate the problem of parking in Carmel ... service businesses are leaving."

Brunn retorted that "resident-oriented businesses are not

City's only building inspector resigns

RON WARREN, THE city's only building inspector, has resigned, effective Jan. 15.

The action threw the building department back into the center of controversy once again as City Hall quickly shrouded the reason for the resignation.

"No comment," City Administrator Doug Peterson said last Friday when asked the reason for Warren's resignation. He said that he considers it a personnel matter and "I don't want to discuss it."

Warren also refused to state his reason for leaving, although it has not been a secret that he has not been happy carrying the workload for two men the past year.

IT WAS ALMOST A year ago to the day that Chief Building Inspector Fred Cunningham quit under fire in December 1978.

Warren was promoted by then City Administrator Jack Collins to Cunningham's post in early January. But when the City Council complained that the promotion would interfere with the reorganization plans for the building department and planning department, Warren asked Collins to withdraw the promotion.

Since then Warren has had to perform the duties of two men in the building department and a backlog of work has steadily piled up.

The city advertised this summer for a building inspector, but so far no one has been hired.

WARREN TOLD THE Pine Cone last Friday, "I don't want to leave the city, but I don't have any options left."

He said that his resignation has nothing to do with "what happened a year ago. This concerns me, my own individual feelings."

Warren also denied there was any political pressure or harassment involved in his decision. He laughed at the idea, declaring that if that was the case, "I wouldn't stand for it; I'd be out the door."

Warren also refused to reveal when he submitted his resignation, declaring that he didn't want to say anything. "I want to leave without muddying the waters," he said. "The council and the planning commission members are aware of my reasons for leaving."

"I'm good," Warren added. "I could be better, but I'm being prevented from it."

Asked whether he would reconsider, especially in light of a petition that was being circulated by concerned citizens that urged the council not to accept his resignation, Warren declared: "I don't subscribe to it. I have asked people not to circulate a petition. I have nothing to do with it. I'm not trying to coerce the council."

"As far as I'm concerned, as of now, come Jan. 15 at 5 p.m. I walk out of here and get in my car and drive away."

Warren said that he didn't have any definite plans on future employment.

THE ONLY OTHER city employee qualified to assume the duties of building inspector is City Planning Director Robert Griggs.

Griggs is scheduled to go on vacation later this month, but will return Jan. 3.

Griggs' department is also understaffed. It has been without a secretary since early summer. The planning commission has complained to the City Council about the situation, but so far it has not received a reply. Meanwhile Griggs spends part of his day typing reports and other documents required of his department.

PETITIONS WERE being circulated late last week suffered in an altercation Sept. 7 with police officer Gregory Lindsey.

The claim, filed Nov. 21, also asks $30,000 in punitive damages for the "malicious conduct" of Officer Lindsey, and for an alleged "attempt to extort a release from Long" by Police Capt. Robert Fischer and Officer Jim Rasler. Special damages are sought for $402 to cover current and future estimated medical expenses.

THE CARMEL CITY Council at its Dec. 3 meeting denied the claim.

City Attorney George Brehmer told The Pine Cone that the matter has been referred to the city's insurance company. He said it would probably lead to litigation.

"The city doesn't have any liability. The claim is not well-founded legally," Brehmer said.

Long's attorney, Arthur Braudrick of Carmel, said that a lawsuit will be filed. He refused to comment further.

OFFICER LINDSEY had ordered Long to clear a line of cars that was backed into San Carlos Street from the Wells Fargo parking lot south of Ocean Avenue.

A disagreement ensued over Long's responsibility for the traffic jam, followed by a scuffle in which Lindsey and Long both suffered cuts, according to Long and the police report.

Long was arrested, handcuffed and detained at the police station. He was later released without charges.

IN THE CLAIM written by Braudrick and Carmel Valley attorney Dennis Law, Officer Lindsey is charged with being "loud and abusive" when he demanded that Long direct traffic at the parking lot "in a manner contrary to instructions from his employer."

When Long said that he needed to check with his employer, and started to walk to the bank building, according to the claim, Lindsey "grabbed him and forcibly threw him to the ground."

"Officer Lindsey, without cause and with unnecessary force, handcuffed and brought (Long) to the police vehicle and shoved him inside," the claim states.

THE INCIDENT WAS witnessed by employees and patrons of the bank, and members of the general public, according to the claim. "Officer Lindsey was abusive to several of these persons," it states.

At the police station, the claim states that Officer Rasler told Long that "charges would be filed against him and he would be required to post $5,000 bail unless he agreed to release Officer Lindsey (and the police department) from any liability." Long refused, according to the claim.

Rasler then advised Long that it could be arranged so that he had no formal arrest record as a result of the incident, but Long again refused to sign a release, according to the claim.

BURT MESSENGER, a vice-president of the Carmel branch of Wells Fargo Bank, came to the police station to secure Long's release. According to the claim, Messenger was told by Capt. Fischer that if Long signed a form he would be released without a charge.

Such a release was never signed, and Long was "subsequently released apparently without having been formally arrested and without being charged of any crime," the claim states.

According to the claim, Long charges Lindsey and the city of Carmel with assault and battery, false arrest, false imprisonment, and "the intentional and malicious causation of emotional distress."

LONG CONTENTS in the claim that the Carmel Police Department is independently liable because "it should not have allowed Officer Lindsey to be given patrol responsibilities because of his lack of discretion and propensity to use unnecessary and brutal force, which characteristics were known or should have been known to it."

The police department is also liable, the claim charges, because it condoned Lindsey's conduct as "evidenced by its attempt to extort a release" from Long.

"Capt. Fischer's and Officer Rasler's attempt to extort a release from claimant (Long) is a distinct and separate wrongful act on their part and that of the police department," the claim charges.

Long's physical injuries consisted of multiple abrasions and contusions, the possible fracture of one rib and the aggravation of a pre-existing ulcer condition, according to the claim.

LINDSEY STATED in his report that Long became belligerent, and "violently pulled away" when Lindsey asked him for his identification.

The scuffle resulted, according to Lindsey, when Long refused to comply with his orders and began to walk away, then jerked the officer's arm away when Lindsey attempted to halt him.

BANK PATRONS AND EMPLOYEES crowded into the parking lot where they witnessed the encounter.

One bank employee, who asked not to be identified, said at the time of the scuffle that the officer was "extremely rough."

"We tried to tell him that Bill (Long) was our parking lot attendant. But he ordered us away. He pushed Bill to the ground, got on top of him and handcuffed him," the employee said.

Police Chief William Ellis said a few days after the incident that it was "an unfortunate set of circumstances."

"It went a lot further than it needed to. It was the result of the hot weather and congested traffic," he said.

Ellis said that the 27-year-old Lindsey would not be taken off active duty.

City building inspector resigns when it was learned that Warren had resigned. They were scheduled to be presented to the City Council at its meeting Monday night. But Warren asked the organizers of the petition campaign to drop the matter and not present them to the council.

John Chitwood, one of the petition circulators, said that they called on merchants and public officials in an attempt to demonstrate to the council the support Warren has from the business people and other concerned citizens. "He's done a fine job," Chitwood said. "Where are we going to find a man so knowledgeable about Carmel?" asked Chitwood.

He said that in the few days he circulated the petition he had secured 74 signatures, including those of former council and planning commission members who are aware of Warren's work as building inspector.

WARREN INDICATED his displeasure with the two-man workload at City Hall in an interview with the Pine Cone last May.

"I've currently got 15 to 20 plan checks backed up in the file," he said at the time. "I should ideally be out walking the town, listening for power saws, looking for construction, making unplanned visits to construction sites. But I haven't got the time."

The plan to reorganize the two departments has failed to materialize, although the council authorized funds for the proposal in the budget last summer. The proposal calls for both departments to be consolidated with a coordinator to oversee it.

WARREN WAS HIRED by Cunningham in 1973, with the consent of the City Council.

He was primarily responsible for field inspections and sign enforcement, as a building inspector under Cunningham's jurisdiction. Cunningham performed most administrative duties, including review of construction plans.

Warren, 49, was an electrician for a Salinas electrical firm for two years before he was hired by the city. Before that, he spent 25 years as a construction worker in the "Seabees," the construction arm of the United States Navy.

'Surprised by the suddenness of judge's position'

Holt to appeal dismissal of lawsuit against county

By STEVE HELLMAN

HARRY HOLT LOST the first round last week in his lawsuit against Monterey County and the Carmel Valley Ranch development, but he pledged to continue the battle.

Moments after Superior Court Judge Nat Agliano abruptly ruled to dismiss his lawsuit Dec. 7, Holt said that an appeal would be filed.

"I was surprised by the suddenness of his (Agliano's) position. Our only plan at the moment is to appeal," Holt said.

IN A DECISION DELIVERED swiftly from the bench after more than four hours of final arguments, Agliano ruled that the county was immune from Holt's charges that it had illegally approved the Carmel Valley Ranch development.

'The crucial question that disposes of this suit is the extension. The rest we could talk about all day.'—Superior Court Judge Nat Agliano.

Holt's lawsuit centered around the allegation that the county's General Plan was inadequate in 1976 when the county Board of Supervisors approved a Specific Plan for the development, the largest in the history of the Valley.

The suit sought to have the county rescind its approval of the Specific Plan for 500 condominium units, a 100-unit hotel and a golf course. It also asked that the county rescind approval of the tentative subdivision map that was granted by the supervisors last March for construction of the first 140 condominium units.

AGLIANO DECLARED THAT the county and developer's "affirmative defenses" were sustained in the face of Holt's charges. He based the dismissal, however, on only one point. He ruled that a year-extension granted to the county last October had the effect of "pushing ahead the deadline" for the county to have its General Plan legally updated.

The year-extension granted by the state Office of Planning and Research (OPR) was intended by the state Legislature, Agliano ruled, to make the county immune to lawsuits.

"The crucial question that disposes of this suit," Agliano said, "is the extension. The rest we could talk about all day."

THE JUDGE ISSUED his ruling before Holt's attorney, Richard Rosenthal, had presented his arguments on the alleged inadequacy of the General Plan. Agliano refused to allow Rosenthal to submit as evidence the transcripts of the supervisors' hearings on the project.

He also refused to explain his findings on the three major defenses presented by the county and developer until Rosenthal submits a formal written request.

Rosenthal said that he would immediately request the additional findings in preparation for an appeal. He has stated repeatedly that "this case is a winner at the appeals level."

HOLT'S CASE WAS similar to lawsuits in Santa Cruz and Inyo counties that are currently on appeal following decisions by local superior court judges in favor of the counties.

Attorneys for both sides in the Holt lawsuit had expected Agliano to take the case under submission before ruling because of its complexity.

Deputy County Counsel Jose Ramos defended Agliano's swift decision. "He (Agliano) didn't have to rule on the adequacy of the General Plan," Ramos said.

Ramos repeated his argument that the state extension granted to Monterey County was meant to exempt it from lawsuits. Ramos supported the extension argument with references to the Santa Cruz and Inyo cases.

Salinas attorney Myron "Doc" Etienne, representing Landmark Lands Company of Oklahoma, the developer, said that Holt's case lost because of the defense arguments that Holt waited too long after the 1976 approval of the Specific Plan to file his lawsuit; that he was prevented from suing because he was party to a previous lawsuit that was settled, and that he had no standing as a resident to sue.

ROSENTHAL POINTED out during his arguments that Holt's suit was stronger than the Santa Cruz case because Holt filed his suit (June 26) before Monterey County received an extension from OPR.

The lawsuit in Santa Cruz was filed after the county received an extension, Rosenthal said. He added that the conditions attached to the Santa Cruz extension exempted tentative subdivision maps from lawsuits.

The conditions attached to Monterey County's extension,

Rosenthal said, did not grant a similar exemption. He argued further that if the Carmel Valley Ranch project were made to comply with the OPR extension, it could not be approved as it was in 1976.

RAMOS ARGUED THAT the Inyo and Santa Cruz cases were examples where the local courts had interpreted the state extensions to exempt past, present and future land use decisions from lawsuits.

"During the period of extension the cause of action (for lawsuit) is abated (set aside)," Ramos said. "The extension pushes back the date by which the county must have an adequate General Plan."

'If this project (Carmel Valley Ranch) came before the county today, it could be approved exactly the same and it would be valid.'—Myron Etienne, developer's attorney.

ETIENNE ARGUED THAT Rosenthal had failed to prove that the supervisors acted "capriciously, arbitrarily or with total lack of evidence" when they approved the Carmel Valley Ranch Specific Plan.

"If this project came before the county today," Etienne said, "it could be approved exactly the same and it would be valid."

But Rosenthal said that there are conditions in the extension concerning housing and noise elements of the General Plan that would prohibit approval of the Carmel Valley Ranch project.

Ramos countered that the county had not adopted the ordinances to implement the housing condition, and that the court or county could not know if the project would comply.

Rosenthal charged that the defense argument must be moot if the OPR extension had been granted, but the county "hasn't officially enacted the extension. Either it has or it hasn't got an extension."

(The supervisors were expected to consider an ordinance on Dec. 11 to implement the housing condition.)

AGLIANO DID NOT RULE on these arguments, finding simply that the part of the extension that grants immunity to lawsuits was meant to set aside any litigation pending against a county as well as any future litigation against its general plan.

In his chambers afterward, Agliano defended his ruling. He said, "Timing was not that crucial. The case could continue all the way to the state Supreme Court and anywhere along the way an extension could be granted and make the suit moot," Agliano said.

"But an appellate court might not interpret it as I have," he said. Agliano noted the fact that there is currently no appellate court decision on a General Plan lawsuit that involves an OPR extension.

City Council moves ahead with preferential parking leaving Carmel because of parking." He said that these businesses will return when rents come down.

Although Brunn made the motion to accept the complete parking expansion plan, he joined Brown and Arnold in voting to defeat the motion. "I don't want to force people into the residential area," Brunn explained, noting that Peterson and Ellis made some good points about such a situation.

Arnold and Brunn also said they opposed it because it would prevent residents from parking in front of their homes. The council then voted 3-2 to accept the conversion program which would provide for more green zones and one-hour areas.

DESPITE WARNINGS from several audience members, the council voted 3-2 to authorize the staff to draft an ordinance to implement a permit sticker program. Brunn and Arnold dissented.

The audience members argued that if the council approved both programs, it would not be able to determine at the conclusion of the 12-month trial period which plan benefited the residents.

William Doolittle, president of the Carmel Citizens Committee, said that by "combining both for a year you will not know which side you're getting the most benefit from—more 20-minute parking zones or the stickers ..."

He also noted the cost factor involved. He said that the program would need an additional officer and then there is the cost of the stickers. "I'd like to see the city save some money," Doolittle said. He urged the council to "try the more economical one first—try the more parking zones for a year."

Brown replied that the sticker program "is the cheaper one of the two." He estimated that it would cost 50 cents per sticker, while the installation of new signs and the necessary curb painting would cost $1,351. He said both plans would require additional personnel.

Don Davidson, a member of the Carmel Planning Commission, agreed with Doolittle. He said that if the city attempted both plans, "at the end of a year you'll have two variables and no idea which one worked and which one failed. If you're going to pass something, pass one or the other."

ROYAL ADAMS told the council that the deletion of the plan to convert no-time parking zones into two-hour areas "has cut in half—if not more—the effectiveness of the plan."

She said that Junipero, where 96 no-time zones were scheduled for conversion to two-hour zones "is occupied almost solely by employees."

She also told the council that the preferential plan and sticker proposal "isn't going to do it all." She suggested that the council examine the possibility of developing employee parking areas and a mini-bus service as a supplement to the preferential parking program.

Brunn said that the council should look at proposals to reduce the need for vehicles, such as a bus system and a dial-a-ride. "That's one way to take some of the vehicles off the streets and serve the residents, too," Brunn said.

The city staff will present a recommendation to the council on the procedure and administration of the sticker program following its study. The study includes the design, costs and distribution of the proposed permit stickers. Peterson said that they will recommend that upon request by a resident a city employee will place the sticker on the left rear bumper of the vehicle. The resident must furnish proof of voter registration and auto ownership.

The planning commission reported that it would continue to explore the possibility of using the bank parking lots on weekends for residents only. Peterson told the council that there may be "some serious liability issues to be dealt with here." He said that he will refer this to the city attorney for "some initial investigation."

JUST IN CASE anyone has gotten so wrapped up in Christmas that he has forgotten that January is just around the corner ... don't! And why? Because from Jan. 10-30 is filing time. Filing time for those who wish to run for either mayor or the City Council.

Now most of us know who is going to run, and for what, and suspect that a few others will show up as well. But just in case some of you good Carmel citizens get bitten by a civic duty bug, all you have to do is get 20 good and true names of valid voters to sign your papers supporting you as a candidate, and file them with the Registrar of Voters in Salinas.

It would be sort of nice to have a few more concerned residents do more than turn their backs on our city government. But there is always hope!

Maybe what it's going to take is for the dedicated few to prove that it's worthwhile to be interested and active.

MY WIFE (that marvelous Missus) says that every woman needs to go through a "pink" period at some time in her life. Some women are "always pink," while others have only a short time of it. It isn't a "conditioning" thing, according to her, it's a basic need to the "feminine mystique."

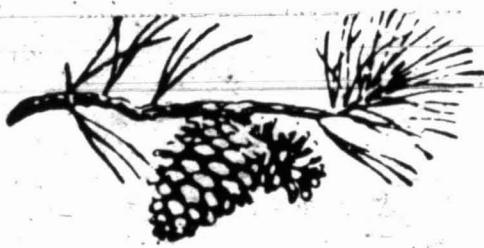

This whole subject rose up again (pun?) because of recent articles which state that the Equal Rights women have "come back" to the concept of family unity as primary.

(I have to report this — a good friend's daughter, when discovering "Ms. Jackson" was printed in a problem of her third grade arithmetic book, said, "Ms. sounds like the wife of a male bee.")

Back to pink. The Missus expressed her thought that perhaps the "pink-need" period was a physical manifestation of coping with the red and white extremes of a woman's life. From birth through death, they take an active part and to balance everything, both mentally and physically, they blend the extremes, and come out "pink."

Men see things as black and white, and THEIR blending comes out as shades of gray.

Obviously, the girls make everything rosy!

Is A Problem Drinker Hurting You?

• Read Every Word

If a problem drinker is hurting you, you can be sure he's hurting himself too — or herself. Alcoholism does not respect sex, age or color. How long can you go on? If you're ready to do something about it, remember this... you can help the alcoholic even if he or she doesn't want help.

• What Not to Do

Don't accuse — he or she will never admit to drinking too much. Don't try to reason with the problem drinker. Alcohol abusers are seriously ill, and the illness affects the mind as well as the body.

• What You Can Do

The best thing (and really the only thing) you can do for problem drinkers is to get them to professional help. Fast. The CareUnit Program in your local hospital offers a unique program that works. Given the right environment and an effective treatment program, alcoholism is a treatable disease. We prove it every day. In a few weeks, the problem drinker can look forward to resuming a useful and productive place in society. And you can look forward to a happy, normal life once again.

• How to Begin

Begin by calling your local CareUnit immediately, and talk to a staff counselor. You alone can help the alcoholic. Call now and make an appointment to see a counselor. You needn't be hurt again.

Allow city residents to vote

Carmel may push for change of annexation law

THE CARMEL CITY COUNCIL may lobby to support a new state law which would allow city residents to vote in future annexation elections.

Prompted by Councilman Mike Brown, the council voted unanimously at its meeting last week to authorize the city staff to report at its January meeting on various bills to amend the annexation law pending in the state Legislature.

City Administrator Doug Peterson wrote in a memorandum to the council: "During the recent annexation discussion, there was dissatisfaction with the lack of opportunity for city residents to vote on the annexation question."

City residents were prohibited from voting in the Carmel Woods and Hatton Fields annexation, which was narrowly defeated at the Nov. 6 election. The annexation election was conducted under a provision in the new state law which allows local agency formation commissions to order annexations upon majority petition by residents of the area seeking annexation without an election in the city and without appeal.

BROWN TOLD THE council last week that Carmel residents should be allowed to vote on any annexation measure.

"It's unfair and unreasonable that Carmel residents had no say on that annexation," Brown declared. "We would be subsidizing that area if it came into Carmel. It would draw on the capital which Carmel draws upon."

"I'd like to see us in Carmel make a recommendation to our legislators to lead a bill through the Legislature that would help Carmel," Brown said. "Let's tailor something tonight that we can recommend to the state Legislature."

He proposed that city residents should be allowed to vote if the area to be annexed would contain 10 percent or more of the registered city voters or equal 10 percent of the city's assessed valuation.

PETERSON REPORTED that proposed bills regarding the question of annexation elections—AB 479, SB 221 and SB 1223—are scheduled for consideration by the Legislature. He noted, however, that he had no detailed information about them.

Peterson also reported that AB 1691 is pending in the Legislature, a measure that would restore a city's power to vote an annexation.

Councilman Howard Brunn recommended that the council ask the city staff to prepare a report on these bills for the January meeting, noting that "we won't be able to do anything until we know the context of 479, 221 and 1223."

Brown agreed. "Let's put it on the January agenda, just as long as we keep it alive and we let the Legislature know that we want a bill that meets with Carmel's needs and not just Los Angeles' or other large cities."

MAYOR GUNNAR NORBERG said that he has supported increasing the size of Carmel's city limits for more than 20 years.

"At one time the idea was to get all these outside people in the city because of the inequitable situation. The people outside the city were getting all the services, while the people inside were doing all the paying."

Norberg said that the creation in unincorporated areas of service districts with their own tax rates prompted "these people" outside the city to want annexation—"then came Proposition 13; it knocked out everything."

Norberg said that it's a "troublesome" situation because the people "outside our natural area refuse to annex."

He said that the entire Carmel Unified School District should be considered Carmel's natural boundary. Norberg explained that the one square mile that comprises Carmel is "the tiny end of a long tail that extends all over Carmel Valley and the basin." He said that if these areas don't eventually join the city in a unified effort to preserve this area of the Peninsula, "the miracle which was Carmel will perish."

BRUNN SAID THAT he believes Carmel Woods and Hatton Fields should be annexed to bring Carmel closer to its natural city limits, which he defined as the area bounded by Highway 1, Carmel River, Pescadero Canyon and the ocean.

Brown retorted: "For me, Carmel's natural boundary is what Carmel can provide in the level of services it is getting now." He explained that it is an economical argument as to whether the city should annex a certain area. Annexations should be rejected when they threaten to deteriorate the city's level of service, Brown said.

Brunn noted that Carmel was not hurt by Prop. 13 like other cities "because we have a unique financial base."

"We receive more from the business license fees than from property taxes; we receive more from the traffic fines than from property taxes."

Brunn said that no economic arguments were involved in the recent annexation attempt since "the city of Carmel has more money than it knows what to do with. We're sitting on about $1.5 million."

"What I'm saying," Brunn declared, "is that Mike (Brown) was entirely wrong."

Norberg interjected that an annexation could hurt Carmel's budget reserve. "The city should have in reserve the same amount as its budget," Norberg said. Carmel's budget is $3.2 million.

Brunn challenged the mayor's statement. He said that he knew of no city which had a reserve equal to its budget. He asked Peterson to include in the report due in January the averages of reserves of California cities of a similar size to Carmel.

STEP TYNER of Carmel Knolls, who led the successful campaign against annexation of Carmel Woods and Hatton Fields, said he doubted that the annexation would have won even if the people of Carmel had voted.

Tyner, chairman of the Committee Against Annexation and a member of the advisory board to County Service Area No. 43, the fire protection district which was a main issue in the campaign, said he "loves Carmel. It's a unique city. But if the annexation went through Carmel would have become twice as big as it is now and cease to be the unique little village it is; it would be just another crowded, growing city like Seaside."

"I don't think the people of Carmel want this; they don't want to lose their place in the sun."

SHANNON THOMAS of Carmel, a young fan of Monterey Peninsula author and historian Randall Reinstedt (right), eagerly awaits his autograph in her copy of the recently published book, Mysterious Sea

Monsters of California's Central Coast. The volume's illustrator, Anton A. Hruza (left) of Carmel, also signed copies of the book at an autograph party Sunday at the Carmel Bay Company in Carmel.

Annexation law change sought

HE ALSO SAID that economics is an argument. He noted that with the gasoline situation, Carmel's tourism may decline and "Carmel may not be as affluent as they are now."

He said that some Carmel officials support annexation programs because they "would love to get their hands on Carmel Rancho" and the other commercial developments at the entrance to Carmel Valley.

As to whether the state Legislature might amend the annexation law to allow city residents to vote, Tyner replied: "Your guess is as good as mine."

FRANCIS LLOYD, pro-annexation leader for Carmel Woods and Hatton Fields, was not available for comment.

Lloyd had noted the day after the Nov. 6 election that the annexation proposal "is still a good idea. It's something that should be done. There's a good chance the City Council will change. User fees will become a reality. Our group will stay together and it's conceivable the proposal will be resubmitted."

Lloyd would not confirm just when and which areas might be included in any new annexation proposal.

A YEAR FROM the day that the election results of the Hatton Fields and Carmel Woods annexation is certified, the pro-annexation people can re-submit the same proposal. The annexation was rejected Nov. 6 by a 102-vote margin, 555 to 453.

According to Mike Johnson, executive officer of the Local Agency Formation Commission, this one-year waiting period applies not only to the same proposal, but also any plan to annex "substantially the same area."

Annexation proponents could submit a proposal for any one of three elections next year, Johnson explained, if it were substantially revised. He admitted that LAFCO's decision that a proposal is substantially changed is subjective. But it would be obvious, for example, if the proposal was for a portion of Carmel Woods, he said.

"It could be on the city ballot in April, the primary ballot in June or the general election ballot in November," Johnson said.

A peek behind the Iron Curtain

East Berlin starts to shed its d

By AL EISNER

EAST BERLIN is a beehive.

As the capital of the German Democratic Republic (GDR), it is the seat of government and the center of communications, transportation and industry. For almost two decades after the end of World War II, it was badly outshone by the renaissance of West Berlin. In the past several years, however, it has begun to recover from the ravages of war and shed its drabness.

Although East Germany is only the size of Ohio, it now ranks among the top seven industrial nations of the world, behind the U.S., the Soviet Union, Japan and West Germany. The 17 million people of east Germany and the 1.1 million people who live in East Berlin enjoy the highest standard of living in any nation in the Communist bloc. The gross national product of the GDR is now two-thirds of West Germany. This has been achieved despite chronic manpower shortages caused by the war and by the defection of millions of men and women of working age to the West before the Wall was erected in 1961.

FOR WESTERN VISITORS, the first grim exposure to East Berlin is at Checkpoint Charlie, the funnel for most overland traffic between east and west. The sight of soldiers and guards patrolling with loaded automatic weapons is chilling. After the unexplained, interminable wait at the border while your papers are being examined, you encounter the new East Berlin.

Under der Linden, once world-renowned for its elegant buildings, shops and trees, was completely destroyed by the Allied bombing. It has been rebuilt without taste or style.

One of East Berlin's main commercial streets, now named Karl Marx Allee, was rebuilt with the same bricks and stones used in the original construction, and recovered from the rubble.

Automobiles, buses, bicycles and people on foot crowd the broad streets and sidewalks. High-rise apartment buildings, built hastily to house tens of thousands of homeless Berliners, thrust skyward. Pedestrians no longer notice the burned-out hulks of bullet-pocked buildings that are hidden by the tall, new buildings.

FIRST-TIME TRAVELERS to a Communist-bloc country must learn to cope with the intricacies of currency exchange caused by the incredible demand for dollars or any other western currency.

East German marks, or any other currency of nations behind the Iron Curtain, are not convertible. That is, western nations do not accept them as payment for goods in international exchange. If the East Germans, or any other Communist-bloc nation, want to buy food, industrial goods, clothing or anything else from a western country, they must pay with a hard western currency.

The East Germans are encouraging tourism, therefore, to snare the western currency. Travelers from Western nations must stay at hotels that cater to foreign tourists only, and they must spend their own currency to buy anything in the "Dollar Shops" that thrive in every hotel in the Communist bloc.

I might caution the reader to take along as much cash as you can, and only carry as many travelers checks as you feel you must. All of the banks and hotels extract a heavy fee for exchanging travelers checks. Also, despite all the advertising and publicity you've heard, the American Express Card is the most universally accepted credit card in the eastern bloc. I couldn't use my Visa or Master Charge card in most shops and hotels behind the Iron Curtain.

If you are planning a visit to East Berlin, be sure to tell your travel agent to book you into the new Palast Hotel, one of the new units in the Interhotel chain. It is as good as any top-notch commercial hotel in San Francisco, complete with swimming pool, sauna, beauty parlor and health spa.

AS FOR THE FOOD, prepare yourself for the worst. If you are with a group, you'll be seated in a dining hall for all of your meals, and served institutionally. Don't bother to ask for any extras like butter, or perhaps sugar for your coffee.

The tasteless food is usually matched by tasteless surroundings and indifferent service. Don't let their standards for quality and service annoy you ... it will only raise your blood pressure and won't help at all. Maybe they are aware that only five percent of the tourists that venture into East Berlin are from the U.S.

Because tourism is so important to the economy, the Communists are serious about it. We were herded into an enormous dining hall of an East Berlin hotel for lunch, and seated at long, bare tables. One or two of our group draped their coats over the chairs at the next table. A noisy group of Russian tourists, escorted by a sturdy, stocky female Bulgarian guide, was seated at the adjoining group of tables. The Bulgarian lady argued intensely with our guide. We almost provoked an international incident, it seems, because we had parked some of our clothes on "her" chairs.

THERE ARE POSTERS and signs everywhere, exhorting the people to work together in harmony for the good of the state. One poster, with a picture of a woman in a hard-hat with flowers in her hair declared simply: "GDR ... Mein Stadt." (My country.) Many others proclaimed the celebration of the 30th anniversary of the founding of the GDR. One poster depicted soldiers, farmers, scientists, factory workers, school children—male and female—all embracing and working together. In the background were the dove of peace, space ships and new buildings under construction.

The Soviet presence is pervasive. Russian soldiers can be seen everywhere, pursuing their business purposefully.

At the Soviet War Memorial, an impressive parkland and monument built in the memory of the 22,000 Soviet troops who died in the battle of Berlin, our guide replied quixotically when we asked if the Germans liked the Russians: "Do the West Berliners like the Americans?"

Although she knew how many Russian soldiers died

East Germany's new generation

Almost 35 years have elapsed since Allied troops swept through Germany and Hitler's armies surrendered. An entire generation of East Germans has grown up and been educated under the Communist regime.

To the visitor, it becomes apparent that an increasing number of East Germans have allowed themselves to become persuaded by the official party line. Since all western newspapers, magazines and books are banned, the tightly controlled state is able to relentlessly pursue its goal—the creation of a loyal population enthusiastically carrying out the wishes of its leaders.

The propaganda experts overlook no opportunity to remind the population of its great debt to their brothers in the Soviet Union who liberated them from the yoke of Fascism.

The Soviet Union demanded—and received—$10 billion in reparations from East Germany over a period of years. The huge sum was extracted despite incredible handicaps imposed on the economy of East Germany when the Russians dismantled factories, removed railroad trackage and rolling stock and sent German scientists and technicians back to the Soviet Union to help rebuild that nation instead of their own.

By refusing to repatriate prisoners of war, the Soviets reduced the potential for repayment and added to the crushing economic burdens they imposed on the defeated nation.

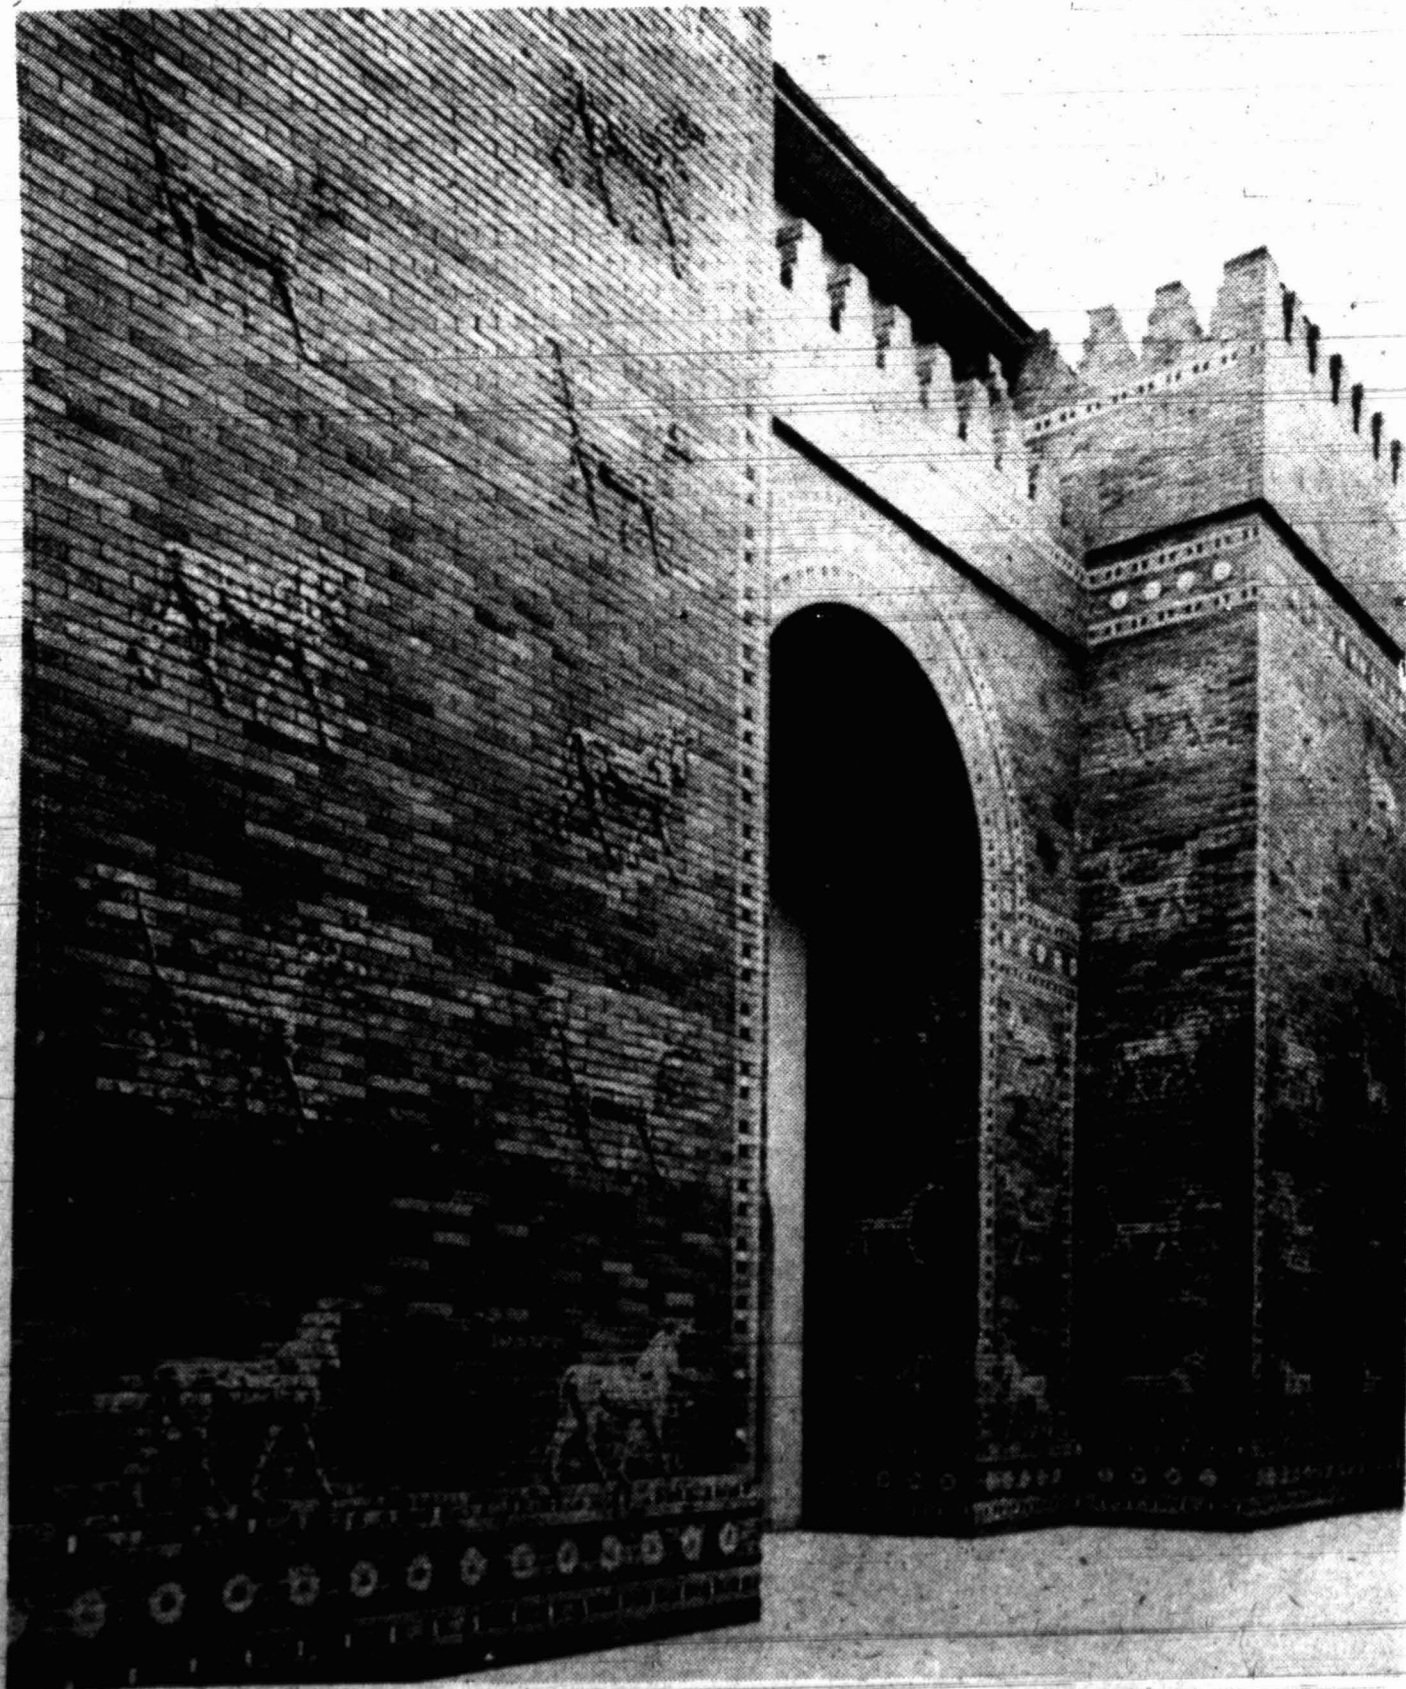

The Soviet Union suffered the greatest loss of life during the second World War. The Nazis burned and murdered when they occupied Soviet soil, in a final effort to exterminate the Slavic menace in the east.

When Russian soldiers occupied Germany in 1945, they were bent on vengeance. Rape and pillage were common. The actions of the Soviet soldiers immediately after the cessation of hostilities left bitter memories in the minds of the Germans who witnessed the brutal treatment. Yet, the East German regime would have its people believe that the Soviet Union and the Red Army were its saviors.

The relentless re-education even pervades the world of art.

The following is from the introduction to a museum guide of East Berlin published in English for the benefit of foreign visitors:

"Our socialist state has put vast funds into the reconstruction of Berlin's cultural centers, which were destroyed in British and American air raids during the second World War. If we can now admire the unique treasures of art and culture, this is chiefly due to Soviet soldiers, scholars and restorers who salvaged many of these treasures from the ruins, protected them from decay and, in 1958, the Soviet Union handed them over to the German Democratic (East German) Republic."

THE FAMED Ashtar Gate in the Pergamum Museum of East Berlin is world-famed for its beauty. Horses, lions and mythical animals stand out in relief from the deep blue-glazed tiles of the structure which dates back to 580 B.C. It was one of the gates of Babylon built during the reign of Nebuchadnezzar II. The impressive gate is one of the few treasures that the selective traveler can find in East Berlin museums.

"liberating" Berlin, she had no idea how many Germans died in the same battle. She was a "hard-liner," born in Rostock, a large German city on the Baltic.

ART LOVERS needn't worry about missing too much if they have a limited amount of time to spend in East Berlin.

All of the State Museums are grouped on Museum Island, just moments from the center of town.

The famed Altar of Pergamum, built in 180 B.C., is impressive. Located in the Pergamum Museum, it boasts an eight-foot high frieze which is 400 feet long. Huge figures carved in deep relief depict the victories of Attalus I in battle. Most of the colonnades of the altar are restored, but much of the original sculpture has been saved.

The incredible Ashtar Gate unearthed from Babylon and dating from 580 B.C. from the reign of Nebuchadnezzar II (604-562 B.C.) will knock you over. Lions, horses and mythical creatures stand in relief against the deep blue glazed tiles of the gate. Awesome.

We were mildly interested in the Islamic Museum and the Far Eastern collection at the Pergamum. The Egyptian Museum at the Bode Museum was, in my opinion, a joke, especially if you've seen the Egyptian collections at the Louvre, the Metropolitan in New York, or the British Museum. Strangely, though, the East Germans are proud of their fragments and bits and pieces.

Don't be tempted to work your way through the Picture Gallery of the Bode Museum, which is supposed to be chock-full of masterpieces of German, Dutch and Italian paintings of the 15th-18th centuries. I don't think I've ever seen such a collection of humdrum paintings anywhere. Ditto for the Sculpture Gallery.

As for the National Gallery, don't be impressed by the name. Except for a couple of unimportant Cezannes, one

POSTERS, BANNERS, signs everywhere exhort the people of East Germany to work together in peace and harmony for the benefit of the State. This poster, photographed through a bus window, marks the 30th anniversary of the founding of the German Democratic Republic (GDR). It was only four years after cessation of hostilities that Soviet Russia proclaimed the formation of a new nation. The GDR now ranks as one of the world's industrial giants.

Degas painting and two or three Degas cast bronzes, the trip will earn you nothing but sore feet.

One wing of the National Gallery in West Berlin has more fine quality art than all of the museums in East Berlin put together. Count on it.

THE EAST GERMANS rose against their Communist tormentors in 1953. Tired of the low standards of living caused by emphasis on heavy industry rather than consumer goods, the East Berliners rebelled. The short-lived revolt spread to the rest of East Germany. Remember the photographs of Germans hurling brick and paving stones at Soviet tanks? With the new prosperity and insulation from Western ideas, it is unlikely that the East Germans will rise again... unless they are driven by the need to reunite with their brethren on the other side of the Wall in West Germany.

This is the second in a series of articles by Mr. Eisner, editor and publisher of the "Carmel Pine Cone" and "Carmel Valley Outlook." They are based on his observations during a recent trip to Europe on a music and art tour sponsored by the Monterey County Symphony Association.

The first article described present-day West Berlin. Future articles will appear on Dresden, Prague, Bucharest, Istanbul and other cities.

The articles vary in approach and subject matter. They may be described as one journalist's view of life in places very different from ours. They are not intended to be a comprehensive overview of the countries that were visited.

Zweitägiges Konsultativtreffen in Prag beendet

Eindringlicher Appell an die Parlamente der NATO-Länder

Repräsentanten der Parlamente der Warschauer Vertragsstaaten fordern positive Reaktion auf die Friedensinitiative der UdSSR

Von unserem Korrespondenten Walter Köcher

Prag. Mit der feierlichen Erklärung, noch aktiver zur Festigung von Frieden, Sicherheit und Zusammenarbeit in der ganzen Welt beizutragen, ist am Mittwoch in Prag das Konsultativtreffen von Repräsentanten der Parlamente der Warschauer Vertragsstaaten zu Ende gegangen. Die Teilnehmer wandten sich mit einem Appell an die Parlamente der NATO-Länder, ihre Stimme gegen die Pläne zur Stationierung neuer Systeme amerikanischer Raketen in Europa zu erheben.

Die Parlamentarier, an deren zweitägigen Beratungen auch eine DDR-Delegation unter Leitung des Präsidenten der Volkskammer, Horst Sindermann, Mitglied des Politbüros des ZK der SED, teilnahm, betonten in diesem Dokument, die Verwirklichung der NATO-Pläne drohe die Lage auf dem europäischen Kontinent und in der ganzen Welt erneut zu verschärfen. Es wird die Erklärung Leonid Breschnevs in seiner Berliner Rede unterstrichen, daß die Sowjetunion kein militärisches Übergewicht anstrebt. Gleiches gelte in vollem Maße für die gesamte Gemeinschaft der Länder des Warschauer-Vertrages.

Wörtlich heißt es dazu: „Wir sind sicher, daß dieser bedeutende Schritt, der von dem aufrichtigen Wunsch diktiert ist, die jahrelangen Anstrengungen um die militärische Entspannung auf dem europäischen Kontinent aus der Sackgasse herauszuführen, von den Völkern Europas und der ganzen Welt gebilligt wird. Wir rufen die Parlamente der Mitgliedsstaaten der NATO auf, die Initiative der sozialistischen Staaten gebührend einzuschätzen und die Regierungen ihrer Länder zu veranlassen, diesem guten Beispiel zu folgen.“

In einem gleichlautenden Aufruf, an die Parlamente der anderen Länder der Welt wird über den Appell an die NATO-Staaten informiert und darauf hingewiesen, daß deren Handlungen zu diesem Schritt Anlaß gegeben haben. Die Parlamentarier der Warschauer Vertragsstaaten würden es als ihre Pflicht ansehen, die Welt auf die Position der NATO aufmerksam zu machen.

Die Föderative Versammlung der CSSR hat es übernommen, die Dokumente an ihre Adressaten weiterzuleiten.

Im Mittelpunkt des Treffens standen dem Kommuniqué zufolge Probleme der Sicherheit und Zusammenarbeit in Europa sowie der internationalen Entspannung und Abrüstung. Die Repräsentanten der Parlamente der Warschauer Vertragsstaaten unterstrichen die herausragende Bedeutung der jüngsten Friedensinitiative der Sowjetunion. Sie brachten die Hoffnung zum Ausdruck, daß auch die Parlamente der anderen Länder der Welt im gleichen Sinne handeln.

PADRE SPORTS

By MARK SANFORD

THE CARMEL HIGH varsity basketball team will host the 33rd annual Carmel Varsity Invitational Tournament on Dec. 13-15. The Padres will play at 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 13.

Carmel lost its Nov. 30 home opener, 47-40, to Alisal High. But came back the next night to beat Marelo, 45-30.

Mike Miller paced the team with 11 points and 8 rebounds in the Marelo game. Gary Childs, Greg Raynes and Adam Sherburne also played well.

The Padres have been hurt by the absence of last year's all-league performer Art Strum, who has been out with walking pneumonia. He should be ready to play in the tournament.

St. Francis High should be the team to beat in the tournament. They are ranked No. 4 in CCS. They are led by 6-6 Mike Norman, who was Most Valuable Player in the tournament last year and in CCS.

THE JUNIOR VARSITY won both its games, beating Alisal, 44-39, and York School, 52-30.

John Parsons, a transfer from Marin County, scored 16 points against Alisal and 14 in the York game.

Brad Wiesner, 6-5, also played well, leading the JVs with 16 points in the York game.

THE GIRLS VARSITY Basketball team won its season opener, 47-38 over Santa Cruz at home. Sarah Thamer led the Padres with 17 points, and Kathy Selle had 27 rebounds.

On Dec. 6, Carmel beat Monterey, 52-38. Thamer and Selle scored 16 and 14 respectively, both playing very well. Aileen Kelly scored 12 points and Jodi Parsons 8 to help the Padres' cause.

Thamer is 6-6, and is sought after by several different colleges, while Selle is trying for a double scholarship in volleyball and basketball.

THE VARSITY SOCCER team opened league play against Hollister on Wednesday, Dec. 12.

The team lost its Nov. 30 opener to San Lorenzo Valley, 13-1, with Richard Julian scoring the lone Carmel goal.

The Padres went to the MTAL Jamboree in Gonzales and beat North Monterey County 2-1 before losing to Hollister, 2-0, and Palma, 2-0.

Andi Poulsen and Steve Hougard scored the Carmel goals in the North County game.

Nigel Cooper, James Lal, and captain Mark Sanford are the returning lettermen and should pace the team.

Local Sierra Club questions PG & E oil spill program

Francisco Bay, to meet any tanker over 50,000-DWT at sea and escort it to and from the mooring.

We estimated the savings to PG&E at $1.50 a barrel (the company's figure), would be $950,000 for every 90,000-DWT tanker bringing oil directly to Moss Landing from Indonesia. We now understand that the state Coastal Commission staff estimates the cost of providing an adequate tugboat from San Francisco for every visit of a large tanker to Moss Landing would be about $3,500 for the round trip, including the 24-hour layover at Moss Landing while the unloading was in progress. For the predicted 15 trips a year of 90,000-DWT tankers from Indonesia, the total cost of the tugboat precaution would be $50,000—a small fraction of the savings for a single visit. No mention is made of the tugboat proposal in the operations manual or spill plan.

2. INCLUSION OF A requirement that no connections or unloading be done at night. Sierra Club argued that night operations would be extremely hazardous because of poor visibility. The Operating Manual refers to night time as in the same category as other times of "poor visibility" such as fog or rain. It then dismisses these conditions with the blanket comment that "the use of radar reduces the risks of low visibility to absolute minimum," and goes on to say that so long as a tanker has two operable radar sets, it can enter Monterey Bay and proceed to Moss Landing regardless of visibility.

We disagree. Even if the tanker had two radar sets, as required by law, other vessels in the vicinity may have none that are operable. Incidentally, even in daylight hours the visibility of hoses on the ocean floor will be limited at best for divers who must go at least 88 feet below the surface. Powerful floodlights could hardly substitute for daylight.

3. Provisions for an alarm system loud and penetrating enough to reach every PG&E employee at the Moss Landing station.

While the spill plan and Operating Manual both indicate that the total personnel at the Moss Landing station, even during the day, is quite limited, it would be helpful if provision could be made to alert everyone (including the plant superintendent) in the event of a spill, regardless of its magnitude. No such provision appears to have been made.

4. Elimination of Condition 5 (d) under "Special Conditions," page 5 of "Staff Summary and Recommendations," since the requirement for dual radar systems on tankers went into effect June 1, 1979 under the Port and Tanker Safety Act of 1978. The commission voted not to eliminate this condition but to require it along with the three other equipment conditions which had been optional.

5. Provision for two mooring masters to be on hand when tankers between 50,000-DWT and 90,000-DWT are unloading. It is important for the mooring master to be wide awake and alert throughout the procedure. Since it would take some 25 hours (36-plus hours if there is no unloading at night) to unload a 90,000-DWT tanker, more than one mooring master should be required so that each one could rest periodically. The spill plan and Operating Manual refer repeatedly to the mooring master in the singular, so the company appears to have rejected this proposal.

6. PROVISION OF an adequately stockpiled bird-and-mammal cleaning facility at Moss Landing. In this proposal, we urged that someone from an independent organization, such as Audubon Society, be involved in monitoring the rescue training drills. The Oil Spill Contingency Plan text on pages 100-2, 3 and 4 offers an inadequate response to this proposed condition. These paragraphs appear to suggest that the state Fish and Game Department will have responsibility for clean-up of oil-fouled wildlife (both birds and mammals?), but give no specifics as to how DFG will prepare for a spill, what equipment it will have on hand, what personnel will be assigned the responsibility for wildlife cleanup and how they will be trained.

Under 501 (Government Resources) reference is made primarily to federal agency response to a major oil spill, but addresses and telephone numbers are also listed for the state Operating Authority in spill emergencies, although the nearest office of DFG mentioned is in Yountville. Equipment for spill emergencies listed in Section 503—20 to 38, includes boats, booms, skimmer, nets, lanterns, oil drums, cable cutters and anchors, but no equipment for cleanup of birds or mammals is mentioned.

7. Designation of lanes for incoming and outgoing vessels in Monterey Bay. At this time we understand there is no passageway designated for tankers to use, for example, in the kind of heavy fog so common in this area. This proposal also appears to have been ignored in the Operating Manual.

After further discussions with experienced seamen, we would like to propose that the commission include in the Operating Manual a provision that all boating movements be required to cease in Monterey Bay while a 50,000-to-90,000-DWT tanker is entering or leaving the Bay. Such a requirement is often made in marine areas where a dangerous cargo is approaching.

Seniors continue to slip in state tests

CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL seniors continued to slip in the yearly California Assessment Program tests.

Scores for local third and sixth grade students showed improvement.

The 1978-79 test scores were released at the Nov. 14 Carmel school board meeting.

They showed that 12th grade spelling scores continue to be a sore spot. District mean scores for 12th grade spelling dropped 2.2 percent last year.

YET DESPITE the continual decline from the 1975-76 level, Carmel seniors are still ranked in the top 4 percent in the California Assessment Program and the Comprehensive Tests of Basic Skills.

But according to Jim Stefen, Monterey County superintendent of schools, the ranking is "somewhat unfair."

Because the state ranking compares districts with different socio-economic factors, the statistics become misleading, he said. Students who are educationally or economically impoverished should not be compared to students who stem from wealthy or highly educated families, Stefen said.

Stefen admitted, however, that "Carmel is doing quite well. Their district holds up very well when compared to similar districts, and that's a good indicator of success."

FORTUNATELY, THE results of the two tests, which were given to students during the 1978-79 school year, are also compiled in a comparison score band, which compares school districts with similar socio-economic characteristics.

Factors that are considered are family affluence and education, and the number of minority or bilingual students in a school district.

According to Tej Pandey, a consultant for the state Department of Education, the comparison score band is a hypothetical statistic which does not actually compare any existing school districts, but rather is a "statistical principle based on probability."

Pandey said that "the state does not compute this information because percentile rankings on these scores would be statistically inaccurate."

He also added that the California Assessment Program is not "designed to compare districts to districts. It is most accurate when it compares the same district from year to year."

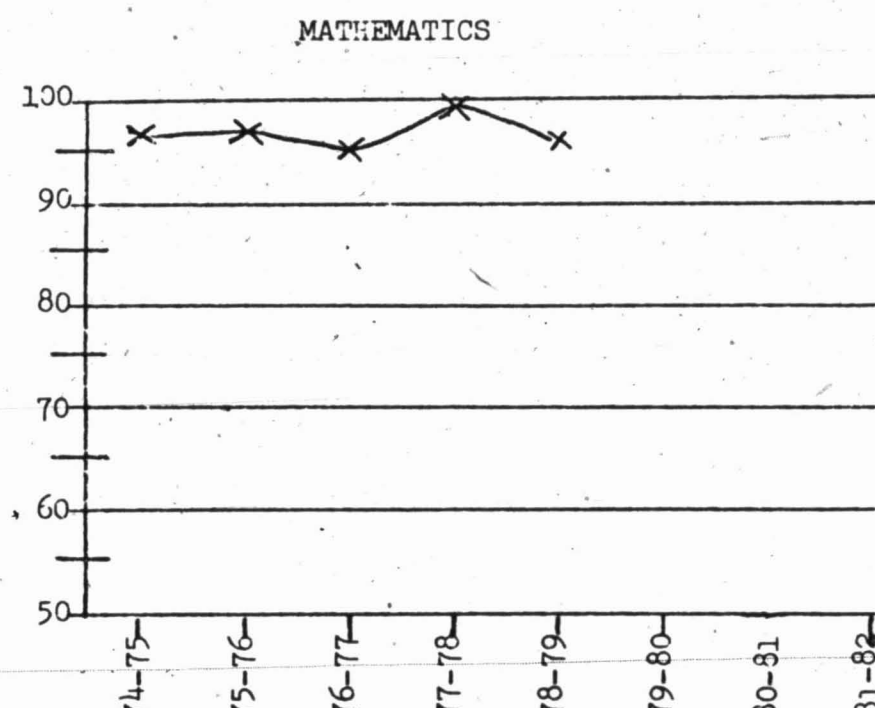

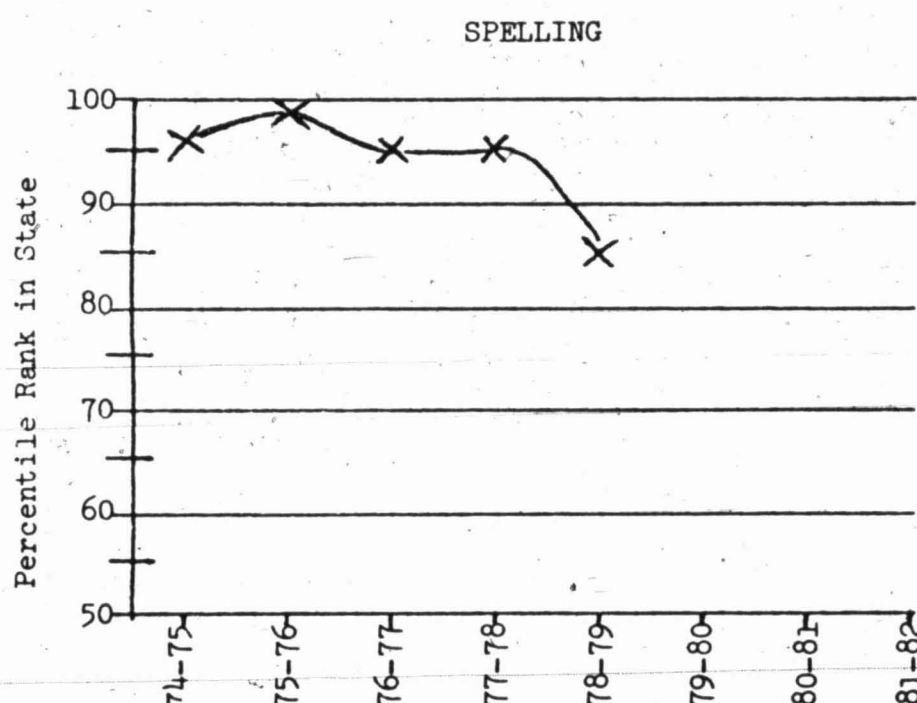

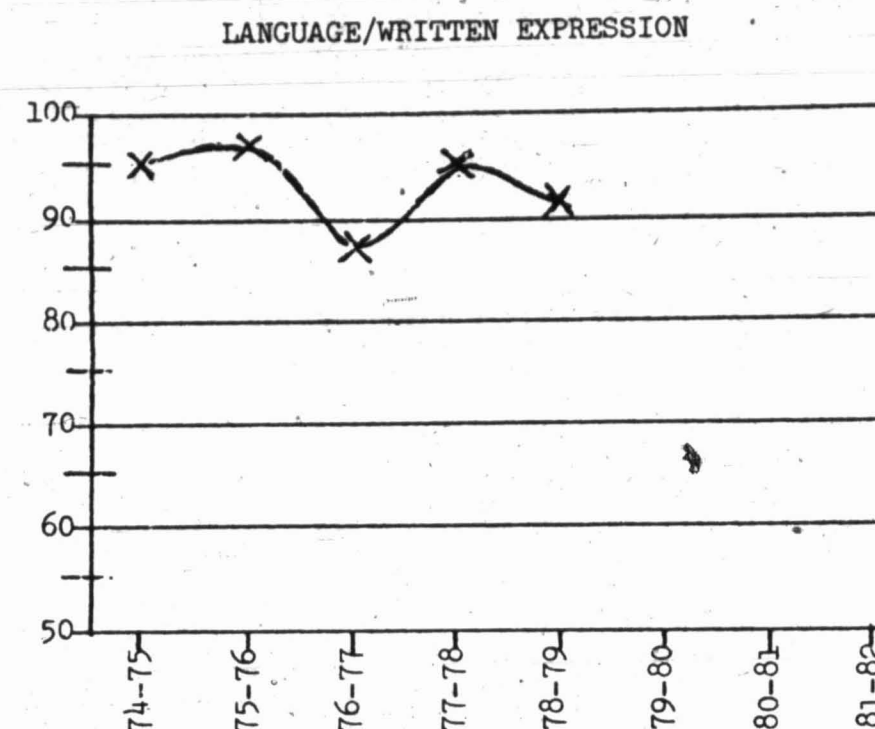

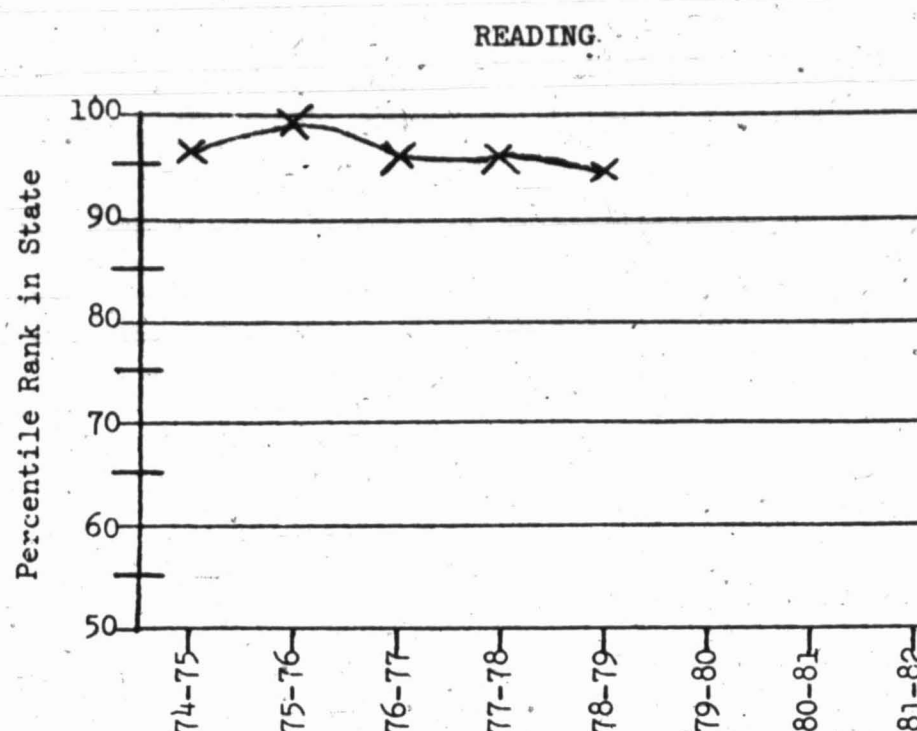

THIS OPINION WAS supported by Dr. Richard Hawkins, director of pupil personnel services for the Carmel Unified School District.

Hawkins presented the test results to the Carmel board of education at its Nov. 14 meeting.

"The assessment program's particular purpose is evaluating programs and comparing programs from year to year," Hawkins said. He stressed that each type of testing has a different purpose and that it is very important to consider the test purpose when examining test results. "It's easy to get overwhelmed or confused by the numbers, but numbers don't tell the whole picture."

Hawkins admitted that when Carmel's 1978-79 scores are compared to those of 1977-78, the district has dropped in all areas except grade six spelling and mathematics. However, he added, "if you compare the scores to two years ago, we're up on six of the nine scores, and if you compare our scores to three years ago, we're up on five areas."

Hawkins analyzed these fluctuations and cautioned the board about becoming excited over "such minor changes and decreases. Even though, compared to last year there's a slight drop in our scores, they are generally the same as they have been with one exception — 12th grade spelling, which is perhaps the only significant drop."

The 12th grade spelling score for 1977-78 was 74.3; it dropped to 70.9 last year.

HAWKINS EXPLAINED that educators are not concerned by slight increases or decreases in scores from one year to the next. Instead, he said, "They look for changes which hold true over several years and move in a continuous direction, either above or below the previous trend."

Hawkins explained to the trustees that the rate of improvement is far more important than temporary deviations.

"When we look at what's happening over the years as kids go through the system, we find a very significant fact — there's a clear and consistent growth from 6th grade to 12th grade, and it doesn't vary over the five years," Hawkins said.

He declared that Carmel's performance on the tests has improved over the years. "We can take some credit for that. Our programs are having an impact on students and raising their performance," Hawkins said.

MOST OF THE SCHOOL board members and the newly elected trustees were also pleased with the test results.

New trustees Ron Parravano and Ken White complimented the district.

Parravano said, "I'm satisfied that Carmel's schools are getting better overall. The differences between this year's score and last year's score were so diminutive that it doesn't really matter. But we have to stay on top of our programs and keep them from slipping back. We can't be complacent."

White said, "The scores tend to show that our students are improving as they go through the levels. But I think we can do better, particularly in spelling."

Newly elected trustee Barbara Sanford preferred not to comment until she had more time "to study the test results in depth."

Richard Wilsdon, who lost his re-election bid Nov. 6 after serving on the board for 12 years, was also happy with the test results: "I'm very pleased. Our scores show a consistent pattern of growth for our students."

"Of course I don't put a lot of credence in these examinations. A school district can teach the test and improve their scores. The tests are not intended to be anything more than a guide for school districts," Wilsdon said.

ALL THIRD GRADERS in California public schools were tested in reading, while sixth and 12th graders were tested in reading, spelling, written expression and mathematics.

Statewide scores for third graders have been improving steadily since testing in that grade began in 1976. The overall statewide gain in 1978-79 was .2 percent, and although that seems small, it is actually significant because the test was taken by so many thousands of students, Hawkins said.

Carmel third graders' mean reading score fell back slightly in 1978-79, from 92.0 to 91.4. But that still placed them between 90.5 and 93.2 on the comparison score band which compares only those districts with similar socio-economic background factors.

Districtwide, 67 percent of the Carmel third graders scored above the median and 33 percent scored below it.

ALL SIXTH GRADERS took the Survey of Basic Skills: Grade 6, another test developed specifically for the California Assessment Program.

The scores of California sixth grade students improved in all content areas tested: reading, written expression, spelling and mathematics.

Reading scores by Carmel sixth graders have remained consistent since 1975. In 1978-79, the district mean score was 76.6, while the comparison score band ranged from 77.8 to 81.8.

In written expression, Carmel sixth graders' mean score was 76.3 last year, a decrease from 77.0 in 1977-78. In 1976-77, the written expression score was at its lowest: 72.2. The comparison band for 1978-79 was 74.9 to 79.3.

Carmel sixth graders scored 68.2 in the spelling test, an increase from the 1977-78 score of 67.5. The comparison score for 1978-79 was 70.3 to 73.9. Over the past six years, the sixth grade spelling score was lowest in 1976-77 when it tallied 66.4.

Although local sixth grade spelling scores have increased over the past five years, Carmel is relatively low on the state ranking with a 72 percentile.

For the past two years, Carmel sixth grade math scores have increased. Last year they finished at 69.8, while the comparison score band was 6.8 to 72.6. Math scores were lowest in 1976-77 when they dipped to 66.7.

AT THE NOV. 14 school board meeting, Dr. Carl E. Wilsey, school district superintendent, cited the "back to basics" philosophy in the school district for this year's scores — even though they dropped in every area but two.

"Personally, I think the test scores reflect that this district has stressed basic education for many years and continues to emphasize basic education," Wilsey said. "We test quite high when compared to statewide norms, and we certainly test high in our own county. As you know, Carmel scored highest of all six districts in the county which are recorded on the test."

He failed to note that all of Carmel's scores — with the exception of two — decreased this year.

ALL 12th grade students took the same test that has been administered since 1974-75, the Survey of Basic Skills: Grade 12.

The statewide results show a small but continuous decline in reading performance. Spelling did not change from 1977-78, and written expression and math both showed improvement.

Hawkins explained that educators might find it difficult to interpret the ups and downs in the statewide test of high school seniors. Over the past few years, the increases in test scores have primarily shown up in the lower levels, while the high school scores have remained similar or have decreased.

Carmel's 12th graders scored lower in all areas tested this year.

Reading dropped from the 1977-78 score of 70.5 to 69.5 last year. The comparison score band was 68.7 to 71.3. Last year's score was the lowest in the past five years. In 1975-76 it was at its highest: 73.0.

WILSEY WAS CONCERNED about Carmel's low spelling scores.

"Beginning last year we began looking at some changes and some different programs to see if we could bring up our students' spelling scores," he told the trustees.

Wilsey assured the board that Carmel's teachers have not "taught the test" in the sense that they have stressed editing skills over other skills (editing skills are emphasized in the test). But since last year, Carmel teachers have "placed more attention upon editing skills, especially in the elementary levels, and that should have some impact on future test scores," he said.

Wilsey also suggested that Carmel's lower spelling scores might even be attributable to the test itself.

"The test construction companies are looking at changes in the tests themselves, feeling that there is an over-emphasis on certain skills to the exclusion of others. So we might find that the spelling tests themselves contain flaws which are partially responsible for our lower scores in spelling," he said.

IN WRITTEN EXPRESSION, the scores of Carmel seniors dropped from 68.9 in 1977-78 to 67.8 last year. The comparison score band was 68.0 to 71.0. Carmel's highest score for the past five years was 69.8 for 1975-76. Although the mean score seems low, Carmel seniors ranked in the 92 percentile statewide.

Carmel seniors slumped dramatically in spelling. They scored 70.9 last year, compared to a 74.3 the previous year. In the comparison score band — 70.7 to 73.5 — Carmel is still holding its own. Yet the Carmel seniors received their lowest state ranking in spelling: 85 percentile. In 1975-76, Carmel received 75.0.

Mathematics also dropped considerably last year, from 77.7 to 75.5. The 1977-78 score of 77.7 was the highest in the past five years. The comparison score band for last year was 70.7 to 73.5. On the statewide ranking, Carmel placed in the 96 percentile, meaning it is in the top 4 percent of the high school seniors.

OTHER STATEWIDE test performance was analyzed separately for several different groups of pupils, such as minority groups (Carmel schools registered only .5 black enrollment and 2.7 Asian or Pacific Islander).

One of the subgroup studies showed that girls scored higher than boys in reading, and boys scored higher than girls in mathematics.

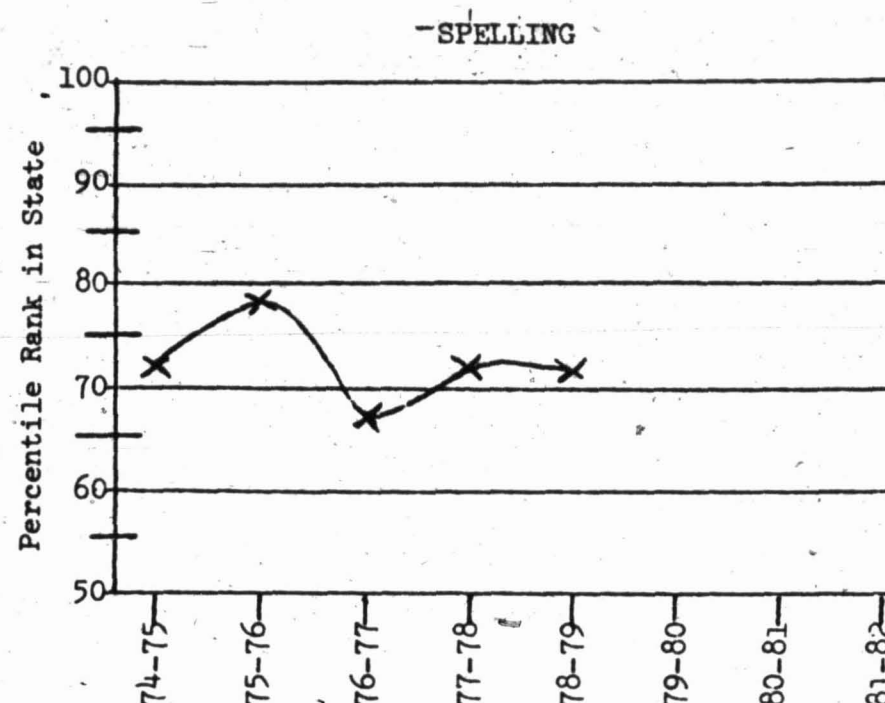

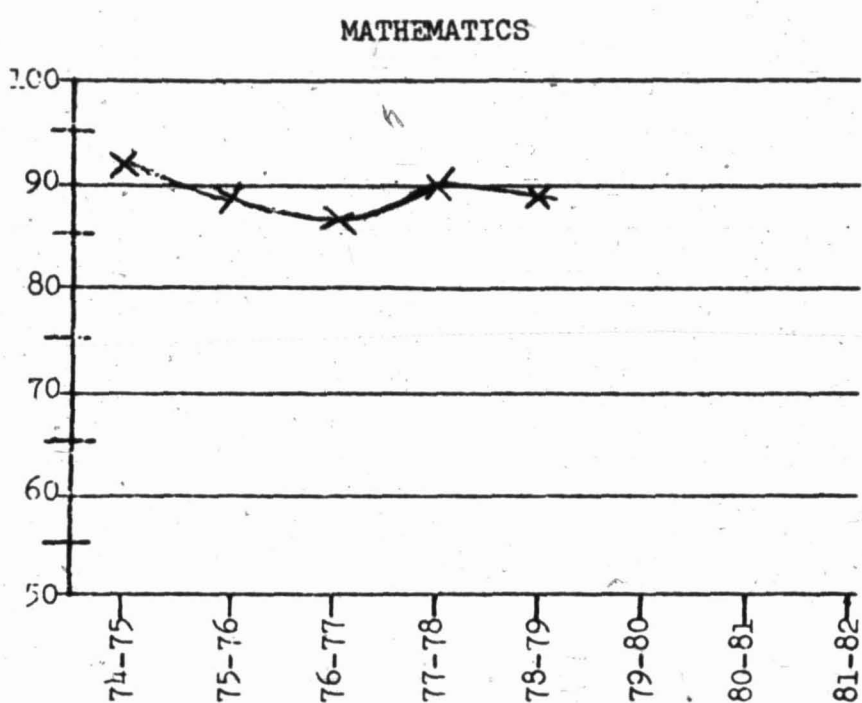

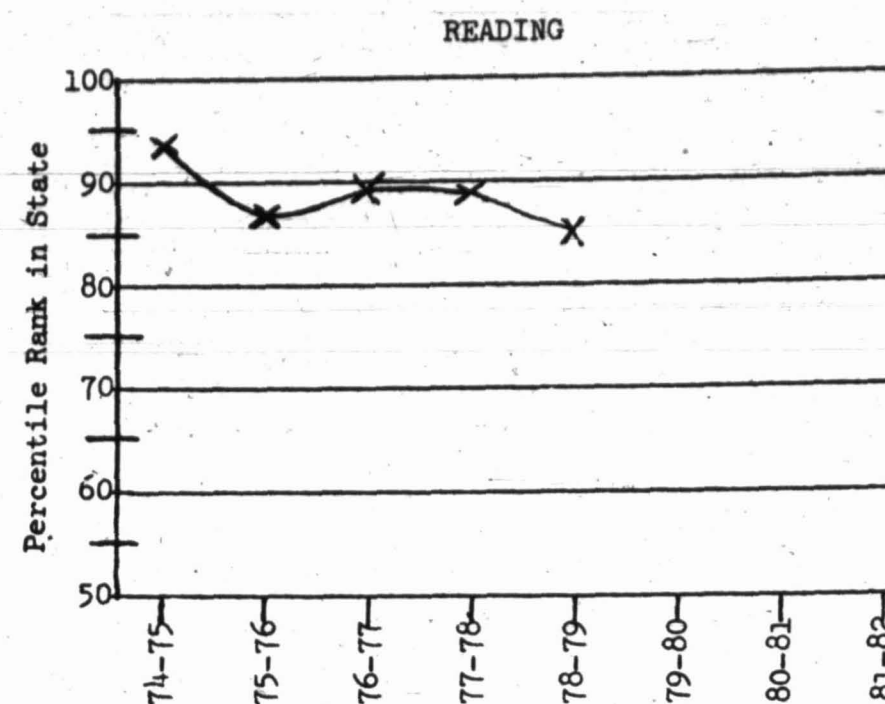

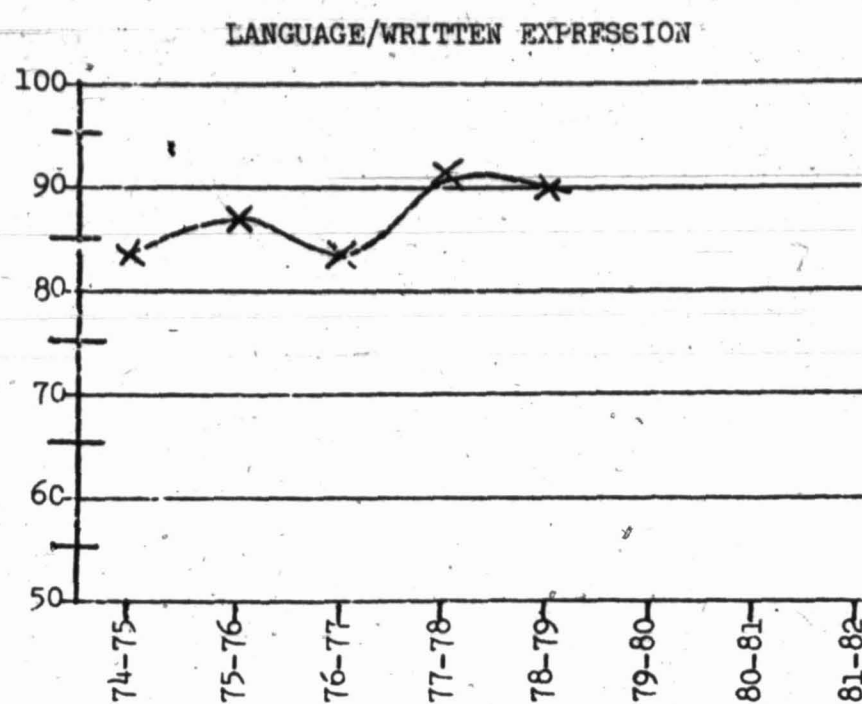

These separate studies also found substantial score differences among pupils grouped according to level of English language fluency. The highest scoring pupils were those considered fluent in English as well as in Chinese or Japanese. This group scored higher than those who spoke English only. Students who spoke limited English and another language scored substantially lower than other groups.

HAWKINS SUMMARIZED, "We should be pleased with our performance. I think our district scores are very high, particularly when compared to other districts in this state, and also compared to other comparable districts."

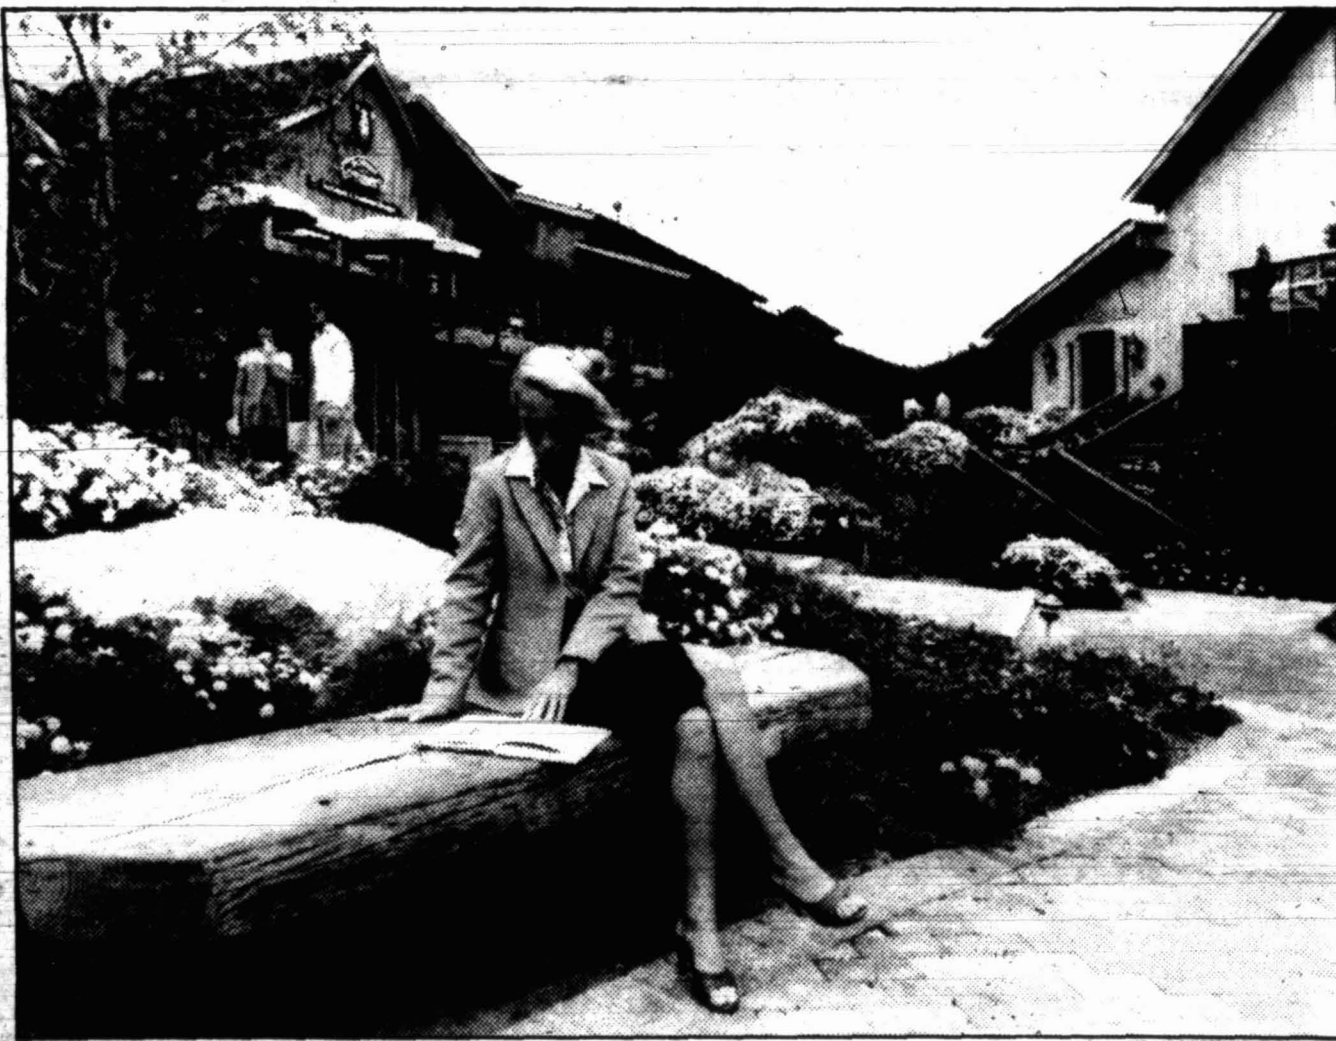

Hawkins said that the results showed a general consistency over the years.

Wilsey had some compliments for the Carmel school district: "By and large, I think our teachers ought to be commended for the fine job their doing. I think the credit goes to our staff, our teachers, and administrators — and certainly to the parents and students. In this district, a good part of our success is due to those parents who have high aspirations for their youngsters and motivate them toward high educational goals."

Businesses protest traffic plan for Carmel Center

"THIS IS NOT A proper appeal," attorney Brian Finegan charged at a hearing last week concerning the proposed expansion of the Carmel Center at the entrance to Carmel Valley.

A group of businesses appealed to the county Board of Supervisors to review approval of the 91,453-square-foot mall at Rio Road and Highway 1 to be built by Finegan's clients, Carmel Valley partners.

Wells Fargo Bank, Merrill Lynch, Inc., and Carl Patnude's Arco station are opposed to the developer's plan to partially block the intersection at Rio Road and Carmel Center Place.

The intersection could be closed by a median divider strip as part of the plan to funnel traffic into the new shopping mall by widening and improving the intersection at mid-block.

The appeal filed jointly by the firms on Oct. 29 asks that the median be eliminated because it would prevent westbound traffic on Rio Road from turning left onto Carmel Center Place to reach their businesses.

FINEGAN TOLD THE supervisors that the General Development Plan for the project was approved by the supervisors last July.

"The matter of closing the intersection with a median is up to the public works department," Finegan said. "You (the supervisors) don't have to hold up my clients on that issue."

Finegan argued that "the time to discuss this was while your board was considering the plan last July."

He questioned why the appeal had been filed months after the plan was approved. The businesses on Carmel Center Place must have been aware in July of the proposal to close the intersection, he insisted.

A delay in the project because of the late appeal would be "very material" to his clients who are now seeking tenants for the mall, Finegan said. The partners are Bud Grace of Pebble Beach and Jack Anderson of San Francisco.

OVER FINEGAN'S objections, the board continued the matter to its Dec. 18 meeting to allow the staff time to compile the project's documents.

Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck said, "I'm most sympathetic to the points from Mr. Finegan. But I have to vote for a continuance because we don't have the papers."

The appellants, represented by attorney Thomas Jamison of Monterey, requested the continuance in order to present their alternatives.

Jamison said, "We're not opposed to the project. But the median will severely restrict any access to commercial offices on Carmel Center Place."

A private traffic engineer has been employed by his clients, Jamison said, to study alternatives. The study would be completed within two weeks, he said.

JAMISON DEFENDED THE appeal, saying, "My clients were not aware of the plan in July to close the median. None of the

INTERSECTIONS THAT CURRENTLY exist on Rio Road east of Highway 1 at points A, B and D would be closed by a median divider strip, according to the expansions plan for Carmel Center. A new, larger intersection would be constructed at point C with a traffic signal and left-turn lanes. Businesses located on Carmel Center Place at the east edge of the development charge that the road plan would lead to illogical traffic patterns. They fear that it would eliminate direct access to Carmel Center Place.

general development plans show a closed median."

Finegan replied: "We've exhausted the knowledge on traffic needs in this area."

THE ALTERNATIVES already proposed by the appellants, Finegan said, were unacceptable.

He said that one alternative, to construct a driveway through the parking lot for access to Carmel Center Place would eliminate 30 parking spaces.

"A five-way intersection is totally unacceptable," Finegan said. Another suggestion would "put the entrance at the rear of the shopping center," he noted.

Public Works Director Bruce McClain said, "If the median is not constructed to close the intersection, we'd be reluctant to establish the main mid-block intersection."

McCLAIN EXPLAINED THAT there are presently three intersections along Rio Road for access into the shopping center. They are located near Highway 1, at mid-block and at Carmel Center Place. The plan calls for the intersection near Highway 1 to be closed so that traffic does not back up onto Highway 1 during peak hours.

"The existing mid-block intersection is not operable during rush hour because there isn't enough left-turn storage," McClain said. Its improvement plans include an $80,000 traffic signal, paid for by the developer, and longer left-turn lanes to provide controlled traffic flow.

McClain said that leaving open the intersection at Carmel Center Place would impede the usefulness of the major mid-block intersection.

CITY CONNIVES WITH SANTA CLAUS

Santa Claus will be ably assisted in Carmel on Christmas Eve by a committee appointed by the mayor. That Santa Claus may not be hampered in his business activities by any stock market reverses, the City Council has awarded him $50 from the general fund. Santa Claus' pack will be overflowing with gifts contributed by the people of Carmel for every boy and girl in the village.

The reception for Santa Claus will take place on the night before Christmas at an hour to be set later. Which brings us to the matter of song and the Christmas carols. At the Christmas tree in the center of Ocean and Junipero, we will all unkink the rusty parts of our voices and creak into songs. The music will be given to us on nice pieces of white paper or will be recited come-as-catch-can.

FIRST RAINS SOOTHE LONG DROUGHT

Carmel's first rainfall of the season — the first that amounted to anything — pattered on the dusty streets of the village on Monday, returned again Tuesday and, early Wednesday evening started falling for the third time this week. Over .10 of an inch was recorded for the storm before the rainfall Wednesday. Last September an autumn shower totaled .01 of an inch.

It was rain doubly welcome for ranchers in Carmel Valley, who have been the first to feel the long drought. And it was a welcome change to everyone in the village after months of dry weather.

DOWNTOWN WILL HAVE NEW FACE

If present construction plans are carried through the appearance of the Ocean Avenue business section in Carmel will change materially in the not far distant future. R.C. De Yoe will shortly call for bids for construction of a two-story Spanish styled building of an estimated value of $30,000 on the corner of Dolores on the south side of Ocean Avenue.

Philip Wilson, Sr. has tentative plans for another structure measuring 90 feet on the west side of Dolores between Ocean and Sixth.

De Yoe's project will replace the present quarters occupied by a meat market, clothing shop and beauty parlor. The latter two will be included in the new building.

ANOTHER STEP OF PROGRESS (EDITORIAL)

People in Carmel are making out applications for gas service to be supplied in due time by the Pacific Gas and Electric Company for heating and cooking. Thus another of the advantages of modern civilization comes to us.

Before Fred Leidig ever went into the business of supplying fuel, Carmel's inhabitants had primeval ways of keeping warm. Driftwood, manzanita roots and the dead wood of the forests, gathered by the householder or bought at his door from boys seeking pocket money, kept the flames ablaze in the fireplaces.

Personal fuel gathering disappeared with progress and homes were served by the merchants of wood and coal. Now comes pipe service. Turn a tap and heat the home. Or let electricity and a thermometer turn the tap and be automatically warm. Natural gas has come.

MAYOR ACHIEVES PEACE ON EARTH UNTIL JAN. 19

The City Council is off the hook until after Jan. 19. At Tuesday night's public hearing, the council tabled the Red Cross' appeal of the planning commission's decision to deny them a use permit to build in the residence district.

Mrs. Walter Nielsen, chapter chairman, told the council that the Red Cross executive committee had decided they would prefer to gerrymander the two lots they have bought on the southeast corner of Eighth and Dolores streets.

At the council's hearing on whether or not the noise of operating the Foreign Car Center constitutes a nuisance, oldtimer C.A. Watson, the center's landlord, charmed everybody to pieces with his folksy ways and remember-whens and got in some good licks with his allegations that the traffic along the truck route produces more noise than the Foreign Car Center.

The mayor appointed a committee of John Chitwood and Carl Patnude to see if a compromise could be reached between the center and its neighbors.

ONE-THIRD OF CHS STUDENTS MAKE HONOR ROLL

Ninety students got their names on the Carmel High School's first quarter honor roll, which was distributed to all student body members yesterday.

The honor roll, which lists students earning a total of six points or better for the period beginning in September and ending in November comprises 30 percent of the total enrollment of 300 students.

The senior class drew the highest percentage, 35 percent, with 27 students qualifying; second were the sophomores with 22 students, 30 percent of the class; third were the juniors with 20 students, 28 percent; and the last the freshmen with 21 students, 26 percent of the class.

The show and sale of crafts was produced by more than 39 craftsmen, mostly local and from Monterey County and as far north as Albany.

chairman of the Carmel Cultural Commission; and Mrs. Ann Welchner, choir director for the Christmas in Carmel Celebration. It wasn't the song that made them laugh, only shyness at being photographed.

'Keep a Little Christmas in Your Heart'

CV man wins song writing contest

JAMES LEISY OF Carmel Valley has won the first-annual Christmas Song Competition sponsored by the Sunset Community and Cultural Center in Carmel.

Keep a Little Christmas in Your Heart, Leisy's prize-winning song, will be sung at the third annual Christmas in Carmel, a community Yuletide celebration, at Sunset Center on Saturday, Dec. 15, at 3 p.m.

Leisy's song won the $100 award from the 21 songs submitted.

Leisy seemed an appropriate winner, for his crystal blue eyes have a Santa-like twinkle, though he is far more slender than the man from the North Pole.

HE COLLABORATED on the song with Carl Eberhard of Hayward. Leisy wrote the lyrics and assisted with the melody — while Eberhard wrote the melody and assisted with the lyrics.

That's the way Leisy explained the partnership, "because neither of us like to label ourselves so narrowly."

Leisy has written more than 200 songs.

In the 1950s Rusty Draper recorded two of Leisy's tunes, It Ain't My Baby and I Ain't Gonna Rock It.

DURING THE presentation of the prize to him at Sunset Center, Leisy noted: "Carmel is one of the nicest places in the world. The community and humanistic spirit here deserves good Christmas songs."

After receiving the check and too many handshakes, Leisy said that the song is already published. "We're working on getting it recorded," he said. "We think the song will have a great life."

Leisy admitted that his brother-in-law was less optimistic about the song's future, describing it as "trite and repetitive."

But he can fall back on the fact that his song was selected from the 21 compositions by a panel of three local judges who are authorities on music. Malcolm Seagrave of Monterey is a composer whose works have been performed all over the United States. Angie Machado of Carmel, a piano teacher, has conducted choirs for Carmel Bach Festival. William Purdy is a local music instructor and conductor.

A few lines from Keep a Little Christmas in Your Heart:

*Fill your heart with Christmas cheer
Enough to last the year;
Keep a little Christmas in your heart.
Let it shine out from your face;
Make the world a brighter place.
Keep a little Christmas in your heart
Wherever you go, whatever you do. ...*

LEISY MAY ALREADY be known to many Peninsula residents. He plays trombone for a group called the Model A's, which he defines as "a second-rate roadhouse band, circa 1937."

The Model A's have appeared at the Del Monte Hyatt House, Pebble Beach Lodge, the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club and Doc Ricketts Lab in Monterey.

Leisy has a serious side as well. He's an author, playwright and publisher.

He has written several books on folk music and has also composed a musical, Scrooge, that is based on Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol. The musical has been recorded in a two-album set by Omniscience.

The Christmas in Carmel celebration starts at 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 15. Everyone is welcome and there is no charge for admission.

Holiday music of many lands will be sung by caroling choirs. Community singing by audience members is an integral part of the afternoon. A social hour will follow.

Christmas is for children too!

Old problems for new school board

Parents, teachers urge 6 periods at Middle School

A PROPOSAL TO restore the six-period day at Carmel Middle School was discussed at the Tuesday meeting of the Board of Education of the Carmel Unified School District.

Jerian R. Crosby, chairman of the Carmel Middle School Site Council, suggested that the six-period day be restored "as quickly as possible" through "redistribution of work effort" and "adjustment of priorities" among school personnel.

When Carmel Middle School adopted a five-period day at the beginning of the current school year, several Middle School teachers voiced misgivings over the proposal. William Rand, assistant superintendent for instruction and personnel, said that he and Principal Nick Nicholson had been studying the feasibility of reverting to the six-period day, but that there were staffing, scheduling, and financial ramifications that require more study.

THE BOARD POSTPONED further discussion of the six-period day until it receives the reports from the Site Councils at district schools—probably in January or February.

In other scheduled business, the board:

- Approved the name "Carmel Valley High School" for the Continuation School.
- Accepted the 1978-79 audit report, and authorized payment of $5,665 to the Carmel accounting firm of Hager, Paik, Jennings and Dunlap. Additionally, the board reviewed the request of Bruce Dunlap, representing the firm, for payment of an additional $2,500 as a result of recent State legislation requiring more detailed audit reports.

Dunlap said that the effect statewide had been to increase auditing costs several thousand dollars over pre-SB787 bids.

The board moved to seek funds for this expense from the state.

- Approved the extension of the Resource Officer Program to Carmel Middle School and elementary schools. Ray George, who in the past has worked on a variety of education and law-enforcement projects with students and faculty at Carmel High school, was granted approval to extend his activities to Carmel Middle School two days a week, and to each elementary school once or twice a year. The board requested that George report back at the end of the next semester.

- Approved a pilot P.E. Independent Study Program at Carmel Middle School. Under the pilot program, approximately 12 seventh and eighth graders will be able to participate in an independent physical education activity outside of the normal school day. The P.E. department would recommend students to the program based on skill development level, attitude, sportsmanship, dedication, motivation and interest.

- Heard from Mrs. Frances Leary, co-president of the Tulare County School Parent Club, who said that the school needs Principal Phil Smith on a full-time basis. Smith is also principal at Carmelo School.

- Heard from Dr. Carl Wilsey, school superintendent, and Rand concerning procedures for granting independent study credit to students absent from school. This program will allow the district to receive ADA (Average Daily Attendance) money from the government for those students who may be absent due to travel with parents, vacation, or other extended absence.

Under the guidelines of the independent study credit program, which is now being implemented: (1) the student's parent or guardian must contact the principal or the school's attendance office prior to the absence to request work assignments to be done while out of school; (2) a contract must be prepared, approved and signed by each teacher involved, the principal or designee, the parent and the student. Each contract will specify the work to be done, project objectives and the method of work evaluation; (3) following the return of the student, his or her work must be evaluated by the teacher to determine whether the contract has been fulfilled.

If these requirements are met, the student will be given attendance credit for the days absent.

Wilsey and Rand assured the board that the process can be accommodated on a single, simple form, and will not encumber the regular efforts of the staff. The board requested the school report on the merits of the program at the end of next semester.

- Heard from Francis Lloyd of the Friends of Carmel Unified School District (FOCUS), a group organized to raise funds for the district schools.

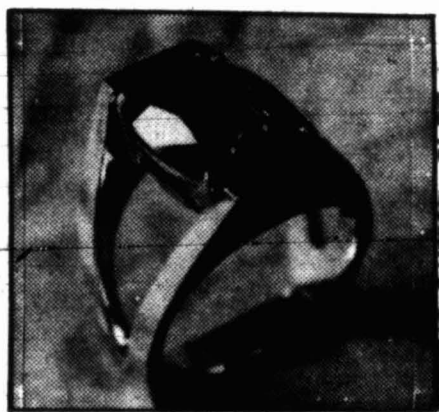

- Set 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 17, for an executive session, with a regular meeting to follow at 7:30. Topics on the agenda will include action on student discipline; undeveloped school property; the cafeteria program; the typing program; private transportation of students; scheduling of students at Carmel High School; enrollment projection for 1980-81; report on distribution of Title IVB funds, 1979-80; application for vocational education funds, 1979-80.

Cut your own Christmas tree and help the FFA

THE RICH SCENT of pine needles wafts through the air as the voices of small children declare that they have found their special Christmas tree.

A tree is felled and lovingly placed in the trunk of the family car to begin its trek home where it will be gaily decorated for the Christmas celebration.

This common sight will be repeated again and again this Christmas season at the Christmas Tree Farm in Carmel Valley owned by Carmel High School principal Dan Stevenson and cultivated by the Carmel Chapter of Future Farmers of America.

STEVENSON, WHO purchased the 2.77-acre farm from Harold Quentel, soon discovered that he did not have the time to dedicate to the trees. In June, he approached the FFA and the group eagerly took over its operation.

During the summer months, the 20 students who comprise the local chapter began caring for the trees, according to Richard Higgins, the chapter president. Under the guidance of Liz Meyenberg, the FFA adviser, the youngsters watered the acreage for six days every month until the rainy season began.

They also were seen pruning the trees to assure that the pines would be bushy by Christmas. Once the trees were trimmed, it was necessary for the students to weed between the rows. Not owning a tractor that would fit the narrow lanes, the FFA members weeded around approximately 4,000 trees by hand. Higgins said that the "long, tiring process earned them many blisters."

DURING THE FINAL two months before the Christmas season, the students spent their time after school and on weekends pruning the trees into traditional Christmas shapes.

For their efforts, the students will split the profits down the middle with Stevenson and use the proceeds to purchase livestock equipment, pay for transportation costs to attend various FFA contests and meet the expenses of two delegates who will be sent to the FFA State Convention in May at Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo.

The "cut your own" trees will be sold Monday through Friday from noon-5 p.m. and on weekends from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Sizes range from four to 10 feet in height and all sell for $15.

The tree farm is located three miles east of Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Road.

Barnyard offers free bus ride for customers

The Barnyard, in conjunction with the Monterey Peninsula Transit, is now offering a free ride special for customers to the shopping complex located at Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel.

Beginning Friday, Dec. 14 and continuing through Christmas, customers may have two free bus tickets with every purchase made at the Barnyard. Tickets will be valid for a one-way, one-zone ride on any MPT bus in regular service.

Bus service to the Barnyard is offered from 9 a.m.-2:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and all day Sundays and holidays.

Shopping with "CASS" KNICKERBOCKER

How quaint — a barn with resident craftsmen! I met a glassblower who can charm you like a flutist at the Bach Festival, except that the end product is a tangible treasure. A village blacksmith who forges his craft and sells them along with velvety-brown early American furniture! There's also a touch of the Orient with a Chinese restaurant, an Oriental antique shop and still another shop with lovely Chinese embroidery. And there is a brass shop with gleaming American and European antiques and the unique stamp and coin shop!! A must in your travels is the Santa Rosa Barn at The Barnyard, Carmel.

CATHAY OF CARMEL

Don't travel to the Orient to get the Oriental touch and the glow of Hong King. CATHAY OF CARMEL is filled with handmade embroidered jackets, robes, blouses, shawls, table cloths, napkins, placemats adorned in silk, satins and linens. Lovely Thai silk flowers decorate the shop along with pictures showing the array of Oriental styles for the four seasons. Visit and get the Oriental flair for this holiday season.

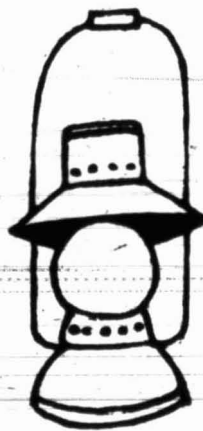

CLOUD ART GLASS

I found distinctive handblown glass by John Gerletti and Amy Roberts at CLOUD ART GLASS. Now, they put their personality and imagination into each individually designed and executed blown glass form — watch them blow on the ramp behind the barn. Everyone is invited to watch molten glass being worked, using techniques which date back to Egyptian times. All the work displayed in their gallery has been created on the premises.

BRASS OF CALIFORNIA

BRASS OF CALIFORNIA has items that are one-of-a-kind and handsome to behold. Antiques dating from the 18th Century are arriving from Europe to accent the best selection of brass available. They have lamps and chandeliers that are antique as well as some reproductions. And there is a fine selection of drawer pulls and other hardware for furniture remodeling. Brass beds of several styles also can be made to order.

ORIENTIQUE

A bit of old Kyoto. Not since the early "Fifties" have I strolled down Shinmonzen, seen the Antiqueries there. Kita-san, Yagi-san, their shops filled with treasures. And here, right in Carmel — ORIENTIQUE — looking like an old farm house, so shibui. What marvels to see... a Meiji horse, prints, hibachi, imari, lacquer and screens and scrolls.

baskets and...and furui-no mono! If you loved Kyoto, you will adore this treasure of a shop.

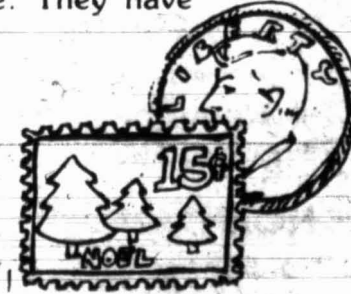

VILLAGE BLACKSMITH

At last, place your order at the BARNYARD VILLAGE BLACKSMITH for forge work, hand-wrought in the fashion of centuries ago. The shop also contains antique furnishings from America's 1800s and a fine selection for youth of little rockers, small chairs and high chairs in pine and oak with the average age of 100 years. These most sensibly priced antiques will grow in value along with the appreciation for their beauty and age — now here is an ironmonger I like!

KREMER'S SERENDIPITY

For a touch of anywhere in the world, stop at KREMER'S SERENDIPITY. This craftsman combines stamps and coins with such imagination that every gift becomes a treasure. They have value and lasting meaning with the date and place shown through the careful selection of a stamp and coin. And the finished product is a creation to fulfill individual wishes.

P.S. — If I can't find a hotel room during the busy holiday schedule, I want to sleep in the Brass Shop in that big brass bed.

P.P.S. — And this is important. The secret bamboo telegraph tells me that those wonderful folks in the Santa Rosa Barn are having a hot mulled wine "freebee" on Thursday, Dec. 20th, from 5 to 7 p.m. Go and get acquainted and tell them "Cass" sent you!

By AL EISNER

WE HAD SEVERAL entries for "Worst Joke of the Week" honors, but they were so bad that the Quidnunc decided he'd lose too many readers if he published them. So, we decided instead to publish "The Best Joke of the Week." If you don't agree with us ... well, send us a better joke and we'll send you a forest-green Pine Cone T-shirt. Also, please try to keep your remarks civil. Thanks.

Anyway, a Carmel couple was sitting around the fireplace sipping brandy after celebrating their 25th anniversary, when the wife asked: "Honey, I know you haven't thought about this, but, well ... if I should die first, would you ever remarry?"

The husband, startled, replied soothingly: "Darling, don't even give it a second thought. You're the only woman I've ever loved. I'll never remarry." He gave her a reassuring hug and peck on the cheek.

"Well, dear," she continued. "I've had to think about what I might do if you died first, and, well, to be truthful about it, I would probably get married again—provided it was just the right man, and only for companionship of course ... there will never be anyone else like you. So," she persisted, "do you still feel the same way?"

He shifted about in his chair and responded: "Well, now that you mention it, I suppose I would do the same ... but, only for companionship."

After a few moments, she asked: "If—and this is only supposition—but if you should remarry, would SHE get to wear my mink?" The reply: "Well, I suppose so ... it would only be sitting around in the closet ... yeah, I guess so."

"How about my jewels? The diamond brooch, my pearls? My bracelet? Would SHE wear those too?"

"I suppose so," the embarrassed husband answered. "I wouldn't want to sell them ... for sentimental reasons."

"Well then," she persisted, "how about the matched set of golf clubs you just bought for our anniversary. Would SHE get to use them?"

"No problem," he said. "She's left-handed."

WE REPORTED two weeks ago that Ted Leidig had "apparently" bought the Carmel Valley Inn. We couldn't confirm it at press time, because Ted took off for vacation. Well, it turns out that he has not bought the Inn. In our earlier column, we stated that Leidig had planned to remodel the property extensively, and "give Quail Lodge a run for the money." We then summed up: "It sure will be nice to have another quality motel in the Valley."

That latter statement was not meant as a slap at the present management of Carmel Valley Inn. We meant that if any new owners were to add new units and emulate Quail Lodge, another lodge rated at five stars by Mobil would be welcome in Carmel Valley.

AS LONG AS WE'RE amplifying and correcting, a retired United Airlines pilot got very upset when he read in that same column that Diane Sena, Monterey manager for United Airlines, stated that United was at a competitive disadvantage because they had to furnish three pilots on every flight.

He advises that all the major airlines require three pilots on their flights with larger aircraft. He also bristled when he read that pilots are paid $65,000 a year. Only the top pilots, he said, can earn that much, and that's only after 20 years of spotless service.

Sunset Views:

Enthusiastic community interest expected for 'Christmas in Carmel' celebration

By RICHARD TYLER

TWO YEARS AGO Christmas in Carmel was initiated and the community involved itself enthusiastically in this generous activity of neighborliness. On Saturday, Dec. 15, the third annual Christmas in Carmel celebration will take place at Sunset Center at 3 p.m. The program will be the same as in previous years with the choirs of the community churches joining together to sing with the audience the carols of many lands.

This year the children's choir of the Church of the Wayfarer lead by Ann Welchner, who will also be the mistress of ceremonies, will sing some favorite carols. The adult choir will be lead by Caterina Micieli; the invocation will be given by the Rev. William Welch of Carmel Presbyterian Church. Richard Bragg will be at the piano, and Richard Lewitzke will be doing his usual stint as Santa Claus (in a new outfit). Our mayor, Gunnar Norberg, will welcome one and all.

An added feature this year will be the performance of a new Christmas carol, the winner of the first competition in Carmel. There were 21 entries from all over the Monterey Peninsula and the winning carol, Keep a Little Christmas in Your Heart, was submitted by James Liesy and Carm Eberhard of Carmel Valley.

Making their usual generous contribution, the Kiwanis will supply the Christmas tree; the Lions will make available the candy that Santa Claus will distribute to the children; and the Rotary will pay for all the music used in the performance. You will find the words for the songs in the Pine Cone, another contribution.

All the bakeries have offered to contribute cookies for the sweet table after the sing-along and you are urged to bring your favorite cookie or Christmas cake for the table. We are also asking those who attend to bring an item of canned goods or a toy, with the age and sex of the child for whom it is intended, to be placed under the Christmas tree in the lobby of the theater for the Community Christmas Bureau which will then be distributed by the Salvation Army.

There are areas in which individuals as well as organizations can help make this year's program a greater success. We will need volunteers to pick up and deliver packages to the Center, to collect articles to put under the tree, and to help our older citizens attend the program.

We would be most grateful for any contribution of time or effort or monies that you can offer to this community project. Call the Center, 624-3996, or Mrs. Fran Gorey, 624-7329, if you would like to volunteer. Help Christmas in Carmel be a very special event.

THE BROWN BAG Cinema will present two outstanding feature films, The Sun Watchers and Music to Live By on Thursday, Dec. 20, at 1 p.m., in the Leonard Carpenter Hall.

To photograph the sun's normal and unusual activities for The Sun Watchers, photographers traveled to the world's major solar observatories. Here noted scientists discuss the sun's future and how its future will affect the earth.

Relying on striking visuals and an enormous variety of music, the compelling film, Music to Live By, demonstrates how organized sounds are so deeply intertwined with our lives. Music from all periods and cultures is used: rock, calypso, oriental, religious, jazz, folk, and opera to show the universal need for musical expression and its adaptability into many forms.

Each segment of the film makes clear that music in itself is neither sacred nor profane, that its meaning is an individual one to be found in the heart and the ear of the listener. Music To Live By dwells on the concept of sound organized and written down to be played again, an idea peculiar to Western music alone and from which grew music composed exclusively for listening.

Bring a brown bag lunch and join us. Sunset Center provides the coffee. Lunch is enjoyed on the terrace on fine days and in the Chapman Room when weather is inclement. At 1 p.m., all move to the Leonard Carpenter Hall for about one hour of films. All of the movies have been carefully selected. Here is an opportunity to revive an old-fashioned spirit of community and neighborliness. A chance to renew old friendships and make new ones. To share a meal. Come at noon — share food and fellowship and then enjoy both a learning and entertainment experience. No reservations or tickets are required.

EACH YEAR the Forestry Department of the city of Carmel provides pine boughs to the community. These pine boughs for trimming are available again this year and can be obtained at the south end of the upper parking lot at Sunset Center at San Carlos and 10th Street.

In 1976, one-time Sunset Center director, Frank Riley, asked Carmel artist, Irene Lagorio, if she would like to prepare an exhibition of her art for display in Sunset Center. Irene Lagorio agreed to do so but stipulated that the exhibition not be another of the type that is so prevalent in almost every Carmel gallery, i.e., still life, views of the Monterey Peninsula pines, etc. Miss Lagorio preferred instead to prepare an exhibition that would be relevant to what happens at the Sunset Center and would be informative to the public.

To this end Irene Lagorio decided to concentrate on the Sunset Theater as a theme for an exhibition and to visualize the theme with a series of humorous studies of the performers and stage personnel as seen during specific performances at Sunset Center.

To make these drawings Irene Lagorio went backstage during certain performances, of attended rehearsals, or sat in the audience and made sketches of the performers. Then she returned to her studio and made up the finished drawings which she presented as a gift to the city of Carmel's art collection.

This exhibit will be shown during the month of December in the Marjorie Evans Gallery which is open each weekday and on nights of performances. There is no admission charge.

The wine connoisseur

Nouveau idea catching on among American wine bibbers

By ROBERT LAWRENCE BALZER

THOUGH THE TUMULT and shouting about the Beaujolais Nouveau of 1979 have somewhat died down on both sides of the Atlantic, there is reason for a few more ripples of enthusiastic commentary. The idea of celebrating an indigenous bounty in wine is not only good for France but for California as well.

By French tradition, Nov. 15 has long been the date for the beginning of "the great Beaujolais race" when by truck, ship and plane, casks and bottles of the first wine to emerge from the new vintage are raced to Paris, Lyon, London and now New York and Los Angeles.

Banners fly outside the zinc-topped bistros of Paris proclaiming "Le Beaujolais nouveau est arrive!" The wine is poured from casks into pitchers from the stroke of midnight Nov. 14, and the celebration goes on for 24 hours.

This year, there was particularly good news to celebrate in France because the price of the 1979 Nouveau, after an enormous and good harvest, was 10 to 15 percent below the less-than-ample '78 vintage. Furthermore, the wine was substantially better.

So that Americans could begin the celebrations simultaneously, the French government relaxed its restrictions on shipping, allowing some wine to be shipped by air as early as Nov. 12, but with the stipulation that none be sold until Nov. 15.

IT'S EASY TO SAY that all this brouhaha is much ado about nothing, for the unfinished wine which is a quaffing nectar rather than a connoisseur's delight, not only will never improve, but it will fade away to an acidic ghost by April Fool's Day.

Rather it's a wine celebration to focus upon the harvest just completed, the first taste marking the long intense months of vigil from the flowering of the vines in springtime until the gathering of the grapes in the fall.

Economically, of course, much, in every wine-growing country, is riding upon the whims and caprices of Mother Nature all during those months.

LAST YEAR, JOHN Giumarra Jr., the dynamic young lawyer-turned-vintner of the Giumarra Vineyards of Edison, Calif., in the San Joaquin Valley, put action to his belief that California ought to have a nationwide celebration of its own indigenous wine bounty, in the same way that the French celebrate the Beaujolais nouveau on Nov. 15.

For the beginning of such a tradition he arranged a special luncheon at Ma Maison in Beverly Hills. Guests were treated to the first tasting of Giumarra Vineyards 1978 Gamay Beaujolais Nouveau.

This year he moved the primary focus to Gordon's Restaurant in Chicago, where Gordon Sinclair combined both French and California nouveau wines on Nov. 15, a Chateau Trel Beaujolais Nouveau having been hand-carried on the Concorde SST from Paris to New York, and thence to Chicago, because that super-jet does not carry freight.

We previewed the Giumarra Vineyards wine and can vouch for its fresh, berry fragrance, but congratulate Giumarra even more on the fact that this year 50 restaurants joined in the traditional celebration with GV wine on Nov. 15.

SEBASTIANI VINEYARDS of Sonoma were perhaps the earliest of the California wineries to latch on to the nouveau fervor, beginning its own celebrations in 1972. This year, while the pomp and circumstance of drawing wine from a cask remains at the winery, with Knights of the Vine in full regalia heralding the wine with a corps of bugles and drums, stewardesses from both Air France and American Airlines will be on hand to take the Sebastiani 1979 Gamay Beaujolais Nouveau to their respective carriers to be flown to Paris and Washington, D.C.

For the first time this year, Rutherford Hill, the handsome Napa Valley winery, moved into the nouveau dramatics with simultaneous Nov. 15 tastings of their own 1979 Napa Valley Pinot Noir Nouveau, at Perry's in San Francisco and The Saloon in Beverly Hills.

We were on hand briefly for the latter pouring, and found the wine superbly fresh and delightful, an almost strawberry zing to the bouquet and taste. They made 1,200 cases of the wine, which will sell for about $3.95.

While it's not cold-stabilized, winemaker Phil Baxter assured me that there'd be no problem of the wine expiring before the Fourth of July. The whole batch was pre-sold from the winery before Nov. 1!

Wine merchants agree, the nouveau idea is catching on among American winebibbers.

Happily, we're not caught up in any snobbish quibbling about whether this is the same wine, from the same grape, as the French Beaujolais. We've seen not only Pinot Noir Nouveau, but Zinfandel Nouveau and Carnerian Nouveau, and wouldn't be surprised next year to find a Cabernet Nouveau appearing.

The Sebastiani Gamay Beaujolais Nouveau, which has remarkable staying powers, is 90 percent Napa Gamay, the true grape of Beaujolais, and ten percent of the vinifera titled Gamay Beaujolais, which is actually a clonal descendant of Pinot Noir. It will also be selling at retail generally for about $4.

The glorious music of Yuletide will fill the Carmel Mission Basilica when the Monterey Peninsula Choral Society presents the 17th annual Music of Christmas concerts Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 14, 15, and 16 at 8 p.m.

The popular event, which began as a single performance, has grown steadily to its three-day format and attracts listeners from throughout California. This year all three concerts are sold out.

The program will include Schubert's Mass No. 23 in B flat; three motets — Jesus, the very thought is sweet by Vittoria, Scarlatti's Taetatus sum and Quem vidistis pastores dicite by Poulenc; Command thine angel that

Its repertoire includes Mendelssohn's Elijah, Handel's Messiah, Carmine Burana by Orff and the Requiem by Brahms, Mozart and Verdi. In 1970, the symphony and choral society performed Beethoven's Missa Solemnis in the mission courtyard as part of the Monterey Bicentennial celebration before an audience of 2,700.

The mission is on Rio Road at Lasuen Drive, Carmel. For information about possible released tickets, phone 394-6351.

Yugoslavian folk dances appear Thursday

Abrasevic, an exuberant Yugoslavian folk ensemble composed of talented young dancers and acrobats, will perform native Slavic dances Thursday, Dec. 13 as part of the Festival of Dance series at Sunset Theater, Carmel. The program begins at 8 p.m.

Founded in 1905, the Conservatory Abrasevic in Belgrade has produced thousands of dancers, singers, gymnasts and instrumentalists. Named for the Yugoslav poet, Kosta Abrasevic and sponsored by the Arts Council of Belgrade, the conservatory has two purposes—to prepare its students for careers in the performing arts and perpetuate the country's diverse cultural heritage.

Often the youngsters begin training at the age of 4 and continue for 20 years or more. Admission is by audition and there are as many as three to four times the applicants as there are openings in the Conservatory. Each year, some 1,200 Yugoslav youngsters attend the performing arts center.

The Abrasevic ensembles have presented more than 10,000 performances throughout the world. Among the many awards the groups have won is the Order of Merit, First Class, presented by Yugoslavia's president, Josip Broz Tito.

Limited seating is still available. Tickets, at $5.75, may be reserved by phoning 624-3996.

Hidden Valley concert a disappointment

By SCOTT MACCLELLAND

WHILE MONTEREY'S ANNUAL Pastorela Christmas festivities raged outside its doors, Steinbeck Forum of the Monterey Conference Center witnessed another Hidden Valley Chamber Orchestra concert last Friday. Stewart Robertson conducted, Lev Rankov was solo violinist, and the concert was a disappointment.

It seemed as though something was distracting the performers.

Maestro Robertson provided clear and purposeful direction. Soloist Rankov displayed the skill and ease of his obviously excellent training. And yet the orchestra was off form much of the time, Robertson extended little expression and Rankov played the Mozart Violin Concerto No. 4 with scarcely more thought or feeling than black notes on white paper require.

IT MUST BE MENTIONED that there were some obvious deficiencies going in. The hall is itself a sound absorber. The orchestra is top-heavy with woodwinds and correspondingly thin of strings, especially the cellos and basses. The Pastorela din occasionally leaked into the hall. And the audience was too small to radiate and reflect back the sound and energy being produced on stage.

In the opening Rossini overture, La Scala di Seta, Robertson opted for a sprightly tempo that gave the reading an al dente bite. The orchestra, however, played with rough ensemble.

In the Mozart concerto violinist Rankov displayed ease and grace but little imagination. Though he has the skill and confidence for solo playing, he apparently has had little chance to assume the role. His was a concert-masterish and tidy performance, but one needing creativity and between-the-notes investigation.

THE ACOUSTIC STINGINESS of the hall and imbalance of the orchestral choirs were especially obvious in the Mendelssohn Symphony No. 4 "Italian." Conductor Robertson took a credible tempo in the first movement, but lack of resonance and weight of sound proved it to be too slow. And though the orchestra could have played it faster without difficulty, the tempo turned it into a study in guesswork. The development in particular came apart, with mismatched entrances and helter-skelter ensemble.

The succeeding movements, however, were tighter, though Robertson's direction was static and metronomic. The andante, in imitation of a Roman religious procession, did not breathe and the finale, a saltarello, was hard-driven and occasionally washed over by a hyper-loud, rushing and militant brass section.

So it is, sometimes, in music performance. It does not take many of the little things to degrade the quality of a performance. And both Robertson and the orchestra have demonstrated superior results. In any event, we can all be sure that they will not have to play another concert with the commercial racket of Monterey's Christmas celebration thumping through the wall.

THE ADVANTAGE OF a tiny audience at an MPC Music Hall concert is that one can change seats as often as is necessary to find the best sound possible. (It was in the upper back.)

The disadvantage, among others, is the peculiar psychological load the situation places on the artist (to say nothing of the college, which sponsored the event).

Fortunately the audience of 20 was in the hands of a pro. Emmy Henz-Diemand played a strong and bright recital of piano works by Debussy, Mozart and Bartok. She was both forceful and tender, reflecting years of experience, but also youthful exuberance.

Miss Henz-Diemand opening her Saturday evening concert with Debussy's Deux Arabesques played impulsively and with animation. If the first of them was not of that ethereal style of Walter Gieseking it was not lacking in joy, and in the second the pianist's fingers literally danced a refreshing flurry of sparkling notes.

In Mozart's Variations on "Ein Weib ist ein herrlich Ding" Miss Henz-Diemand achieved a romantic Schumann-like subtlety of expression that was beguiling if not in strictly classical style. In Debussy's Children's Corner she displayed a wide range of effects and no shortage of virtuosity, but a freewheeling and personal interpretation of the composer's style. The Little Shepherd, for example, was portrayed as a highly sophisticated creature.

BARTOK'S RARELY HEARD and avant-garde Improvisations, Opus 20 followed the intermission. This work is hugely complex and includes some radical devices, like tone-clusters, that were picked up by the avant-gardists of our own generation. (After the concert, Miss Henz-Diemand described the Bartok of this work as having lately discovered American Jazz.) More charming and lyrical were dances from Bartok's For Children played with wit and fancy.

Lastly was Debussy's Pour le piano. (Having arrived at a better seat for acoustics the middle and lower-middle notes of the small grand piano sounded clearly and well-articulated instead of muddy as they had before.)

The Prelude was given in a forceful and impulsive manner, the Sarabande was strong but expressive and occasionally tender, and the Toccata was a headlong flight that was brilliant and not a bit bombastic.

In her thoughts to the few who gathered around after the performance Miss Henz-Diemand spoke with excitement about music and musicians, expressing deep fascination and much favor for the works of Olivier Messiaen and John Cage. Scott MacClelland is classical music director for KWAV-FM 96.9.

Theatre review:

'A Christmas Carol' is fresh and stunning

By MARC RIVETTE

A GIANT BON-BON is being served to the Monterey Peninsula by the MPC Players for Christmas this season. Though, by this time, Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol may be old hat in your eyes, the ACT Williamson-Powers adaptation is fresh and stunning.

In the first place, the old scenery-chewing Ebenezer Scrooge is absent from this version. Instead, James Jensen plays him with a vast understanding. He has all the miser's nastiness, but he is still human. Populated by a tremendous cast—actual count, 48—this production runs smoothly from beginning to end.

The whole production is staged in approximately 90 minutes, and groups of actors and even the scenery enter and exit with practiced grace. Perhaps, due to ACT, the scenes are mounted on silent rollers or are flown down from the ceiling, allowing one unbroken flow of movement from the start. Nowhere is boredom allowed to creep in.

The dancing is without hesitation, and though it is not professional ballet, the dancers have been trained to move gracefully and convincingly. The music and singing are an asset, too, though for my taste, the latter could have been a little more muted at the times it competed with spoken lines.

ONE OF THE WONDERS of our community is the way that our native talent responds to a project such as this. This very large cast throw themselves into the production with love, and the result is exhilarating. The leading roles were all honed to a fine edge of perfection.

Coming to mind immediately are Vonn Hamilton's Bob Cratchit; J.C. Hale's and Eva Rodick's Mr. and Mrs. Fezziwig; and Michael-Tarcisus Lojovic's Marley's Ghost. His entrance, by the way, is made by descending in chains from the fly-gallery, one of the wonderful scenic effects of this presentation of a play that has become an old Christmas saw. It is this latter triteness that is carefully avoided here.

About the only carps are the props of the Christmas goose at the Cratchit's dinner, which was the funniest papier-mache bird I have ever seen. The audience responded, perhaps according to Peter DeBono's intention, with laughter. The other was the bird that Scrooge bought after his conversion by the three ghosts, which was paraded at the finale.

All in all, this is a wonderfully warming experience that should not be missed, if you are finding yourself slow in getting the Christmas spirit this year.

Fortunately, the run has been extended and the play will be staged Dec. 13-16 and again Dec. 20-22.

'Christmas in Carmel' celebration planned Saturday at Sunset

Holiday music of many lands will be sung by caroling choirs at the third annual Christmas in Carmel, a community Yuletide celebration, at Sunset Center, Carmel, on Saturday, Dec. 15 at 3 p.m. Everyone is welcome and there is no charge for admission.

Carols from Germany, France, Spain, Italy and Japan will be sung by the combined choirs of many local churches. This year the children's choir of the Church of the Wayfarer, lead by Ann Welchner, will sing favorite carols. The adult choir will be directed by Caterina Miceli and the invocation will be delivered by the Rev. William Welch of the Carmel Presbyterian Church.

Community singing by audience members is an integral part of the afternoon. The Carmel Pine Cone edition of Dec. 13 will print a number of Christmas carols to be sung. These include an original carol, Keep a Little Christmas in Your Heart, written by Carmel Valley residents James Liesy and Carl Eberhard.

A social hour will follow. Traditional holiday sweets will be served and local organizations, fraternal clubs, ethnic groups, bakeries and other businesses will provide the refreshments.

Everyone who attends is requested to bring an item of canned goods or a toy with the age and sex of the child for whom it is intended to be placed under the Christmas tree in the lobby. The Salvation Army will distribute the 'White House Years'-the memoirs of Henry Kissinger

The secret mission to China

(Editor's note: For three decades, the United States backed Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists, refusing recognition to the People's Republic of (Communist) China. Its diplomatic maneuvers managed even to keep the Peking regime out of China's United Nations seat for many years. But in 1971, President Nixon sent Henry Kissinger, his national security affairs adviser, on a secret mission to China that led to Nixon's precedent-making visit to Mao Tse-tung in 1972. Kissinger tells about it in the third of seven excerpts from his book, "White House Years."

By HENRY KISSINGER

I HAD ONE OF THE MORE painful meetings of my career on July 1, 1971. The ambassador of the Republic of China, James Shen, came to see me about preserving Taiwan's seat at the next United Nations General Assembly.

That was the very day I was due to leave on my trip to Asia for the secret rendezvous in Peking to arrange for President Nixon's visit.

I was to visit Saigon, Bangkok, and New Delhi before landing in Islamabad, capital of Pakistan and springboard to my real destination.

I had suggested that we publish a schedule that would have me in Pakistan only 48 hours, from July 8-10. Upon arrival I would plead a stomach ache. President Yahya Khan would invite me to use the presidential rest house in Nathiagali in the mountains to recover. Under this pretext I could add an extra day to my Pakistan stay and disappear for two days to Peking.

(The gods decided to punish me for human presumption; in New Delhi I developed a genuine stomach ache through which I had to suffer in secret lest I ruin my credibility when we reached Pakistan.)

During the course of his dinner in my honor Yahya began implementing our plan. My stomach ache became a topic of general conversation. He urged loudly that I repair to Nathiagali.

AT 3:30 IN THE MORNING of July 9 I arose in the state guest house in Islamabad and had an early breakfast. A Boeing 707 of Pakistani International Airlines was waiting at the military side of the airport, piloted by Yahya's personal pilot.

At 8 a.m. on July 9, while I was already approaching Peking, a dummy motorcade proceeded without me on the three-hour, 50-mile journey to Nathiagali. At 9 a.m. the next day (when I had already been in Peking nearly 24 hours), Halperin phoned Islamabad from Nathiagali to say that I needed an extra day's rest and to cancel my appointments.

At a military airport at the outskirts of Peking we were greeted by Marshal Yeh Chien-ying, one of the most senior members of the Chinese Politburo and vice chairman of the military affairs committee; Huang Hua, recently appointed ambassador to Canada (later China's first U.N. ambassador and later still foreign minister); Han Hsu, acting chief of protocol (later deputy chief of the Chinese liaison office in Washington); and another interpreter, Chi Ch'ao-chu, who had studied chemistry at Harvard and since gone on to better things.

Chou En-lai arrived. I greeted him at the door of the guest house and ostentatiously stuck out my hand. Chou gave me a quick smile and took it. It was the first step in putting the legacy of the past behind us.

(The slight of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' refusal to shake Chou En-lai's hand at the 1954 Geneva Conference on Indochina had not been forgotten.)

CHOU EN-LAI was one of the two or three most impressive men I have ever met. Urbane, infinitely patient, extraordinarily intelligent, subtle, he moved through our discussions with an easy grace that penetrated to the essence of our new relationship as if there were no sensible alternative.

KISSINGER VISITS the Great Wall on his second trip to China in October 1971. His missions to China in 1971 led to Nixon's precedent-making visit to Mao Tse-tung in 1972.

The talks between Chou and me were longer and deeper than with any other leader I met during my public service, except possibly Egypt's Anwar Sadat.

Chou spent some time in our first meeting (on July 9), which lasted nearly seven hours (including dinner), expressing his general agreement with the concepts outlined by Nixon in a speech in Kansas City on July 6. This put me at some disadvantage since I was unaware of either the fact or the content of the speech, proving that even the most meticulous preparation is prey to the accidental.

The next morning Chou characteristically had his own marked-up copy of the English text delivered with my breakfast, with a request to return it since it was his only copy. It turned out to be extemporaneous remarks made by the president to a meeting of Midwestern news media executives.

Huang Hua had a draft communique. In best Middle Kingdom tradition it suggested that Nixon had solicited an invitation to Peking. The purpose was stated to be a discussion of Taiwan as a prelude to the normalization of relations. I rejected both propositions.

Huang Hua suggested that we put aside the drafting and each tell the other frankly what his needs were.

On July 11, Huang Hua presented a draft so close to our needs that we could accept it with a change of only one word. Indeed, it was fortunate that I suggested the Chinese submit their version first; it was better for us than our own.

The return flight to Pakistan seemed much shorter than the journey to Peking. By 6 p.m., we were back in our own plane, heading west to Paris.

ALL ATTENTION IN PARIS focused on Vietnam. I had a secret meeting with the North Vietnamese; it turned out to be the most hopeful I had had. For some weeks we thought that we might have simultaneous breakthroughs toward peace in Vietnam and toward China.

That evening I dined in a restaurant. A vacationing American woman came up and chided me in a loud voice: It was a disgrace for me to be in a restaurant with a young lady when I should be working for peace.

ON THE THIRD ANNIVERSARY of Richard Nixon's inauguration day we were in the thick of planning an event nobody imagined possible in 1969: the visit of a U.S. president to Peking.

We arrived in Peking Monday, Feb. 21. The ever-present Chinese crowds were held back in the side streets as our motorcade swept through the square; past the red walls of the Forbidden City on one side, the massive, squat Great Hall of the People on the other; huge portraits of Marx, Engels, Lenin and Stalin (surely one of the last of Stalin to be on display anywhere in the world); and on to the state guest houses located around the old Imperial Fishing Lake.

We had just finished an opulent lunch when I was told that Chou En-lai needed to see me urgently in the reception room. Without the usual banter he said: "Chairman Mao would like to see the president."

Mao Tse-tung, the ruler whose life had been dedicated to overturning the values, the structure, and the appearance of traditional China, lived in fact in the Imperial City, as withdrawn and mysterious even as the emperors he disdained. Nobody ever had a scheduled appointment; one was admitted to a presence, not invited to a governmental authority.

I SAW MAO FIVE times. On each occasion I was summoned suddenly, just as Nixon was. On one of my visits Mao expressed an interest in meeting my wife, Nancy. The fact that she was shopping presented no obstacle to our hosts. She was hustled out of a shop by a protocol officer who seemed to know exactly where she was and brought to Mao's presence.

Except for the suddenness of the summons there was no ceremony. Mao just stood there, surrounded by books, tall and powerfully built for a Chinese. I have met no one, with the possible exception of Charles de Gaulle, who so distilled raw, concentrated willpower.

He greeted Nixon with his characteristic sidewise glance. "Our common old friend, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, doesn't approve of this," he joked, taking Nixon's hand in both his own and welcoming him with great cordiality.

AMIDST THE TEASING, the jokes, the light repartee, one had to pay attention, for Mao was putting forward major points in a manner deliberately offhand so that failure of the Nixon visit would not involve a loss of face. He delicately placed the issue of Taiwan on a subsidiary level, choosing to treat it as a relatively minor internal Chinese dispute; he did not even mention our military presence there.

"This issue (Taiwan) is not an important one. The issue of the international situation is an important one ... the small issue is Taiwan, the big issue is the world."

What concerned Mao then, and even more fully when I saw him later alone at greater length, was the international context—that is, the Soviet Union.

I participated in none of the sight-seeing. I had seen the landmarks on my two previous visits. I therefore used the time to negotiate the communique with Deputy Foreign Minister Ch'iao Kuan-hua.

From all accounts Nixon's sight-seeing proceeded according to scenario. "This is a great wall," said Nixon to the assembled press at the Great Wall, placing his seal of approval on one of mankind's most impressive creations.

After my many trips, the banquets, the toasts, the music, have become commonplace, but I confess that when on this first occasion the Chinese premier began circling the tables to toast each American member of the official party individually, to the strains of America the Beautiful played by musicians of an army with which two decades before we had been at war, I was deeply moved.

In any event, when Richard Nixon could quote Mao Tse-tung to support American foreign policy on Washington's birthday, a diplomatic revolution had clearly taken place.

Backgammon

By OMAR SHARIF

It is Black's turn to roll. Should he double?

ANSWER TO BACKGAMMON PROBLEM

Handling the doubling cube is the secret of modern backgammon. Here's a simple position, where each side has nine men and it is Black's turn. Should he increase the stake?

Add one man to each side and the answer would be a definite "no." Black rates to roll a 1 some time in the next five rolls, and that would cost him a full roll, whereas White is sure to be off in five rolls.

However, the fact that each has only nine men changes matters considerably. White will still be off in five rolls, but now Black can roll two 1's and still be off in five rolls. In spite of that, I feel that a double in this position would be a trifle premature. If I were White, I would accept.

Possession of the cube is an important consideration—Black should not cede it to his opponent too early. The danger is that Black might roll a few low numbers at his next couple of turns and develop a second gap. With five rolls still to play, that could cost him the game. A few bad rolls and White could be in a position to redouble and Black will have to concede the game.

That doesn't mean I wouldn't double at all—I would only wait one roll. If on this roll I cleared off at least one man from the 4-point, I would double at my next turn. With only four rolls left in the game, the chances of anything bad happening have been greatly reduced.

The doubling cube is a powerful weapon. Don't hand it over to the opponent if you are going to be staring down its barrel in a move or two.

Small paintings in Carmel exhibit

Small Paintings for Christmas by Mrs. "B," a collection of primitive-style oils that present an imaginative view of America's past, may be viewed through December at Miner's Gallery Americana, Lincoln and Sixth, Carmel.

Mrs. "B," a pseudonym for Mary Ann Baker, attended the California College of Arts and Crafts and has been an established professional artist for 20 years.

While researching names in an old Bible, Mrs. "B" discovered her family could be traced to the Revolutionary War.

Exposed to a rich background of American heritage, she began painting with a blend of primitive and contemporary techniques. Colorful pictures of church gatherings, cultivated fields, turn-of-the-century beach resorts, picnics and New England winters have been captured in Mrs. "B's" imaginative views of yesteryears.

Her works may be viewed at Miner's Gallery Americana daily from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. For more information, phone 624-5071.

Beach House Beautiful

In all of Carmel, there are only 8 houses that directly front the beach with no streets, no heavy foliage, no high dunes to separate them from the surf. This one, about a half block south of Ocean Avenue, has only a charming Oriental garden to interrupt its intimate concourse with the sea.

The approach is off Scenic Drive, a long straight drive that brings you to the angular structure so naturally fitted to its setting. You arrive on the second level, an intricate blending of great living room, elevated dining room, ingeniously designed kitchen and breakfast alcove, smart powder room — all linked to the ocean and its ever changing views through endless floor to ceiling windows.

All is white about you: white walls, off-white carpeting — a perfect contrast for the stretches of white sand just outside and the limitless blue sea and sky. There are touches of gold: the frame around the flush living room fireplace. Crystal: the lovely dining room chandelier. Dark accents: random oak flooring at the entrance, dark window frames, dark railing encircling the corner deck off living and dining rooms. Recessed ceilings in these two rooms, and a luminous ceiling above the kitchen. Touches — thoughtful, memorable touches.

A staircase descends in two flights from the living room past a light well to the lower floor. Here the great master bedroom, with its own fireplace, spans the seaward side and opens to views of Pescadero Point, Stillwater Cove; endless sand and sea, and Point Lobos. Even the master bath, with oversize stall shower, sunken tub and double sinks, looks to the ocean.

Back along a closet-lined corridor are the lovely guest bedroom, a second complete bath, and an irregular-shaped den or playroom, all with ocean views. There's even an outside shower with blue tiled walls to welcome you back from the beach. And an intercom system with stations inside and out.

The house was designed by Paul Davis about 3 years ago. It's spotless, beautiful, restful, carefree, a unique experience. If you love the sea and respect it, you'll be safe here and endlessly entertained. $725,000.

Traditional Red Cross Christmas blood drive Dec. 21

The traditional Christmas blood drive of the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross will be Friday, Dec. 21, from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn on Rio Road and Highway 1.

A light lunch will be served and information about transportation may be obtained by phoning 624-6921.

"This holiday time is ad-mitedly one of the most difficult for everyone—donors and volunteers alike," noted Marylou Root, blood services chairman. "However, it is also a time of greatly increased blood needs. So we have traditionally taken on this date, the Friday before Christmas, and we have always come through. We try to give 100 units.

"Carmel and Carmel Valley donors seem to take a special pride in giving this unique Christmas gift—and we sense a wonderful spirit among the participants during the whole day."

She said that the bloodmobile in September in Carmel resulted in 85 units, "an excellent showing."

Those who cannot donate on Dec. 21 can make their Christmas donation at the Red Cross/Community Hospital Blood Bank, Mrs. Root said. Phone 625-4811 to make an appointment.

The public works department also announced that its 25th annual tree giveaway is scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 22, from 8 a.m. to noon at the Carmel Post Office parking lot at Fifth and Dolores.

Over 5,00 bare-root seedlings of Douglas fir, cypress and Monterey pine will be given away in the city's annual effort to keep Carmel stocked with beautiful trees.

Christmas Gifts 1979

Many Christmas gift ideas at Birkenstock

There are many Christmas gift ideas at Birkenstock Footprints in the Paseo San Carlos, San Carlos and Seventh in Carmel.

In addition to the well-known Birkenstock sandals, there is a special "bargain Birkenstock" with a synthetic top, specially designed by Birkenstock for the thrifty shopper.

You will also find the Shaki shoe, as featured recently in New West magazine. These are fashioned after Birkenstocks but have a closed toe and heel. They are available for men and women and provide true comfort in a casual walking shoe.

Shoppers at Birkenstock Footprints should be sure to see a sandal described as "tiny little fingers massaging your foot"—the Noppy. This massage sandal is great to wear around the house, or as a bath sandal. It is excellent for foot circulation!

More than shoes meet the eye in this Carmel store. There are beautiful socks from all over, including a good selection of natural fibre socks in wool and cotton. Among the wools are some from Afghanistan and Portugal.

Every accessory that Birkenstock makes can also be found here. These include cleaners and brushes and a full line of insoles to place in your regular shoes. These have the same contour and footbed as Birkenstocks and can transform any closed shoe or boot into something special.

Repair or refurbishing of old Birkenstock shoes is another gift available here. Or how about a gift certificate for any Birkenstock sandal as a sure-to-please gift!

Evening clothes just right for holiday parties are offered by Coover Clothing Company, located in The Barnyard, Carmel. A combination of styling, beautiful fabrics and brilliant colors makes these fashions truly exciting.

The popular Chinese influence is evident in silk brocade evening jackets sold separately or to go with silk brocade pants. For a different look, but just as elegant, there are beautiful evening clothes from Italy by Nimmina. Or for the ultimate in glamor, what could be more welcome than a black satin theater suit with matching bustier? This one-piece look under a jacket will be outstanding in any gathering.

Silk dresses and silk crepe de chine skirts with matching blouses combine rich fabrics and rich shades of magenta, fuschia, purple and shocking pink.

For the special accessory to go with any of these lovely outfits, you'll find hand-beaded belts and feather combs for the hair, among other distinctive items.

An annual Christmas feature at Coover Clothing Company is "Men's Nights Only" on Dec. 13 and 20, from 6 to 8 p.m. There will be informal modeling for the men in attendance, and special gift wrapping services for their purchases.

What better gift for Christmas than a signed, limited edition print by a favorite artist from Miner's Gallery Americana, Lincoln and Sixth, Carmel?

Prints of original works by award-winning artists are produced by Gallery Americana Publications. Among the works offered are Memory Valley, a super-realistic painting by Jean-Pierre Trevor; Maurice Harvey's Their Last Day, an ideal print for train buffs, and Carmel Mission; Pebble Beach, a seascape by Rosemary Miner; and From High Country, a Western landscape by Peter McIntyre; Floral Shadows by Andre Gisson; Gary Swanson's Lion Family and Leopard; children's artist Helen Caswell's Reflections; and the majestic Golden Gate Regatta by Jack Laycox are among the collection of lifetime gifts at Gallery Americana.

IT'S CHRISTMAS YEAR 'ROUND at Every Day is Christmas in Carmel Plaza where shelves are decked with thousands of wonderful and whimsical Christmas ornaments. In addition, scented candles, lovely holiday serving trays, pitchers, glasses, and candy dishes and wreaths are sure to charm even Scrooge into the Christmas spirit.

Original ideas at Brown's Barn

Original gift ideas from Brown's Barn in Carmel Plaza are handwoven, suede-trimmed capes with matching handbags and Icelandic sweaters knitted with the purest wools.

A Brown's Barn exclusive are the Uruguayan sweaters woven in the softest and brightest shades by their South American creators.

A super gift is a fashionable velvet jacket or skirt and vest trimmed with ribbon.

Especially appropriate for Christmas giving are the plaques made by the Benedictine Monks at Valeremo. These include Noah's Ark, St. Francis and the Monterey Peninsula's own Father Serra.

Ideas for stocking stuffers include tea cosies, kitchen witches, Dutch bottle scrapers, imported combs, or a Swedish tasting spoon for hungry cooks—all waiting for you at Brown's Barn.

Treat your feet to Phillip Rowe shoes

Treat your feet — or someone else's — to a gift from Phillip Rowe shoes! A visit to the store at the corner of San Carlos and Ocean and you will be surprised by the number of choices offered.

Many kinds of footwear are featured in this Carmel establishment, ranging from the very informal to the very dressy. Both men and women of any age are sure to find something to please.

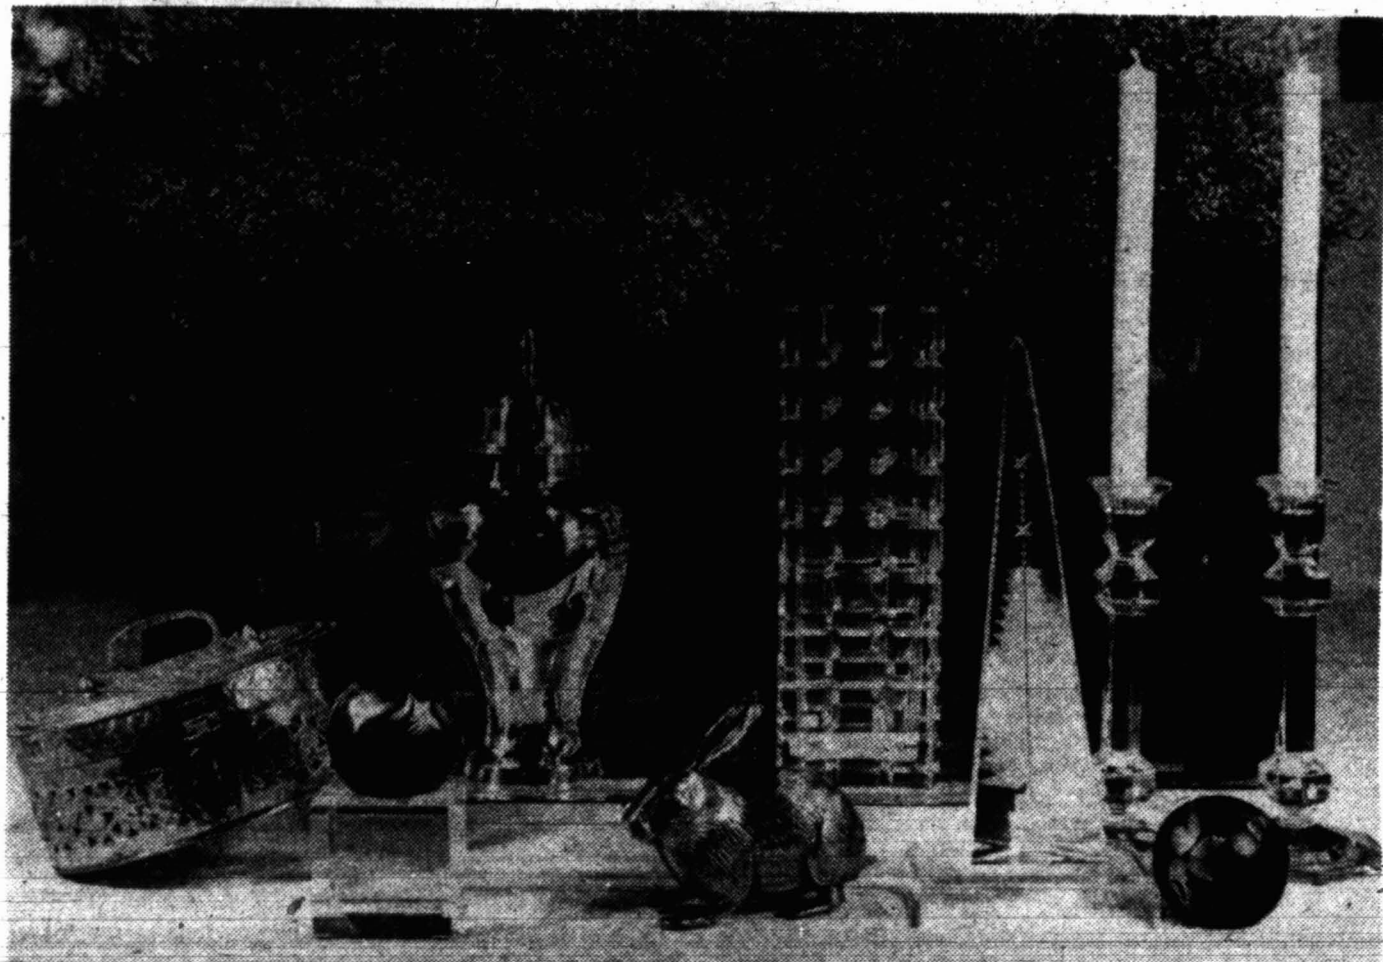

At the informal end of the scale is the popular Western look. Boots for women and Western clogs for both men and women are available in a variety of styles and prices. There is also the Cherokee line of soft-soled casual shoes. The variety of heel heights will interest younger shoppers as well as older.

Making a transition from the informal to the dressier shoe are moccasins imported from Italy under the Phillip Rowe label. Basically, they are comfortable walking shoes, but with a flair that suggests less casual use too. Also transitional are the casual flats to dressier heels available from Beene Bag; these are perfect for the women on your list.

Especially for men, there is a complete selection of After Hours casual shoes by Johnson and Murphy. You'll also want to see the classic penny loafers from Bostonian and other casuals by Rockport and Topsiders.

If you think the classic look is regaining popularity, you are so right! To prove that point and to conclude your shopping at Phillip Rowe, you won't want to miss the classic saddle oxfords from Walk-Over.

GIFT IDEAS ABOUND AT Glass and Brass located in the new Alvarado Mall, adjacent to the Doubletree Inn, Monterey. Displays of PANCALDI IS THE name of holiday fashion at Boutique Antoinette in the Doubletree Shopping Mall, 2 Portola Plaza, Monterey. The designer has created a two-piece all-wool navy suit with a casual jacket and leg-lengthening slit and two-toned classic pumps to match. The velour felt hat by Lancelot will be a feather in your Christmas cap.

Brilliant colors await

There are at least three major categories of gifts awaiting the Christmas shopper at Mark Fenwick, on the Ocean Avenue level of Carmel Plaza. All of them testify to the fact that jewel-tone colors are the fashion statement for the season.

First, there is a large assortment of blouses and shirts in silk and silklike fabrics. The look and feel of silk can be had in crepe de chine, broadcloth or the wonderfully practical polyester crepe de chine; it's hard to tell the difference. And the colors! Brilliant is the right word.

A second group of gifts is one that always seems to make a hit at Christmas time — sweaters. Mark Fenwick has them in fur blends and angoras soft as a kiss. Sweaters come in many different styles in brilliant colors of jade, magenta, turquoise and red.

Very versatile are the new colorful blazers. Wearable all year, they are especially attractive with holiday dresses or long skirts for special parties. And they are equally effective with pants, or short skirts of jeans. New this season are blazers in boucle-type fabrics in all-wools and blends. The fabric calls attention to the surface and gives the blazer a three-dimensional quality.

Pearls are the perfect accessory

Pearls are the perfect accessory for tailored suits and dresses and are an elegant partner with evening attire for the holiday party season. La Porte's Jewelry Inc., 165 Fountain Ave., Pacific Grove, presents exquisite pearls in an almost unlimited selection of colors and styles.

In addition to the traditional strands of pearls, unusual twists and chokers are finished with ornate gold or jeweled clasps. Custom-made rings, earrings and pendants mounted with gold and diamonds are created at La Porte's to precisely match the necklaces.

An extensive collection of jade in yellow, blue, rust, green and other colors set in 14-karat gold makes wonderful gifts for Christmas day.

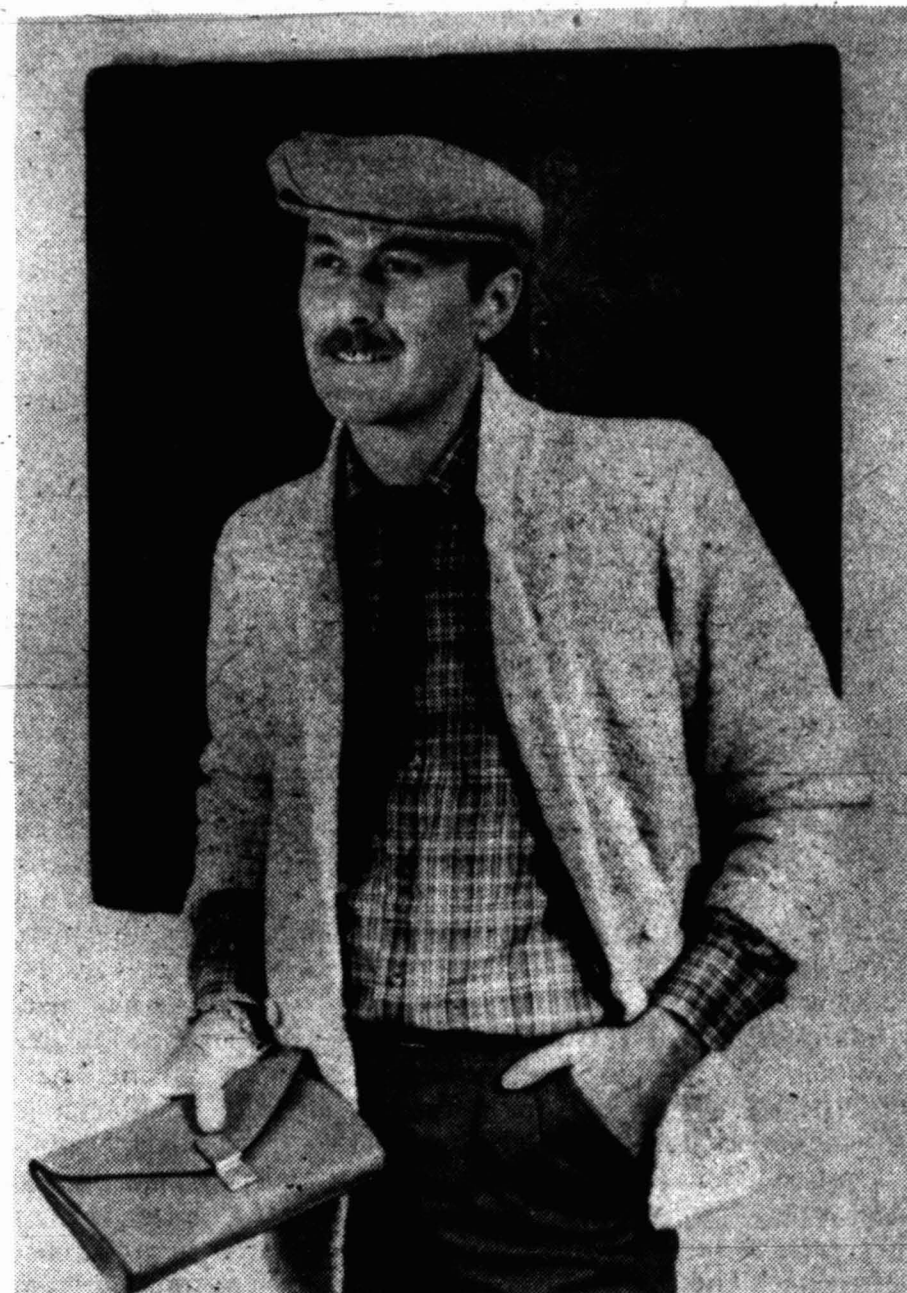

A find at La Porte's are the individual antique and estate heirlooms. Select a unique gift that will be passed on from one generation to the next, more cherished with each passing year.

Oils, photos, fibers

Oils by David Kreitzer and Helen Winslow, photographs by Alan McEwen and Charles Willis, fiber art by Lynne Willis and Kate Ross—all are works by California artists displayed at the San Carlos Gallery on San Carlos between Seventh and Eighth, Carmel, that should head your Christmas list.

In addition to the traditional pieces, the San Carlos Gallery exhibits beautiful hand-dyed scarves, and batiks dyed in the image of stained glass from the Renaissance period.

Children and adults alike are sure to be delighted with the collectors' dolls, doll furniture and stuffed toys that hold the promise of a joyful Christmas day.

GENTLEMEN'S QUARTERS in Carmel Plaza has assembled Europe's finest fashions for Christmas. That means suits and sports coats in tweeds and textures, or dress shirts, sweaters and pants by Frank Olivier of Paris and others. Gentlemen's Quarters also has a complete collection of men's accessories.

Happy Holidays!

GA haven for golfing needs

More than fine golf equipment and clothing are displayed at Pebble Beach Golf Shop, located adjacent to The Lodge at Pebble Beach. Christmas shoppers will discover that spectator sportswear, including handsome suits and coordinates are richly represented.

Classic blazers are designed by Herman Geist and Gordon of Philadelphia. The softest cashmere sweaters come from Lyle and Scott in pullovers, turtlenecks and cowls that will wear forever. And big men are not forgotten with cashmere sweaters in sizes up to triple XL.

Rich and luxurious are the suede action jackets and blazers for men and women from Brier of Amsterdam.

Golfers will find that the shop is a haven for all their sports needs—sports clothes for men and women by Lynn James, Leon Levin, Pickering, Hartog and the special Pebble Beach sportswear line are available along with top line clubs, balls, gloves, caps and shoes that are sure to take them through to the 18th green again and again.

Two additional Pebble Beach golf shops are conveniently located for shoppers and golfers alike at the Spyglass Hill Golf Course, Pebble Beach and the Old Del Monte Golf Course, 1 Old Golf Course Road, Monterey.

Leather and Christmas together at Hide Street

If both leather and Christmas are on your mind, Hide Street should be your destination—not the San Francisco street, but the fine leather-goods store in Carmel's Doud Arcade off Ocean Avenue between San Carlos and Dolores.

The range of items—and gift possibilities—at Hide Street is impressive. There are leather coats of course, for both men and women, many with the Golden Bear label, others by Crayle Carlisle. While you are in that department, notice also a unique velvet jacket for a man or a woman; with just a little imagination the styling resembles that of a baseball jacket.

Hide Street offers shoes for both men and women; the Bass line includes but is not limited to classic "penny loafers."

Go down your shopping list for the person who would like a leather handbag—domestic or imported—or a leather briefcase. Not only are there traditional briefcases for men in various sizes and styles but also a good selection designed especially for the female business person or executive.

When it comes to size, Hide Street presents the big gift—leather travel bags by Tumi or Bugatti—and the very small. Among the latter are notebooks, wallets, passport cases, cigarette cases and other items that would be most welcome in anyone's stocking.

Although most of this store's items are leather, Hide Street does carry a few other special items such as unusually attractive vinyl travel bags and some canvas sea bags.

Shoes, Shoes...

and much more

For the well-dressed woman on your list, the Village Shoe Tree on Ocean between San Carlos and Dolores in Carmel, has shoes ... and much more.

Shoe styles range from tailored street to dressy. There is a good selection from Andrew Geller. And of special interest to local women, who choose to be on foot a good deal of their time, are fine crepe-soled walking shoes.

Matching or contrasting handbags are also available. The Village Shoe Tree carries a few very special belts; one of the most interesting is a snakeskin belt from Italy.

Christmas shoppers will have an unusual treat when they visit the Village Shoe Tree this week or next: a semi-annual sale before Christmas! There is a cross-section of all the women's shoes regularly offered here. The store's usual hours prevail; 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 10 to 5 on Sunday.

WHEN SANTA IS SHORT on gift ideas he visits Carmel Plaza where he discovers a wonderful assortment of treasures for everyone on his list. Children of all ages will be delighted with educational toys, games, hobby kits, fabulous fashions, home furnishings, art, books, jewelry ...

For gentlemen with flair

If that gentleman on your holiday gift list has a flair for beautifully designed finery, you will find the New Englander on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh stocked with gentlemen's garments tailored by the world's leading designers.

A beautiful shirt by St. Piel, Yves St. Laurent, or Calvin Klein, handstitched in France, underscores a meticulously tailored McIntosh suit and, as a tasteful accent to the new holiday outfit, select a pair of all-leather Italian shoes for that certain someone.

You'll also find leather coats and jackets by Bert Paley and Scully Leathers. And for those sportier moments, The New Englander carries a complete line of sweaters, velours, and sportshirts by Lacoste. And the singular quality of all-wool slacks can be found in the Ben-Sol line.

The New Englander also invites you to take advantage of free gift wrapping for your selection.

Ornaments, gifts abound at Every Day is Christmas

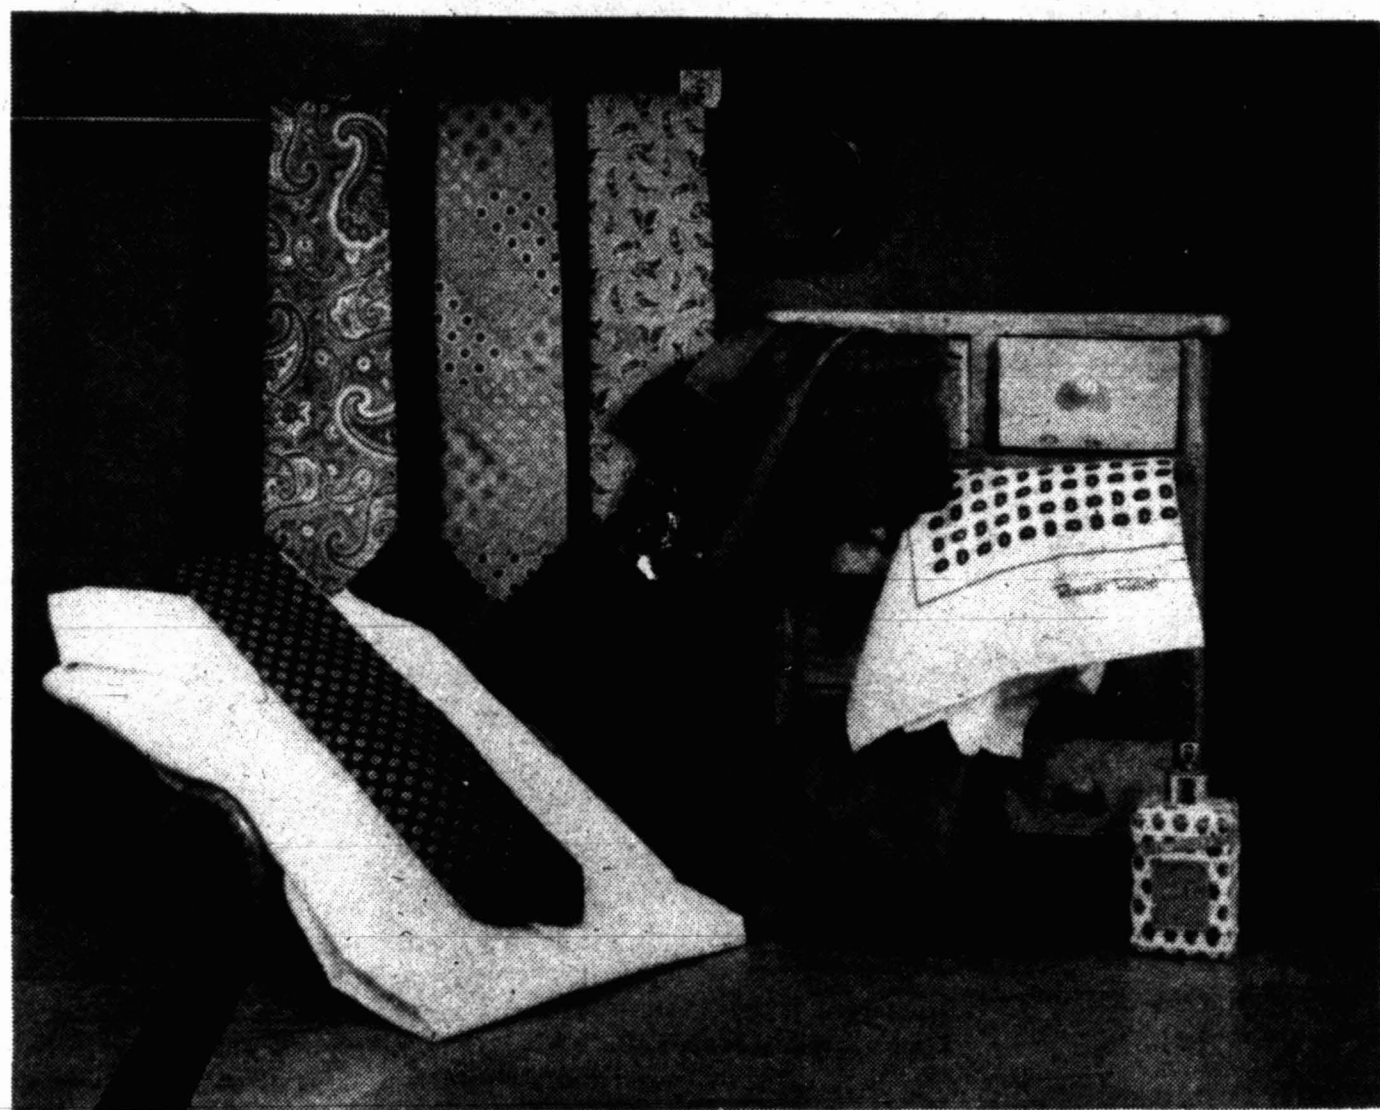

Every Day is Christmas is both the name and the theme of a shop in Carmel Plaza where decorations and gifts all focus on the Yuletide holiday.

Ornaments for small trees are a specialty here, as changing lifestyles and the high price of trees dictate the need. There are wooden miniatures from Taiwan as well as wooden ornaments newly arrived from Germany. Ornaments from Italy will dress up a tree of any size and of special interest to Carmelites are unique decoupage and dollar ornaments made by a local artist just for this store.

There is a good selection of artificial trees, ranging in size from four feet to 10 feet. The variety in lights for your tree is impressive: they come in the shape of lanterns, old-fashioned lamps, apples, poinsettias, stars and gift boxes. If you need a "skirt" for your tree or a stocking to hang from the mantle or anywhere else your ingenuity suggests, there are many to choose from at Every Day is Christmas.

Nativity scenes of all sizes in a wide range of materials—from pewter to wood—Advent calendars, nutcrackers, wooden houses and villages, all suggest that people still look for the traditional in Christmas decorations and gifts; they will find them here, as well as the new and unusual.

TWO TALBOTT TIES shops in Carmel, and one opposite The Lodge in Pebble Beach offer the finest in handmade silk neckware, imported cotton dress shirts, and men's accessories for Christmas giving. The Ocean and Monte Verde location in Carmel also displays women's accessories.

Europe's most striking fashions gathered at Gentlemen's Quarters

Designs which set the trends without defying tradition are featured at Gentlemen's Quarters in Carmel Plaza. Just in time for Christmas shoppers, Gentlemen's Quarters has gathered Europe's most striking fashions, and for 1980 that means suits and sportcoats in tweeds and textures in a smoothly tailored style that bespeaks quiet elegance.

Whether it's a Van Gils or Givenchy suit or sportcoat, a pair of distinctive dress pants, or a dress shirt, sweater, and pants outfit by Frank Olivier of Paris, Gentlemen's Quarters can attire your favorite man in a wardrobe sure to make heads turn.

Gentlemen's Quarters' full range of men's accessories offer easy decisions for Christmas gifts. Two especially attractive gift items are robes by Christian Dior and Italian velours with pants to match.

PERFECT FOR HIM AND her during cool winter months are reversible jackets from I. Magnin's in Carmel Plaza. The jacket, made of soft buttery leather on one side and trimmed with white curly lamb's wool from Sweden, may be transformed into an all-wool winter warmer.

Remember that Gentlemen's Quarters' second store, Easy Street, is located across from Carmel Plaza on Mission. At Easy Street you'll find a full line of casual wear—jeans, sweaters, velours and jackets. Either store will be pleased to gift wrap your selections upon request.

Ongoing reminders

Paintings and sculptures are especially wonderful Christmas gifts for they serve as ongoing reminders of friends and occasions.

The Highlands Gallery, located at Fern Canyon and Highway 1, Carmel, exhibits memorable works by local and nationally recognized artists.

Guaranteed to please the tastes of discerning art lovers are abstract resin pieces by Ken Wiese; woodcarvings by proprietess Jacque Colbert; copper electroplate works by Arizona artist Chris Christopherson; three dimensional fiber hangings by Sharon Wheat; and Larry Fisher's bronzes of sea life.

A colorful Christmas at Artist's Palette

Christmas is colorful at the Artist's Palette and Gallery located in The Barnyard, where you can bring out your artistic inclinations with the extensive fine art supplies offered there.

No matter what your medium, the Artist's Palette has everything you'll need—watercolors, pastels, oils, acrylics, canvas, brushes and papers. They also stock a full selection of writing utensils for anyone as expressive with words as with paints.

You can stylize your handwriting with the Palette's complete line of calligraphy supplies. The fine art of lettering—nearly as old as language itself—has regained popularity and makes for an enjoyable and practical hobby.

The Artist's Palette also has gifts galore for the young and old. Paint sets in oil, watercolor, or acrylics are popular with everyone, as are drawing sets. And when you need frames or matting, the gallery also has a large selection of styles, sizes and colors.

If you'd rather buy the finished product instead of the supplies, the Artist's Palette also shows original watercolors and prints. Whatever you need or select, you'll be treated with attentive and courteous service and, on request, your purchase will be gift wrapped without cost.

REMEMBER HER this Christmas with a diamond ring from Jewelry Design in The Barnyard, Carmel. Michael Sherman has created this 18k yellow gold ring that is crowned with a 61-point non-pareil diamond — truly a gift fit for a princess.

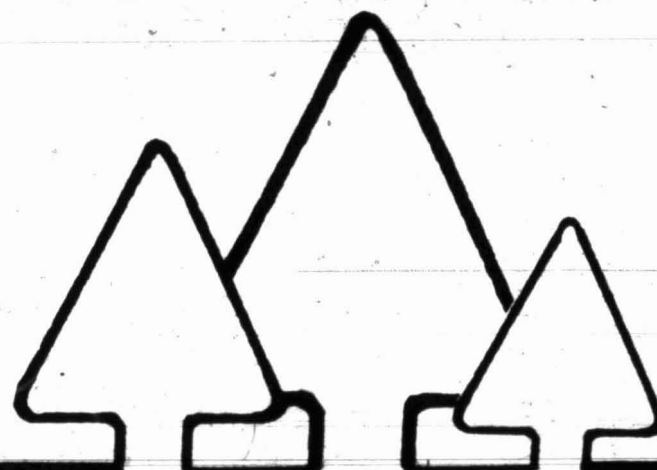

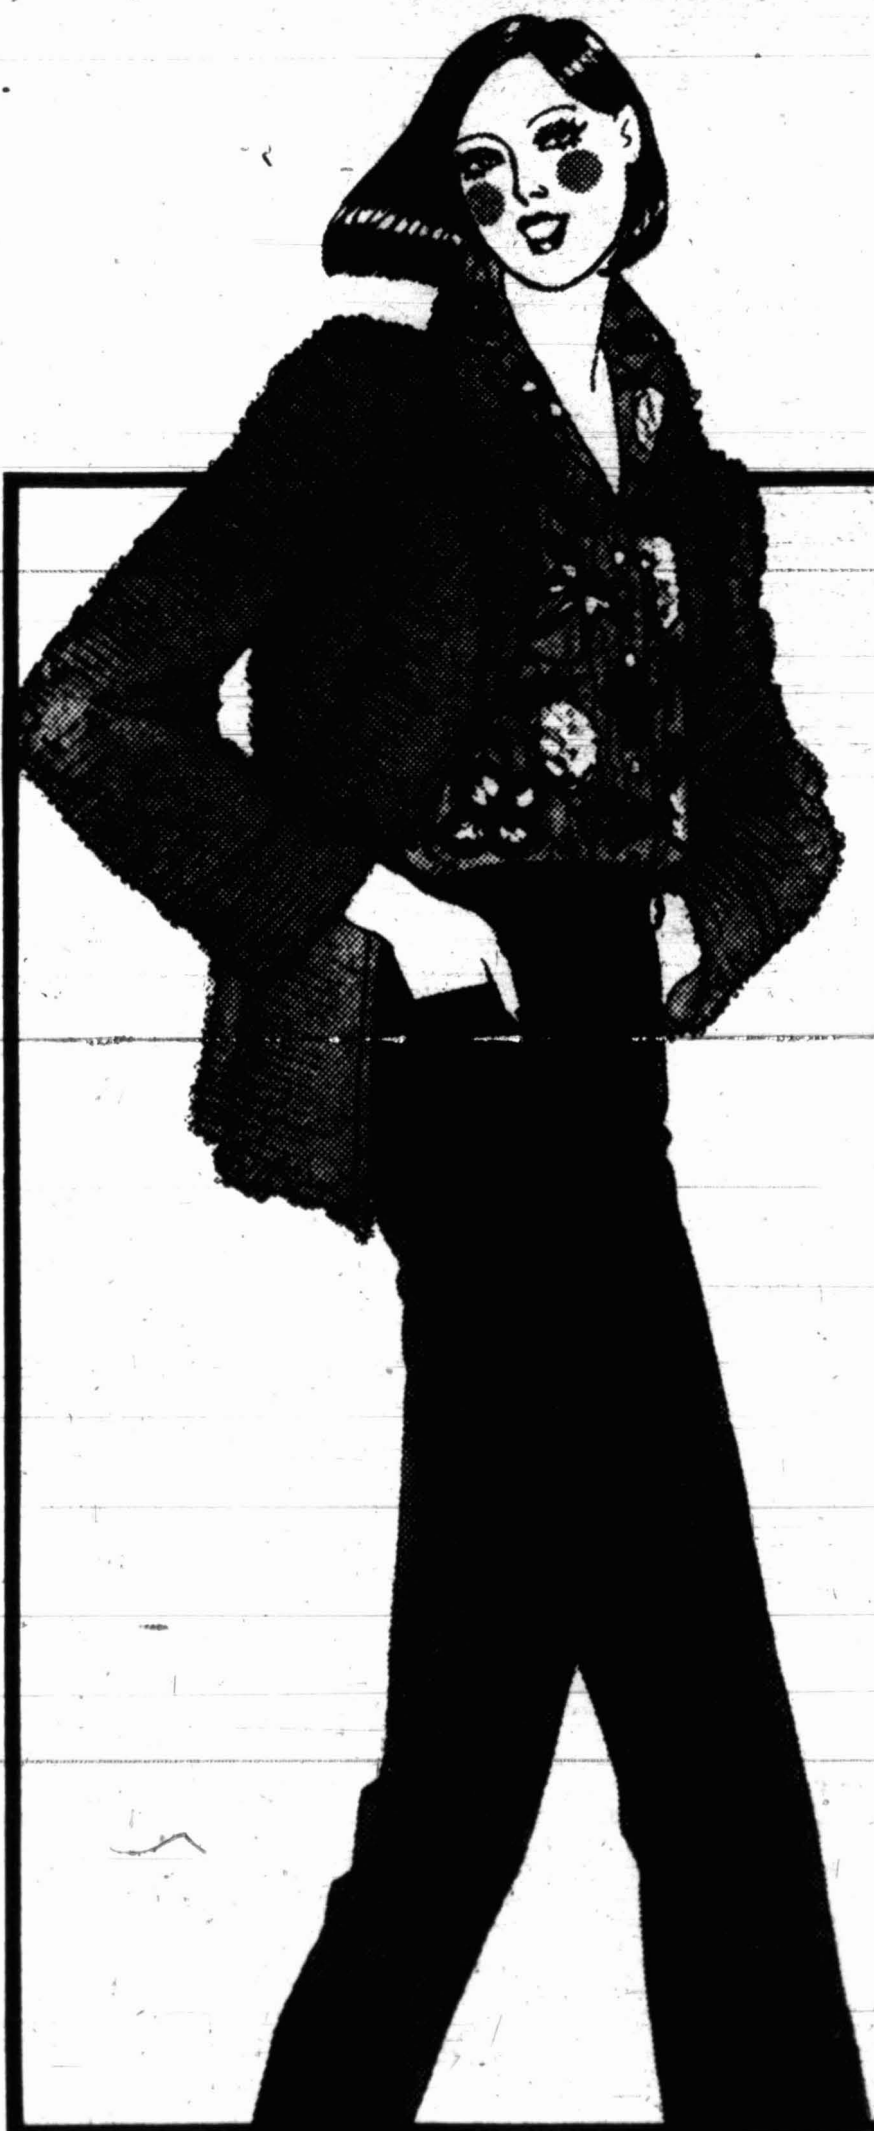

Capture delight in photographs

The delight shining in the eyes of children on Christmas morning can be captured forever by family photographs. To assure that the right camera, flashes and films are at hand, a visit to Camera Craft on Ocean between San Carlos and Dolores is a stop that should be considered a must.

The finest camera equipment, including Leica, Nikon, Minolta, Olympus, Canon and Fuji are at hand.

For neophyte photographers, small pocket Instamatics and Polaroids are guaranteed to take winning photographs.

Camera Craft also has a complete processing department as well as darkroom supplies, enlargers, lenses and all the gadgets photobugs love to find under the tree Christmas morn.

THE FLANNEL SUIT by Emilio DeParioli from Leonard's Fashions in the Doubletree Mall, Monterey, is one of the grandest Christmas gifts a man can receive. The elegantly detailed European silhouette is captured by a fully-lined, side-vented jacket and lined trousers.

The finest fabrics

At the Cotton Bale in The Barnyard, you can purchase or make your own Christmas gifts. The finest fabrics from around the world are displayed. Select the softest velvets, velours, silks, or the finest woven wools and cottons. You can also refurbish special antiques or a whole room with rich decorative fabrics for upholstery and drapes.

The season's earliest shoppers may have tablecloths, placemats or wall graphics made to order. Other holiday gift items available are wine bottle carriers, aprons, napkins and special wall graphics imported from Scandinavia. The Cotton Bale also features McCall's and Vogue sewing patterns and a complete line of sewing notions to simplify your holiday gift making.

One-of-a-kind laser art featured

The immense power of the laser beam can now be focused onto stone and glass to create art that Christmas shoppers can be assured are one-of-a-kind gifts.

This new technique has been pioneered by artist/engineer Heinz Thummel for the past 14 years. The latest innovation developed by Thummel is found exclusively at Laser Creations at the American Tin Cannery Mall in Pacific Grove.

Among the artwork the high-powered laser beam has been used to create is a replica of the Ten Commandments recreated on rock. Each hand-formed tabloid with original Hebrew characters is unique.

Some works depict historical landmarks, sea life, whimsical unicorns and the ever-popular Lone Cypress. And custom orders can be easily filled for designs of family crests, commemorative pieces, pictures of pets and personalized desk sets.

A second pioneering art form only found at Laser Creations is Laser Holography. Thummel and the artists at Laser Creations use the laser in the manner of a camera to create three-dimensional multi-colored images on glass. This technique is used for a unique collection of jewelry and photographlike images.

Total Dog is designed for doting dog owners

Total Dog in The Barnyard, Carmel, is designed just for doting dog owners, though their pets haven't been forgotten either.

Make Christmas Day special for the dog in your life with a stocking filled with good, nutritious doggy treats or a dog toy of chewable, squeakable, lovable latex that all dogs love.

Pets looking for the perfect gift for their doting owners can select sterling silver pendants and stickpins in their own image, for nearly every breed is represented.

Collector's items, including antique prints or dog portraits on postage stamps from many countries, are already framed and ready to give as a memorable gift. Another special present is a dog portrait in charcoal or sepia by a local artist who promises an excellent likeness of your pet.

Head-to-finish styling at Armand's

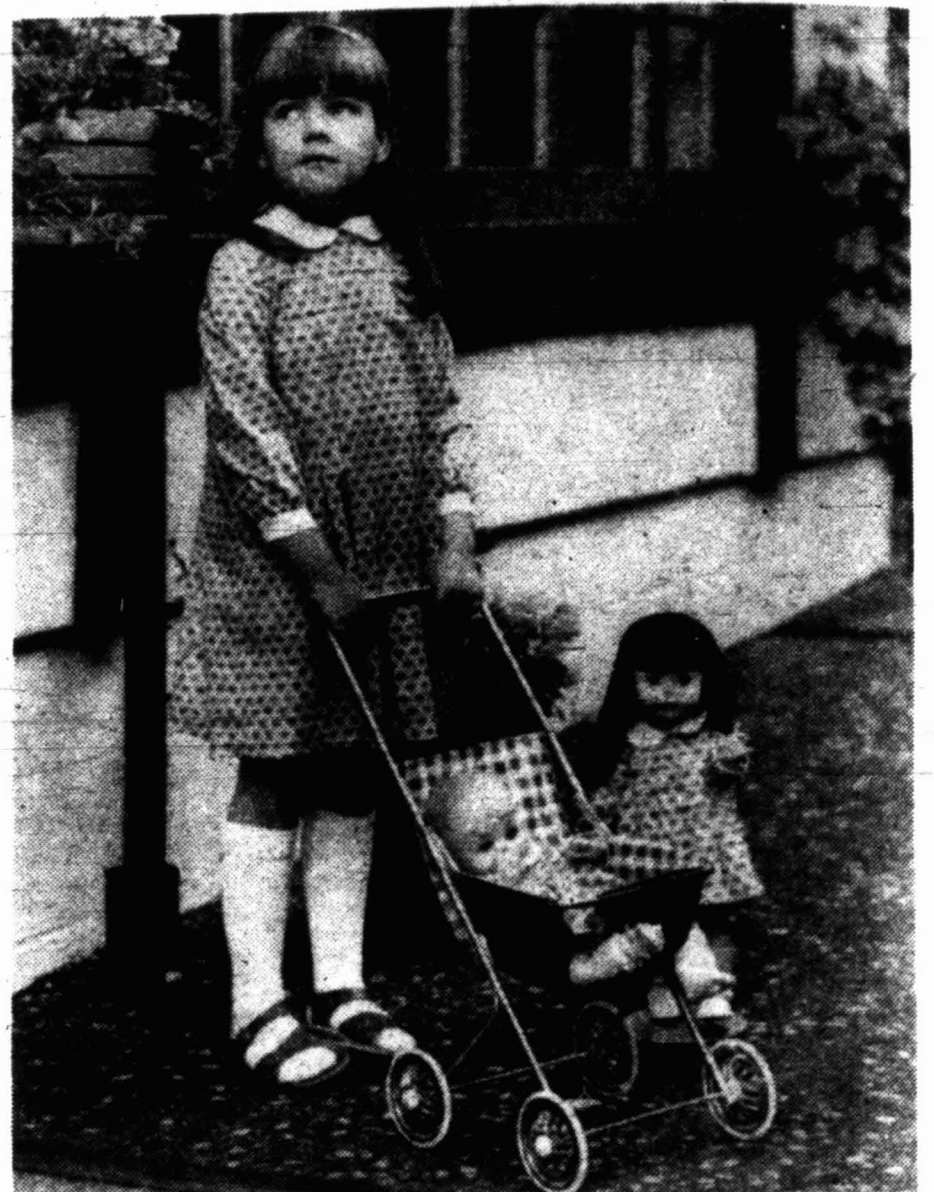

The holidays mean parties galore and the rush of Christmas gift buying. At Armand's Beauty Salon in Carmel Plaza, enjoy a respite from the hectic pace as "head-to-finish" styling, manicures, pedicures and a Swedish massage refresh the harried holiday shopper.

In the ambience of natural redwood, plants and warm, earthy tones, 10 knowledgeable stylists create hairstyles ranging from cropped to curly, pincurl to blow-dry.

Beautiful hands are promised by two manicurists, one a specialist in porcelain work, who shape and lengthen troublesome nails. A waxing service is also available to women with worrisome hair.

Tense muscles will disappear with the adept touch of a Swedish masseuse who uses a special pressure point massage technique.

In addition, gift certificates are sold at Armand's—the perfect present for the woman who wants everything.

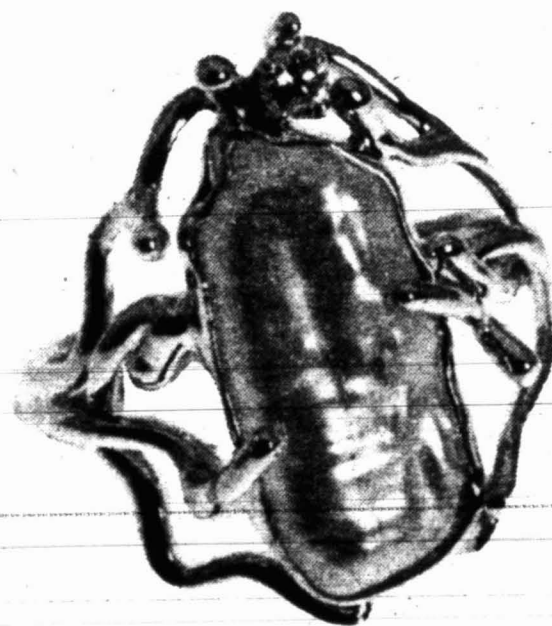

AT ROSEMARY and George, a wonderful children's store on Lincoln between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel, little girls' dresses become works of art. Hand-smocked dresses in washable cotton-polyester, gingham checked, or hand-detailed braided dresses are charmingly doubled with matching doll dresses. The adorable ensemble above is tailored from imported Swiss cotton.

Rugs for a lifetime

The largest collection of richly hued, hand-woven tribal rugs in the United States is found at Conway of Asia in the Valley Hills Shopping Center, Carmel Valley, where Christmas gifts will offer a lifetime of function and beauty.

The ancient craftsmanship and sensitivity that these creations evoke make them the supreme holiday gift. Beautifully detailed carpets that were once used as Persian prayer rugs and nomadic tribal tent hangings are just a sampling of the exotic collection.

A large selection of jewelry created by nomadic tribes includes resplendent necklaces, bracelets, pendants and earrings made of silver, coral, carnelian and lapis lazuli.

Rare and valuable carved ivory pieces from Mainland China promise a rare Christmas gift that will be forever remembered.

If a valuable carpet already decorates your home, it should be noted a special service offered by Conway of Asia is refurbishment of Persian rugs.

Jewelry is a timeless gift

The peerless and exclusive jewelry of D'lanor of Carmel in The Barnyard offers Christmas shoppers the chance to give a gift of timeless significance. Nearly all the pieces displayed in D'lanor's were designed and created right on the premises.

D'lanor's artists will also create a piece of jewelry, following any design you desire, or you may solicit painted or etched designs of jewelry, so that the piece can be crafted at a later date.

Besides the dynamic styling of D'lanor's custom-made jewelry, there is also a selection of lovely Italian gold chains, or unique gifts in the form of mineral specimens and fossils gathered from around the world.

D'lanor of Carmel offers a complete repair and appraisal service, and anything you select for the holiday season will be gift wrapped at your request.

A HOME FILLED WITH MUSIC captures the true spirit of Yuletide and Abinante Music Store, 425 Alvarado St., Monterey offers pianos and organs in the finest tradition. Pictured is a Mason and Hamlin Conventional Grand made of dark-hued ebony.

Exquisite glass, brass

Christmas shoppers at Glass and Brass, 220 Alvarado Mall in Monterey, are treated like the very special guests they are! As they browse among the home accessories, brass and crystal items, they can enjoy delicious treats including champagne, homemade cookies and cake.

Shoppers should notice among the many exquisite paperweights a crystal paperweight with a cypress tree theme; this is a great favorite among local buyers. It was designed by Glass and Brass and produced in Austria just for this shop.

For a personalized gift, the shopper may want to order a monogrammed glass box from among the many different designs and sizes.

At any time of the year, Glass and Brass provides free gift wrapping and free delivery on the Monterey Peninsula; this is a special boon during the busy Christmas season.

High fashion jewel designs

Classic design in fine jewelry is as timeless as Christmas at Henri Corbat Swiss Jewelers. Located at San Carlos and Fifth, Carmel and in The Lodge at Pebble Beach, Corbat offers a striking array of high fashion designs for the holidays and year-round enjoyment.

As a member of the American Gem Society, Henri Corbat provides complete gemological services to test and appraise precious stones. And, Henri Corbat manufactures and designs nearly all the jewelry shown in his elegant shops, accepts custom orders and rejuvenates precious heirlooms.

Subdued elegance is captured in the exquisite designs inspired by nature. Brooches made of jewel-studded 18-karat gold are created in the images of delicate hummingbirds, bees and butterflies.

Henri Corbat designs fine gold settings for beautiful gemstones ranging from fiery rubies to nonpareil diamonds. In addition to its inherent beauty and desirability, fine jewelry by Henry Corbat is also a living investment and heirloom-to-be.

Special stocking stuffers

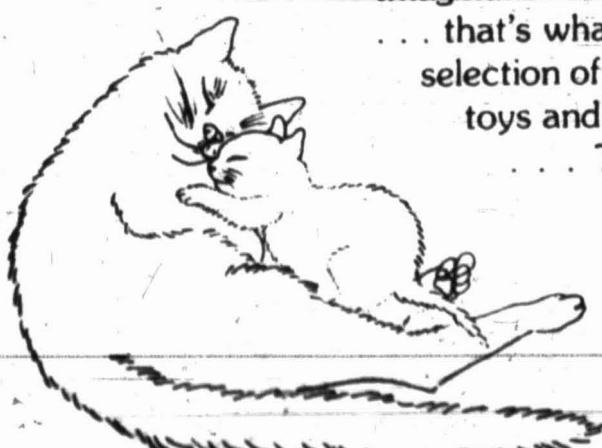

If you are looking for "stuffers" for a very special stocking, a good place to start is Fads and Yarns, Del Monte Center, Monterey. Small gift items in counted cross, such as metal pillboxes or stamp dispensers, would be a good selection.

Definitely for Christmas are larger items including tree ornaments in needlepoint and crewel, Christmas latchhook rugs and tree skirts. There are latchhook pillow kits with a Christmas theme; start one now and have it ready for next year!

Rug and pillow kits with designs for any time of the year would also make excellent gifts.

New owner, Kay Lewis, who worked at Fads and Yarns for three years before buying the store, offers gift wrapping and mailing services on all purchases.

Everything for the golfer

It will be a "green" Christmas for the lucky golfer who receives a gift from the Village Golf Shop in Del Dono Court, Dolores and Fifth, Carmel. When you enter this quaint shop, it's easy to understand why the owner says he stocks "everything for the golfer."

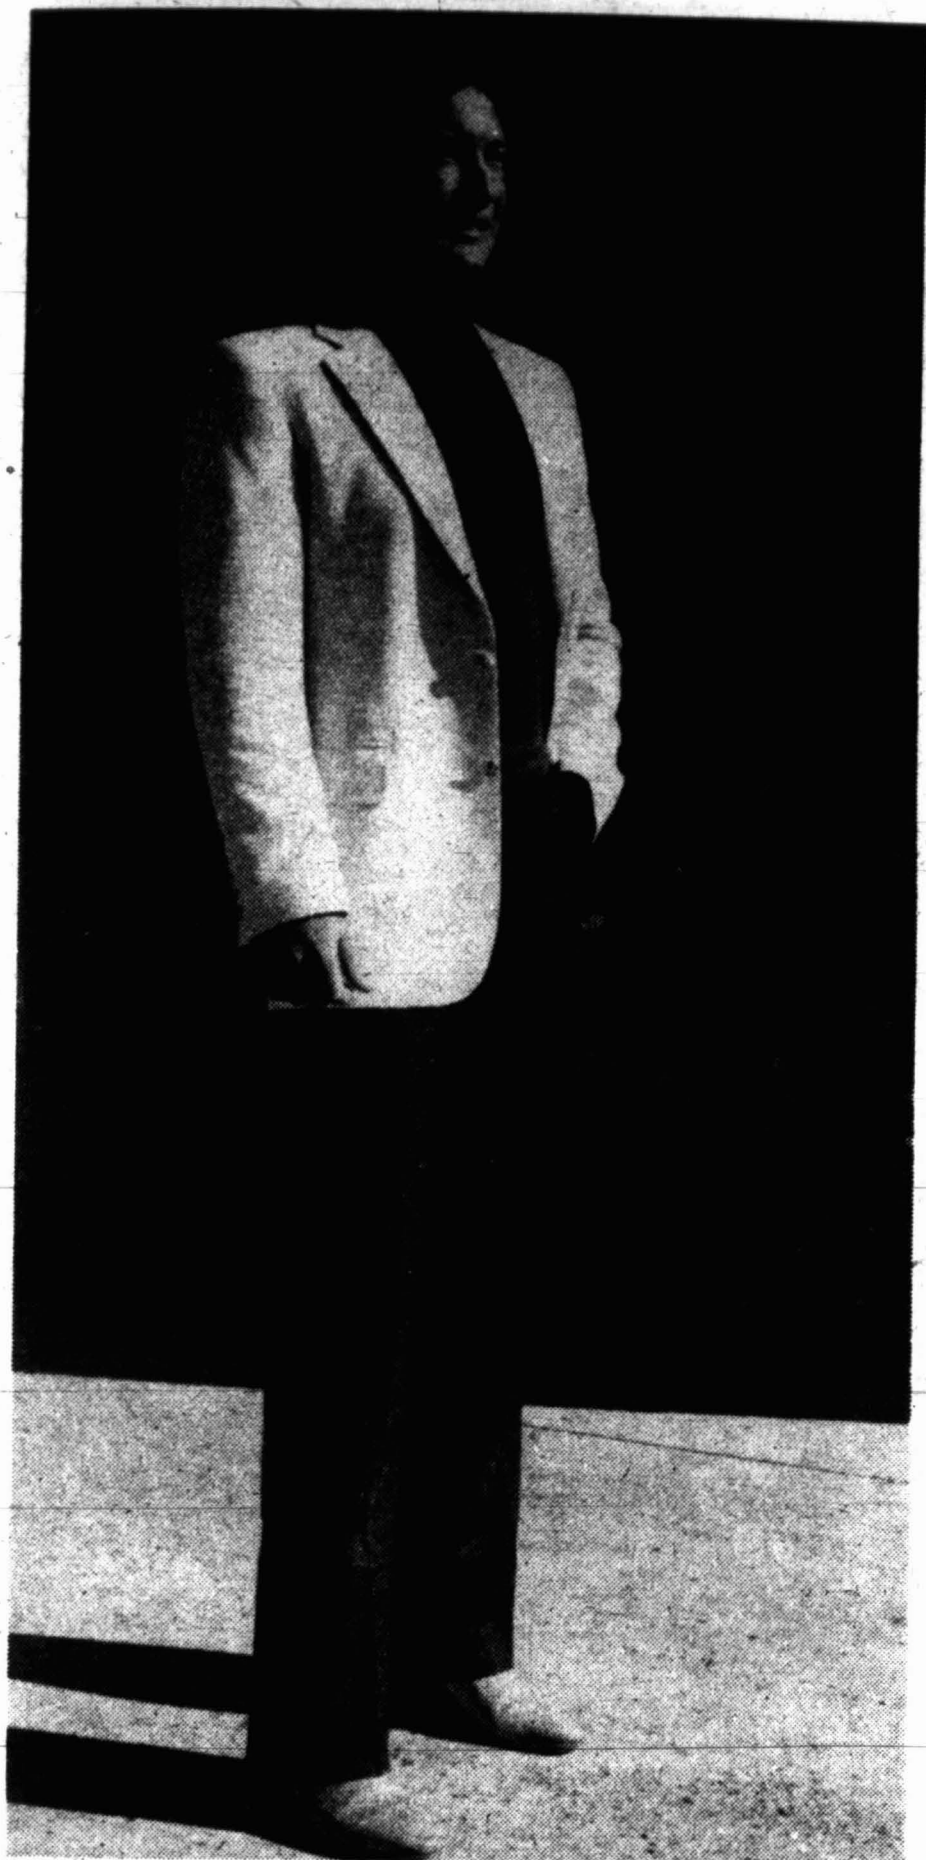

Catering to men and women, the Village Golf Shop supplies complete golf furnishings, including sweaters, slacks, shoes, windbreakers, gloves, hats, tote bags, clubs and putters—by famous makers Zebra, T-Line and Bandido—and even scorecards or pullover sweaters.

Whether on or off the golf course, a Haymaker or Izod sweater with Pebble Beach logo, or an Elaine Benedick golf shirt for men or women makes an ideal Christmas gift. So do the Argenti ladies' cardigan or pullover sweaters.

To complement and complete that new golf outfit, the Village Golf Shop offers Greenjoy golf shoes for men and Greenjoy or McCrackin for ladies.

Once properly outfitted, you can really improve your game by choosing a new putter from nearly 50 brands, or a complete new set of clubs.

Since nearly every item connected with golf can be found at Village Golf Shop, you can select the perfect Christmas gift from accessories that include lightweight nylon carry bags, cabretta leather gloves, Izod raingear, putter covers, or perhaps a canvas pack stool!

CASUAL ELEGANCE will take men through the holidays when fashionable clothing is from the New Englander Shop on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel. A finely tailored sports coat by Calvin Klein is worn with a handsome Byford sweater, Ben-Sol slacks and comfortable all-leather Italia Bootwear.

Ardan...a real Santa's workshop

Ardan's catalogue showroom at 125 Ocean View Blvd., Pacific Grove is a wonderland of gift selections. Even Santa's Workshop can hardly contain as many lovely Christmas gifts! Whether you're hoping to find beautiful jewelry, a durable toy or a functional appliance for the home, Ardan has it all—and much more!

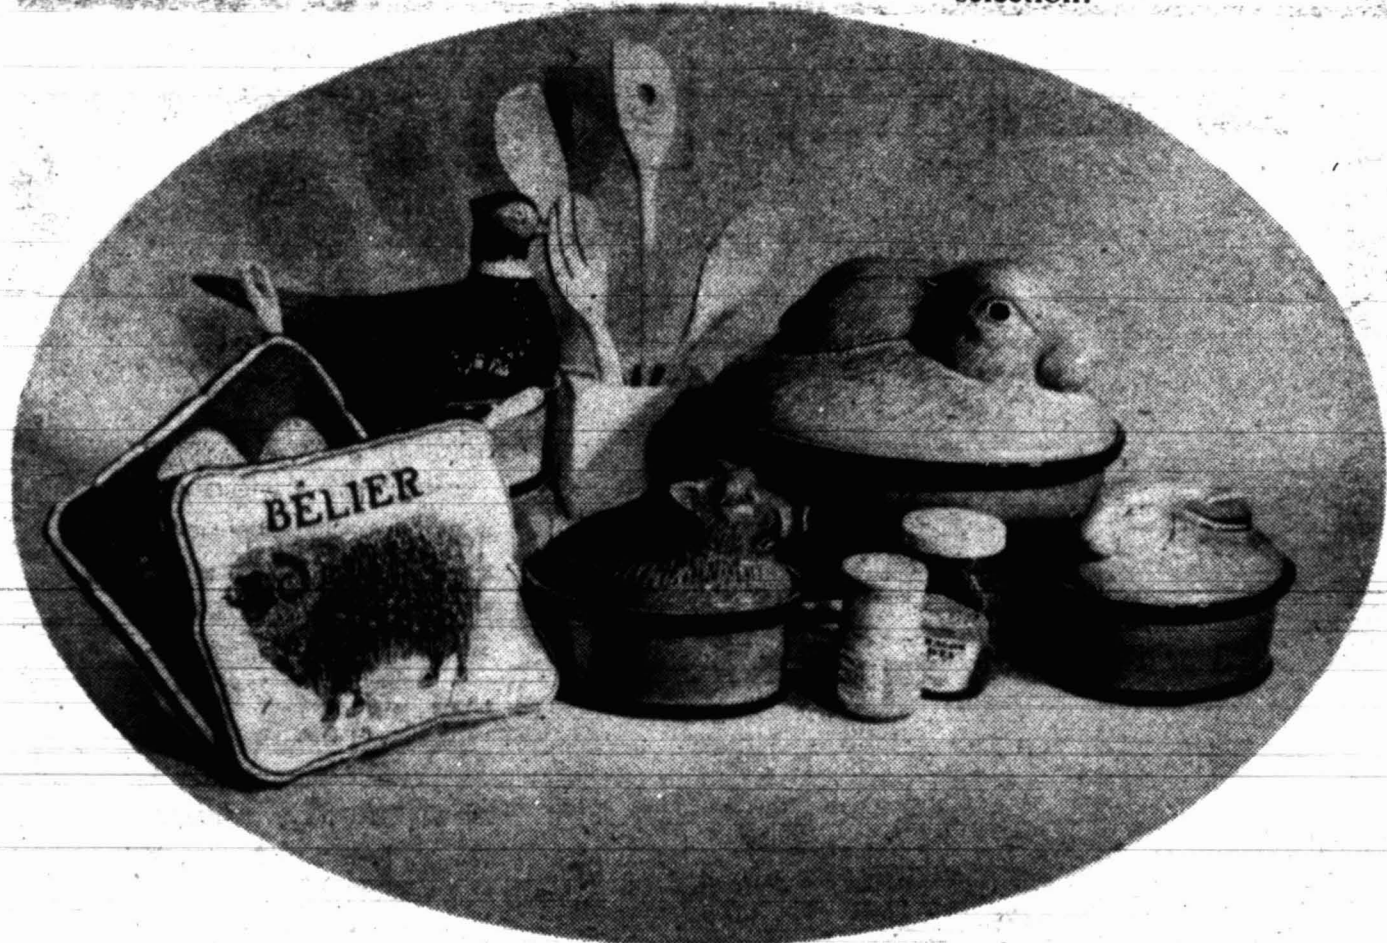

Select your gifts from nationally advertised merchandise—the famous brand names you know and trust. In Ardan's extensive jewelry selection you'll find watches by Benrus, Elgin, Hamilton, Waltham, Westclox and others. Dazzling diamond jewelry is an Ardan specialty, but you'll also find virtually every other gem imaginable displayed there.

Set this year's Christmas table with magnificent silverware and lavish silver service sets by Rosemark, Sheridan, Towle, Rogers by Oneida and International Silver.

If you need more gift ideas, stroll through Ardan's showroom and survey the appliances, audio-visual equipment, auto accessories, hobbies, household and decorative accessories, luggage and traveling items, sporting goods, tools, or personal care products and don't forget the gigantic toy selection!

AS WELCOME AS CHRISTMAS are little girls' dresses from Mrs. Pussycat's Porch in The Barnyard, Carmel. This little angel wears a green cotton velvet dress designed by Elizabeth Ptak, complemented by a white all-cotton shirt. Red rocking horse buttons are irresistible accents.

GIFTS FOR GOURMET cooks, with an accent on the incredible Cuisinart Food Processor, abound at Vive La Difference in the Country Club Gate Center, Pacific Grove. From moist-roasting clay pots to delightful potholders and indispensable wooden spoons, your favorite cook will love to open a package from here Christmas morning!

KINGDOM COME, at the entrance to The Barnyard, Carmel, is a non-denominational Christian theme shop that offers a wide array of appropriate Christmas gifts. Bibles, Christmas cards, books, records and nativity scenes are among the items that will make Christmas special for those you love.

AT SKIN FITS on Mission and Sixth, Carmel, you may select from the finest, hand-crafted leather garments. Here, an extraordinary vest, fashioned from South African Springbok, is teamed with a rich brown skirt of antelope skin.

A SOFT LOOK for the holidays comes from Nina B in Carmel Plaza. College Town has fashioned a flowing dirndl skirt of 100 percent wool in rich beiges and browns. A poodle stitch tuxedo sweater is cinched at the waist with a leather belt. A man's shirting complete with a loosely tied bow finishes an ensemble ideal for day or evening.

Nearly 400 cheeses plus fresh pate and quality wines for holiday gifts or home entertaining are special discoveries at the Cheese Shop in Carmel Plaza.

The friendly help will custom-package favorite selections or shoppers may choose from 10 pre-sorted gift packs which include tantalizing Cream Baviarite, Brie, Jarlsberg, Kentucky cheddar and more.

Quality and value are emphasized in the imported and domestic wines offered at the Cheese Shop. Made from the grapes of Germany, France and Italy or from the rich vines of California, the wines provide an elegant accent to the fresh caviar and foie gras, a specialty at the Cheese Shop, that any hostess will be delighted to serve.

And, Christmas shoppers may want to add the wine buche, a wine-chilling clay crock by Gourmet-Topf, or a clay butter plate, designed to keep the butter fresh but spreadable, to their shopping list.

If gift-givers hurry, the Cheese Shop will mail via United Parcel Service last minute presents to any destination in the United States.

ROLLER SKATERS TO RUNNERS will want actionwear for Christmas from the new Sweat Shop in Carmel Plaza. Comfortable shirts and shorts by Guts are a cool team with the Nike Killshot skates. Warm-up suits by Sergio Tacchini are promised to ward off chilly winter mornings while on the track or tennis court.

SOPHISTICATED PARTY-GOERS will step out in a short evening jacket made of puckered polyurethane from Christine Albers. When the jacket is slipped off, a dazzling sequined tube top is revealed in glimmering shades of silver. From the fashionable collection at Mayfair Boutique in Carmel Plaza.

An image of toys at Wooden Horse

Even the name—The Wooden Horse—evokes images of toys, dolls, and other things that are especially welcome at Christmas time. Inside The Wooden Horse, on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh, is a great variety of toys, games and books, not just for children, either!

Yes, there are wooden rocking horses in three sizes and many different colors. And dolls—from all over the world. There are Russian stocking dolls, Kiss dolls from Germany and Alresford dolls from England.

Dolls and dollhouses go together and at The Wooden Horse you can select from among 20 to 30 different styles of dollhouse.

Furniture miniatures from the inexpensive to collectors' items will decorate every room!

If the lucky person on your list favors animals, he or she will welcome one by Steiff of West Germany. You may have a hard time choosing, because The Wooden Horse has one of the largest collections of these lovable animals on the Peninsula. Close by are hand puppets and the unique Pellham puppets from England.

For the hard to please, The Wooden Horse offers old-fashioned mechanical banks or perhaps a Mamod steam engine from England? Other train sets and accessories by Brio are also available.

Jewel Boutique features jewelry with an international flair

"Jewelry with an international flair," is a phrase that only begins to describe the Jewel Boutique in The Barnyard, Carmel. With the custom design service and collection of cut stones available, you may create jewelry of singular elegance, or select a royal holiday gift from exclusive pieces imported from around the world.

Imagine how thrilled the woman in your life will be when she opens a little package containing genuine freshwater pearls, or a Universal Geneve watch, or a gold chain by Gucci. Opulence becomes a wise investment in the form of 24-karat gold jewelry or a chain imported from Thailand by the Jewel Boutique.

As with every piece in the shop, artistry is evident in the Jewel Boutique's gem carvings and statues sculpted from lapis, malachite and azurite.

Patrons of the Jewel Boutique now have a rare opportunity to purchase diamonds at wholesale plus commission prices; for more details, visit the shop. And once there, look for special pieces of jewelry at temporary price reductions.

Of course, the Jewel Boutique would be pleased to wrap your selection free of charge.

For young readers

If a child is quietly entertaining himself on a rainy day, he is no doubt curled up with one of the imaginative tales by Grimm or Hans Christian Andersen. Classic stories of dragons and ugly ducklings with colorful illustrations may be found on the shelves of Apple Pie Books, the children's bookstore, 498C Foam St., Monterey.

The spirit of Christmas can be captured in the young child's imagination when he reads A visit from St. Nicklaus by Clement Moore or The Little Fir Tree by Margaret Brown. The inspirational tale, Holy Night, by Von Juchen will be read again and again.

Education books on nature, perfect for inquiring minds, exciting mysteries, how-to books, and joyful fantasies will be a Christmas from Apple Pie Books that young readers will remember always.

BOOKS are gifts that bring hours of pleasure. At the Three Rings Book Shop on Old Fisherman's Wharf, Monterey, you're sure to find the right book for anyone on your Christmas list — from best sellers to timeless beautiful art books. Three Rings also has prints, calendars and figurines for special persons on Christmas Day.

Leather is extraordinary

Whatever is rare is valuable. And rare is the only word to describe the extraordinary leather garments, designed and crafted with fastidious workmanship, at the Skin Fits shop in MacFarland Court, Mission Street, Carmel.

The high fashion designs and prices are not aimed toward the masses, but will attract the connoisseur of leather garments. Many of the items are designed from the richest grades of deerskin, one of the most subtle yet durable of leathers, full of natural oils that even help protect it from moisture. Other hides featured at Skin Fits are antelope, springbok, fur and shearling lamb.

All of the beautiful vests, jackets, coats—for both men and women—are designed and made right in the store.

Also featured at Skin Fits are handmade, custom-designed hats and belts for those who favor the out-of-the-ordinary.

Fine artwork... an investment

What better time than the holiday season to purchase fine artwork for loved ones. Paintings are truly one of the few things that are timeless treasures.

At Gallery Artique in the Bonnymead Court located on Lincoln south of Ocean, Carmel, a group show of multi-media works by four California artists is now on view. The quality of artwork on display, according to shop owner Irene Vallis, falls into the category of investment buying. "The devotion of the artists to their paintings is evident in their finished product," she says.

The four painters, Lee Engstrom, oils; Philip Michelson, watercolors; Rod Newhall, egg tempera; and Edward "Rusty" Walker, impressionistic watercolor, all have received many awards for their beautiful works.

Fill holiday needs at Del Monte Center

Set against the Monterey hills where oaks and pines grow tall, and conveniently located off Highway 1 on Munras Avenue, the Del Monte Shopping Center, with its 70 stores, promises to fill the needs of all holiday shoppers.

Gaily decorated in glitter and gold for Christmas, the mall offers major department stores and smaller specialty shops where clothing, housewares, furnishings and those so-hard-to-find items are displayed.

Children will be delighted when they discover that Santa Claus will listen to their Christmas wishes each day from noon-5 p.m. The Jolly Old Elf has a cozy room adjacent to Macy's where children may comfortably visit him.

A hearty appetite is an inevitable part of the shopping day and shoppers will be happy to know that several coffee shops located in the center offer friendly and efficient service.

HOBBYISTS will love the assortment of needlepoint kits and crewel works to choose from at Fads and Yarns in Del Monte Shopping Center, Monterey. Christmas will

Since it feels, looks and wears very much like our original leather Birkenstocks, we call it The Bargain. So will your feet.

K. Chin paints whimsically

Whimsical animals, delightful unicorns and rickety Victorian homes are the favorite subjects of artist K Chin whose original paintings and prints are found at the K Chin Gallery in Bonnymead Court on Lincoln between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel.

A rainbow of colors as warm and rich as Christmastime are seen in his delightful paintings of panda bears, giraffes or finely-drawn pictures of old homes reminiscent of yesteryear.

A television art director in New York for 20 years, the artist opened his gallery in Carmel three years ago to pursue a new career direction.

Now his imaginative notecards and prints are distributed internationally, though his personal touch remains. The artist is often at his studio in the gallery diligently working on new oils or happily greeting guests.

A piano for Christmas

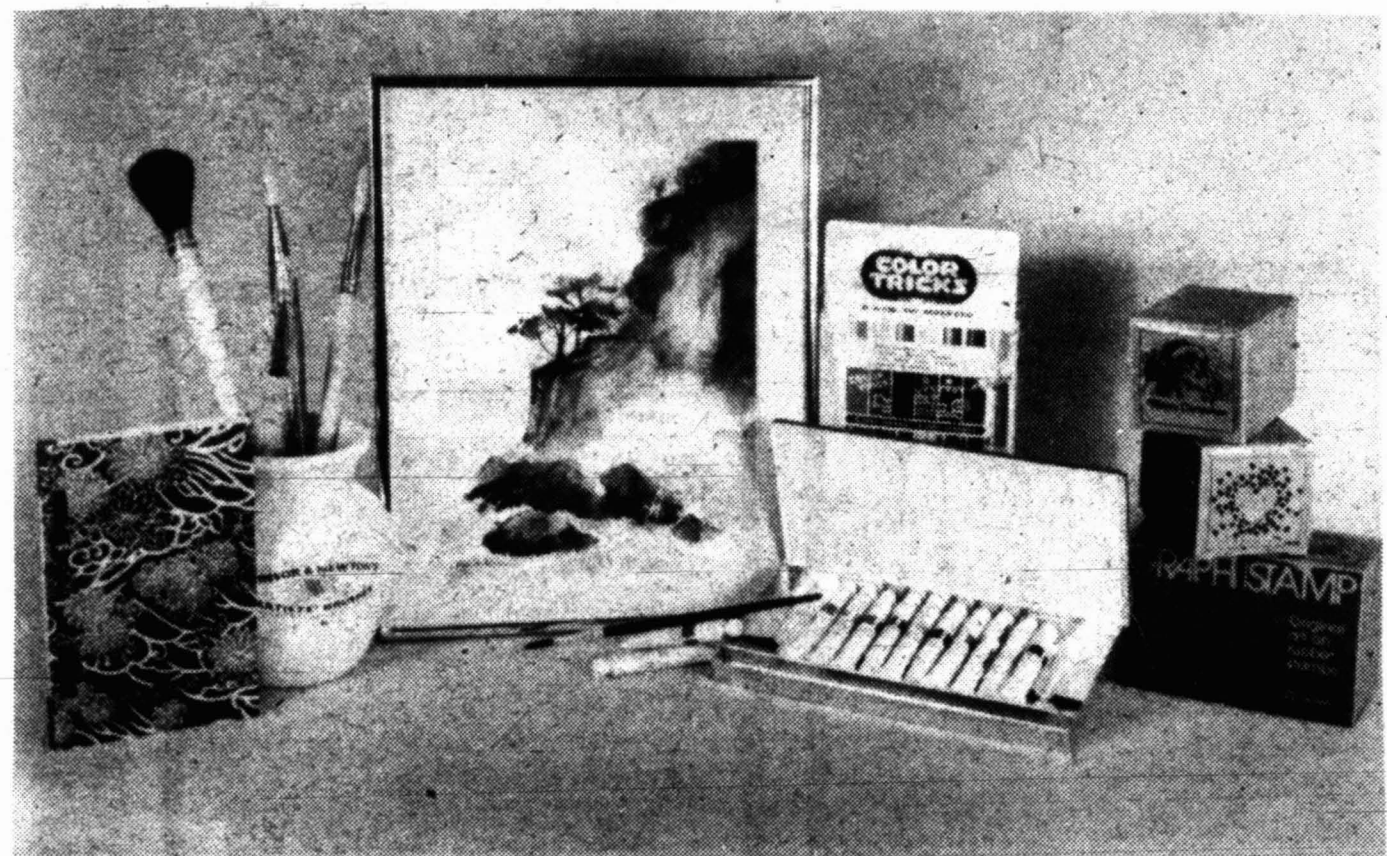

Purchase of a piano or organ is special at any time of year, but when you purchase one for Christmas, Abinante Music Store will also give you another special surprise Christmas gift in addition to the store's usual gift of six free piano or organ lessons.

Longtime customers of Abinante Music, located at 415 Alvarado Street in Monterey, know they can find sheet music especially for Christmas and books of Christmas music, as well as music for any time of year. In addition to the piano and organ department, there is a wide selection of guitars and brass instruments.

For the man or woman who has everything, including a piano, organ, or guitar, Abinante's can still suggest the perfect gift. Choose from among piano lamps, bench covers, metronomes, guitar straps, statues of your favorite composer, or other gift items.

For the woman who wants to have music wherever she goes, a tiny music box pendant should be well received!

THE WELL-STOCKED Artist's Palette in The Barnyard, Carmel has complete lines of art and calligraphy supplies, as well as writing utensils and offers an extensive framing and matting service. Don't forget to browse through the gallery of prints and original watercolors.

EVERYDAY IS CHRISTMAS, indeed, in our shop packed with unique Christmas items to give as gifts or to add to your own special collection. We feature HANDMADE ORNAMENTS and TABLE DECORATIONS, NATIVITIES from $4.00 to $650.00, STUFFED ANIMALS and so many more gift ideas and collectibles you are sure to treasure for a lifetime.

HENRI CORBAT, SWISS jeweler creates exquisite designs inspired by the finest jewels and gemstones. A shimmering 60-carat aquamarine rests upon an 18k yellow gold filigree gallery mounting. Two carats of tiny diamonds surround the gemstone and accent the V-shaped bail. Lovely gifts with a fashion flair Lovely gifts from Peck and Peck in Carmel Plaza have a fashion flair that promises to make Christmas morning extra special.

Uncork Christmas

Wine connoisseurs will love to uncork the special wine giftpacks available at Cost-Less Discount Liquors, 431 Tyler St., Monterey on Christmas Day.

Wente, Gallo and Souverain offer their special wines in groups of three wrapped in holiday cheer and ready for Christmas morning.

Hostesses coordinating holiday parties will be happy to add Cost-Less Liquors to their list of holiday stops—all spirits are sold at everyday discount prices.

Quality bourbon, fine scotch, gin, rum, Canadian whiskey, imported and domestic champagnes, brandies, and an unlimited selection of California and imported wines are available for entertaining needs. And Cost-Less Liquors doesn't forget the mixers for favorite drinks, either.

GIFTS GALORE ARE found at Brown's Barn in Carmel Plaza where whimsical pillows and pottery, and dozens of stocking stuffers are displayed alongside beautiful one-of-a-kind fashions that complete your Christmas shopping needs.

Eye-catching party looks abound in slinky jumpsuits created in bold colors and shimmering holiday dresses adorned with thin rhinestone straps. To complete a holiday ensemble, jackets with the leopard look or shaggy string jackets are sure to keep the wearer feeling warm and beautiful.

For a more casual evening look, Liz Claiborne has designed bright velours in stunning colors of turquoise, magenta, fuchsia and hot pink with jeans to match.

Guaranteed to be worn for years are classic suits by Evan-Picone, John Meyer and Panther. A raw silk sweater-blazer, casual yet stunning, has just arrived for Christmas by Regina Porter.

Don't forget accessories—sparkling belts, scarves with gold lurex, combs and feather pins—all exciting accents to glittering holiday fashions and great gift ideas.

The one-button blazer comes off to reveal a pullover cableknit sweater. A classic look is created with a wool navy blazer worn over a white wool skirt complete with a leg-revealing front slit. A chenille vest and silk-like blouse complete the handsome ensemble. All are found at the Pebble Beach Golf Shop adjacent to The Lodge, Pebble Beach.

A brand new shop for chess and backgammon enthusiasts

As the name suggests, the Chess Corner located in the Mini Mall at Carmel Plaza, is a specialty shop for chess and backgammon enthusiasts.

Exquisite chess boards imported from Europe or Asia are one-of-a-kind gifts—each inlaid board has been individually handcrafted. The armies of pawns and the legions of kings, queens, bishops and knights have been carved from olive wood, rosewood, zebra wood or sculpted from onyx. There is even a hand-molded metal set. The antique chess tables set upon ornate pedestals are guaranteed to add an elegant accent to any decor.

Backgammon is one of the most popular games played today and the Chess Corner displays carefully crafted boards.

Fashion and quality entwine at Nina B

The entwining of fashion and quality guarantees that Christmas morning will be a bit more thrilling for young ladies who receive apparel from Nina B, the junior fashion shop in the Carmel Plaza.

Nina B has a fine selection of classic blazers in velvets and wools, and Oriental-look quilted jackets.

Or if a sweater is on your gift list, you'll find asymmetrical sweaters, sweater blazers, lacy knits and lurex threaded styles—to mention just a few. Of course, you'll also find a wide selection of pleated skirts, coordinates, sportswear and jeans in both straight and wide legs. And accessories like hats, feather pins and handbags always make exceptionally nice Christmas gifts.

Complimentary gift wrapping is just another feature of the excellent service you'll receive at Nina B.

When the game is over, all-leather briefcase-style backgammon sets can be conveniently locked to safeguard the pieces.

Novices should note that the Chess Corner also has informative books and sets for beginning players.

Great Christmas gift ideas

Great gifts for Christmas are found at the Second Look, 510 Broadway, Seaside where seconds and discontinued items from the famous Couroc collection of resin, wood, brass and seashell inlaid trays are displayed.

Adorned with pheasants, Egyptian head studies, Asian symbols, birds, ducks and other unique designs, the spot and stain-resistant trays come in shapes ranging from large and round to petite hors d'oeuvres sizes.

Christmas designs aren't forgotten in trays inlaid with Santa mouse and snowflakes. A jolly Santa face adorns an eight-inch bowl.

Remember that trays at the Second Look cannot be found at regular retail outlets because they've been discontinued—but are first quality.

LUCKY LITTLE GIRLS will be adorably dressed come Christmas morn in a Dorissa of Miami party dress made of 100 percent polyester for easy care. The Victorian-style frock with a smocked front and gathered-ruffle edge comes in palest blues. Make Christmas morning special Gifts from The Fashion in Del Monte Center, Monterey, have a wonderful fashion flair that will make Christmas morning special.

Super-textured sweaters, ranging from soft and silky to shiny and mercurized cotton weaves, come in V-necks, cardigans and sweater-set combinations.

THE SECOND LOOK at 510 Broadway, Seaside, deserves a third look from Christmas shoppers who admire the special resin, wood, brass and shell inlaid trays made by Couroc. The great selection of seconds and discontinued items can't be found at regular retail outlets but they are of the first quality.

The ultimate in variety stores

This Christmas will have a lot more variety if you select your gifts at Sprouse-Reitz, the ultimate in variety stores. With the exception of a small, chilly workshop at the North Pole, you won't find more gift ideas anywhere else than this store in Carmel Rancho Center.

Sprouse-Reitz will make the holidays more fun with a complete line of toys and games for both adults and children. And since holiday fun is akin to sweets and delicious treats, choose from the huge candy selection at Sprouse-Reitz. There are also lots of goodies for stocking stuffing.

If you're handy with a needle and thread and want to make this year's gifts more personal and meaningful, Sprouse-Reitz carries a wide selection of fabrics and sewing notions.

Every department in Sprouse-Reitz offers excellent gift ideas, so bring your sleigh, reindeer and big red sack and browse through the indoor plants, the small appliances, cosmetics, kitchenware, tools, household goods and many other departments.

AN ALSATIAN, the forerunner of the German Shepherd, is captured in a 19th century sculpture by Varnier displayed at Carmel Custom Interiors, located at San Carlos and Eighth, Carmel. Objets d'Art, exquisite furnishings, as well as carpeting and wallpaper appeal to the tastes of home decorators this Christmas.

A shop with the traveler in mind

If that hard-to-please person on your Christmas gift list is a confirmed traveler, what better place to buy his or her gift than the Village Traveler? This specialty store on the lower level of Carmel Plaza offers a comprehensive collection of travel goods, gift items, leather accessories, luggage, handbags and shoes for men and women.

Gift items include wallets, travel tool kits and travel flasks from Noymer, passport cases, leather notebooks and travel diaries.

Luggage at the Village Traveler ranges from sea bags (canvas travel and tote bags) through the Hartmann line featuring nylon with vinyl or leather trim, to the beautiful all-leather pieces by Tumi and Bugatti. The same wide range of styles and prices will be found in briefcases for men and women: from vinyl to cases in imported Italian leather.

Shoes here have the traveler in mind as well. A highlight is the Rockport line of casual, crepe-soled shoes that are perfect for the person who travels mostly on his (or her) feet or walks a good deal right here on our own Peninsula and not just while Christmas shopping.

Custom framing, fine craftsmanship in this Valley shop

Attention to details and craftsmanship is all too often forgotten in an age of automation. At Gallery Framing and Graphics in the Valley Hills Shopping Center, Carmel Valley, custom framing is done with an eye for the taste of each special client.

With an understanding that the frame of a photograph or painting must enhance its surroundings, the proprietors of Gallery Framing and Graphics promise to visit the home or business where it will hang.

Prints by local marine artist Stephen Skerce and silk screens by William Timmins are exclusively displayed at Gallery Framing and Graphics.

Oriental silk embroideries of wildlife and landscapes, wood carvings of California quail and sandpipers, and antique duck decoys are also exhibited at the shop.

Luxury, fashion, durability in shoes

Luxury, fashion and durability are blended in Bally of Switzerland's shoes for men. But the same meticulous craftsmanship and superb materials are found in every style and brand that is hand-selected by Larry Lemus. When you enter Larry Lemus Shoes in Carmel Plaza, you will inhale the rich aroma of the world's finest, most supple and durable calf, kid and lizard skins used in these fine shoes.

Larry Lemus is featuring Nettleton genuine lizard shoes with matching belts and wallets ... perfect accessories for new Christmas wardrobes.

suede shaving kit is an ideal gift selection.

Whatever you select, you'll be pleased with the personalized service and attention you'll receive at Larry Lemus Shoes. Besides offering complimentary gift wrapping, Lemus also maintains a unique card file system which contains the shoe sizes of many regular customers, so that selecting gift shoes in the proper size need never be a problem.

Carmel Rancho Liquors is party headquarters

Christmas shopping at Carmel Rancho Liquors in the Carmel Rancho Center means a selection of the finest liquors, wines, gift packages of spirits and many liquors.

Mirassou Vineyard fans will be happy to find the bucket gift pack complete with three bottles of wine, or the vineyard's Monterey Riesling and cork puller set.

Bubbling Paul Masson champagne wrapped with two glasses for toasting, or picnic-pleasing baskets filled with fine Paul Masson wines are sure Christmas winners.

Then add to the list gift packs from J. Lohr, Sebastiani and Jack Daniels.

Party needs are easily filled with the complete selection of mixers and snacks. In the spirit of Christmas, Carmel Rancho Liquors will even provide a loan of glasses, punch bowls and ice for holiday celebrations at no charge.

Special gifts at Mayfair

Among the special gifts found at the Mayfair Boutique in Carmel Plaza is the store's "signature dress," in a chiffon fabric which gives the effect of a print although its rose design is all one color. Perfect for the holiday season in white, it is also very popular for special occasions in black. The dress also comes in beautiful colors of aubergine, teal green and shocking pink.

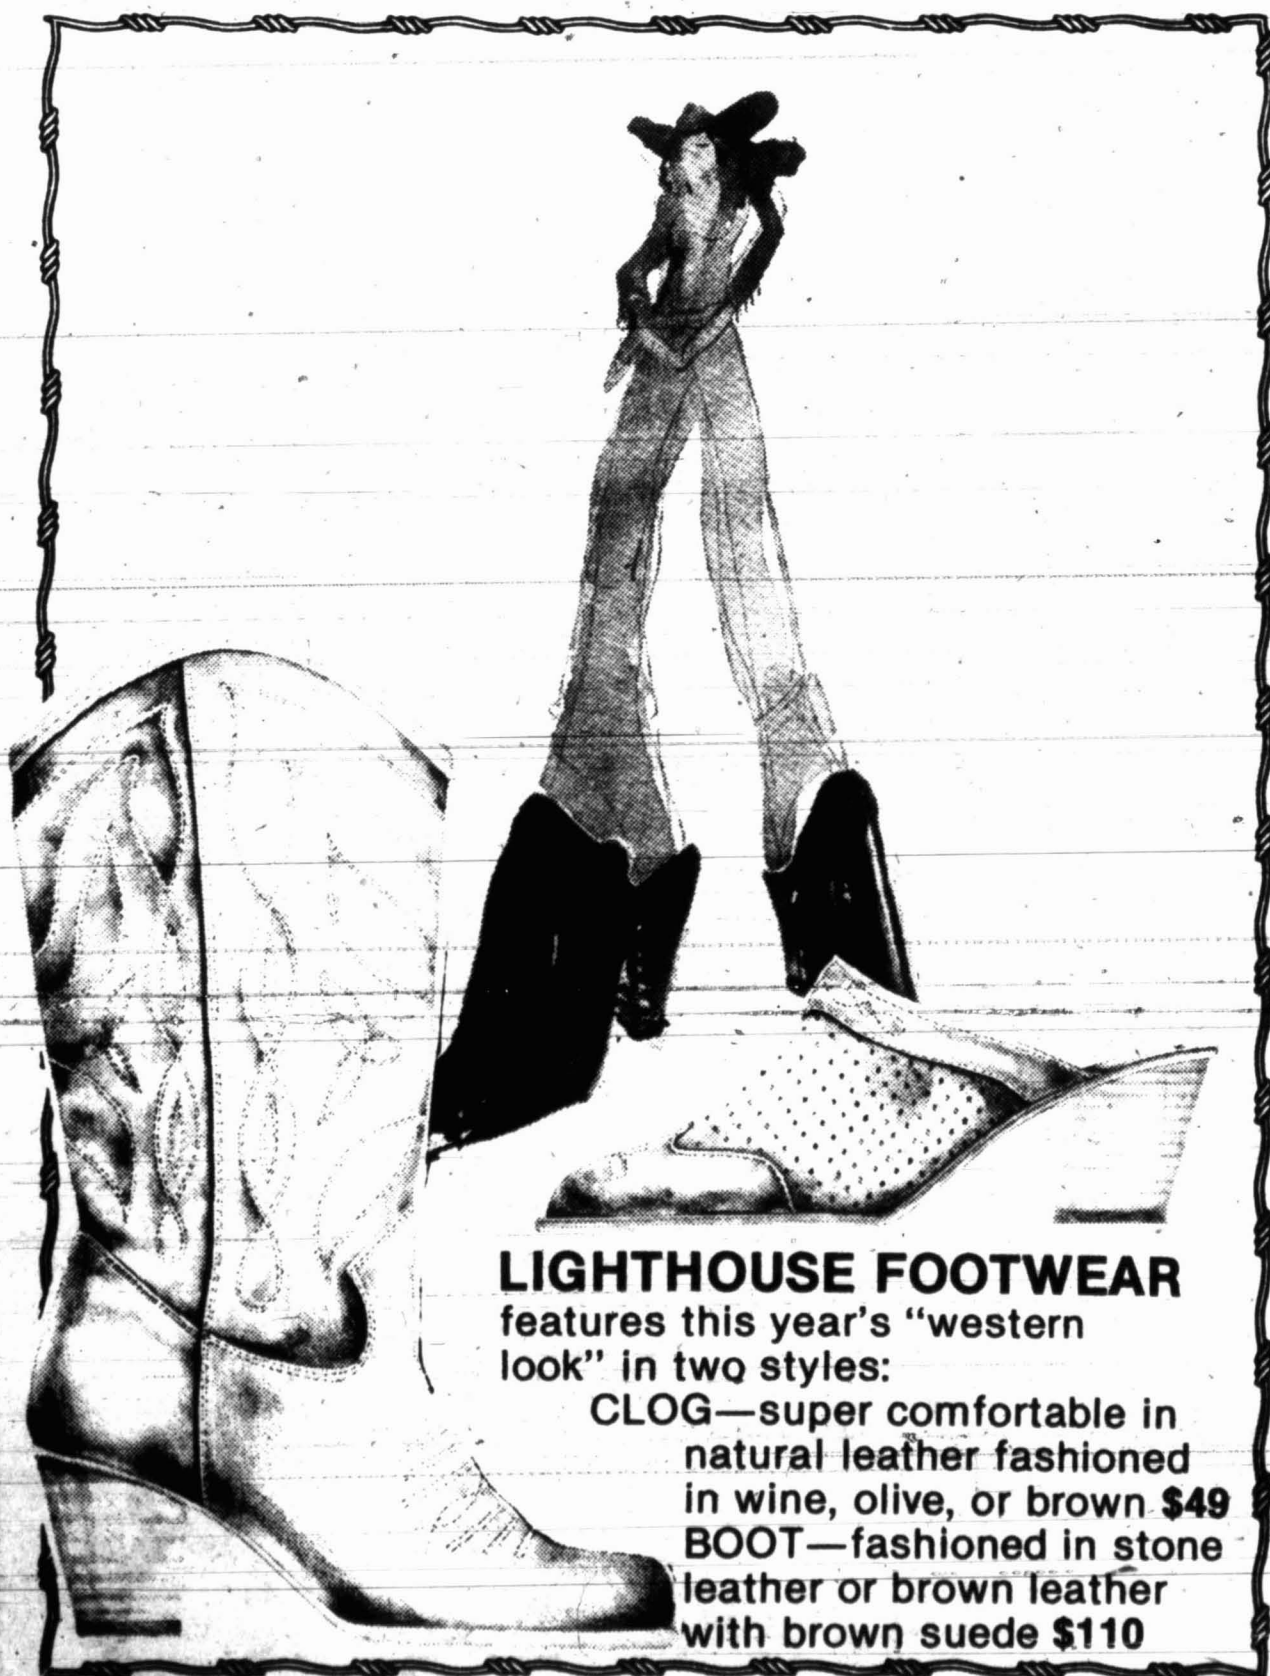

Also a specialty at Mayfair are pure silk blouses of fine quality crepe de chine at an unexpectedly reasonable price.

If it seems as though someone on your list has everything, consider this: a beautiful and unusual evening box from the Orient for her makeup and "mad money." Or belts and scarves in this season's brilliant colors are welcome gifts from Mayfair.

If your shopping list is long, you will appreciate the special purchase prices on many other items gathered at Mayfair just for the holiday season.

NIGHT FLIGHT, an unglazed clay sculpture by Louise Buss, is included in a group show of multi-media works displayed for Christmas at the Highlands Gallery, located on Fern Canyon Road, Carmel Highlands. Fine hand-wrought jewelry Contemporary jewelry crafted by the world's finest designers is the pride of Concepts, Mission near Sixth, Carmel. All pieces are hand-wrought and represent the most celebrated American and European metalsmiths. Dedicated to high fashion, Concepts offers a gorgeous collection of rings, earrings, pendants, bracelets and many more lovely items.

Holiday shoppers are invited to view a special showing of titanium jewelry by Edward DeLarge of London. Titanium, an extraordinarily hard aerospace metal, displays every color in the spectrum through a unique electrical process. This striking, multihued jewelry, as well as everything else in the shop, will be happily gift wrapped by the attentive shopkeepers.

Concepts also offers the radiant crystal sculptures of Carmel's own Ann Michell, as well as the silk, linen and wool wall weavings of Mary Buskirk, who has received numerous design awards.

A Snoopy Christmas

It's going to be a Snoopy Christmas this year at the Strawberry Patch on Ocean Avenue between Mission and San Carlos, Carmel, where fun gifts depict the endearing beagle in all his glory.

Snoopy mirrors, soap dishes, watches, picture frames, wallets, diaries and even luggage will please his fans on Christmas day.

Warm sleepwear for girls to juniors means a cuddly flannel nightshirt in red and white stripes with a night cap to keep heads warm. And don't overlook the long robes, gowns and pajamas for great Christmas gifts.

Dresses for holiday parties by Gunne Sax and Young Edwardian are sure to make a hit as will the lacy Victorian style blouses in cream and white.

Little girls who wear sizes 4-6x or 7-14 will love receiving velour tops or warm rabbit fur-jackets for Christmas.

Teens and juniors will delight in the styles of fashion pants and jeans, party dresses, velour tops and warm sweaters all presented by the Strawberry Patch of Carmel.

Gifts for the court

Gifts for the tennis player are welcome at any time of the year and especially at Christmas. Carmel Tennis, a specialty store in the Hatton Barn, 3714 The Barnyard, has items especially for Christmas as well as an excellent selection of regular merchandise.

For the Christmas stocking: a "cute" tennis calendar that will surprise you, or notes and tags combining tennis and Christmas themes.

For that very special person on your Christmas list, Carmel Tennis suggests velour warm-ups for men or women; this is their biggest Christmas gift item. An excellent selection of new French Adidas warm-ups have just arrived. Rackets, shoes, apparel and accessories for children as well as for adults can all be found here.

For an unusual gift, Carmel Tennis offers immediate racquet re-stringing. The store is open seven days a week from 10 a.m.-6 p.m.

A PRETTY PAIR: the Strawberry Patch on Ocean between Mission and San Carlos, Carmel shows dazzling junior evening wear from Gunne Sax. A short, tailored jacket warms shoulders when it is worn over a thin-strapped long dress smocked with white satin. An ivory voile dress accented with satin and ruffles creates a look reminiscent of Victorian England.

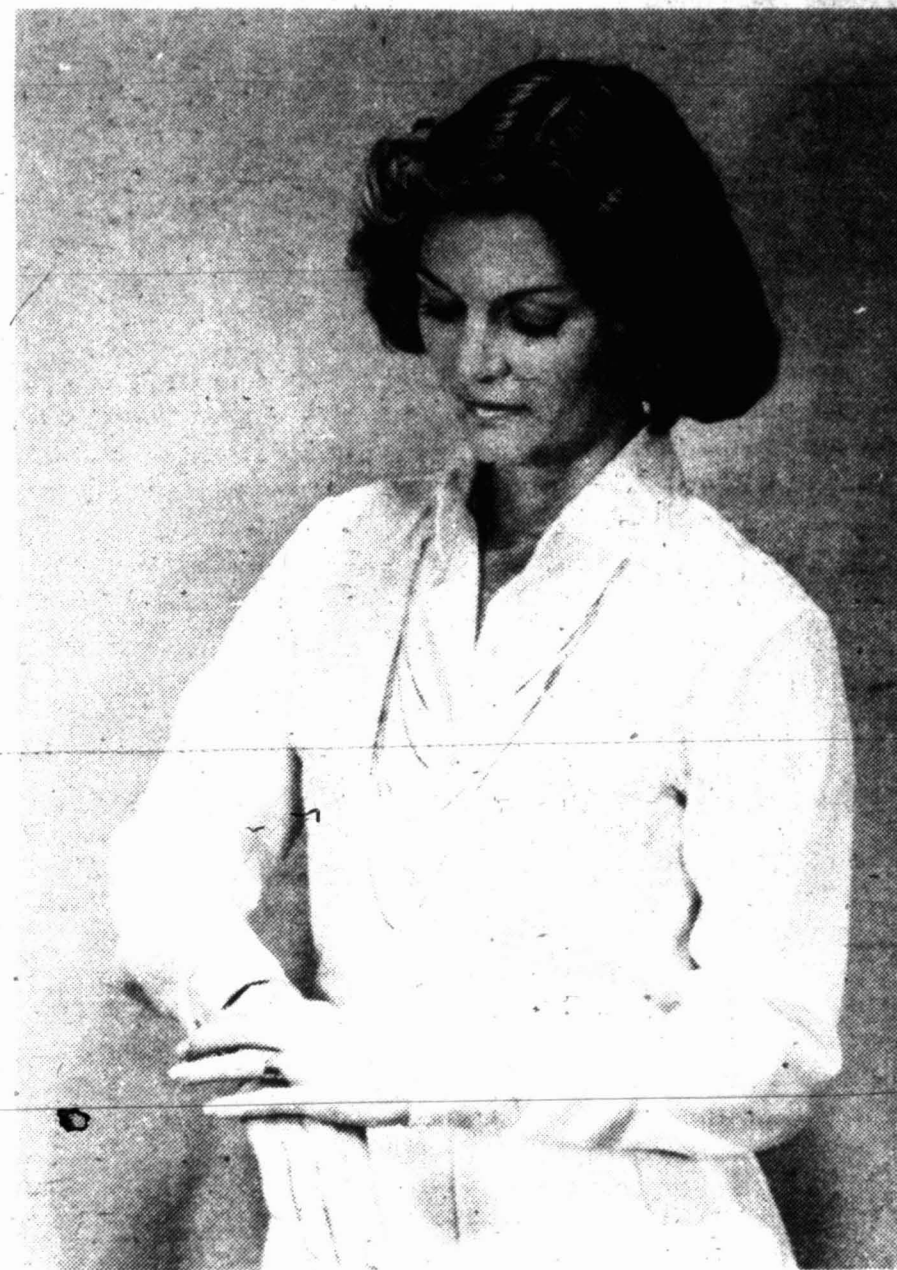

A holiday exhibit

When you jot down your holiday gift list, remember that there are few gifts as perpetually pleasing as a painting.

The Periwinkle Gallery in the Rogue Building on Wharf No. 2, Monterey, offers high quality watercolors, sculpture and an impressive collection of oils.

Because the Periwinkle is celebrating its first anniversary, a special holiday exhibition of paintings, framed and unframed, by local artists, can be purchased at substantial holiday reductions. And, of course, terms are available.

While you admire the paintings, be sure to examine the special selection of turquoise and sterling silver by Adele Gifford, and the graphics by noted artists.

A MIDAS TOUCH: Monet jewelry, glittering and golden, is displayed in Carmel exclusively at M. Raggett, on Ocean between Mission and San Carlos. Monet's latest collection of chains, bracelets, earrings and brooches will dazzle special gals Christmas morning.

Elegant wine accessories offered by Bargetto

The Bargetto Wine Tasting Room, at Cannery Row and Prescott, Monterey, has wine racks of every description made of carefully crafted wood, wrought iron, jute and stained glass.

And certainly, Bargetto Winery's 1978 Zinfandel, winner of the gold medal at the Los Angeles County Fair, or one of the mellow white burgundies created from Monterey County's renowned grapes should be a gift choice to accompany the wine rack. Taste and see!

Gourmet cooks will be delighted to know that Chef Louigi, a wine vinegar aged in wood for two years, is offered exclusively by Bargetto. Assortments of delicious aged cheeses are also conveniently wrapped in gift packages.

Don't forget that corkpullers, wine coolers, and even kitchen towels adorned with the Twelve Days of Christmas and Christmas holly are all great gift-giving ideas.

FLOWERS MAKE beautiful gifts for Christmas when the arrangements are from Temples of Carmel Florist in the Carmel Rancho Center. Beautiful ensembles of wine, cheese, fruit and flowers are displayed alongside fresh wreaths and garlands.

THE FASHION in the Del Monte Shopping Center, Monterey has a look to please every woman now through the holidays. An eye-catching team is the black poodle knit jacket by Carol Cohen and an ivory sweater by Gotham accented with a suede belt and black silk scarf. Add a clutch bag made of genuine snake skin and an angora rabbit wool beret by Betmar and the look is dazzling.

FOR A TRIP across the continent or an overnight excursion, Hartmann designs light, supple, yet durable luggage for busy travelers. In addition to the hanger, carry-on and overnight bags found at the Village Traveler in Carmel Plaza, Hartmann designs pocketbooks, key chains, wallets and cigarette cases made of the finest leather.

GOLD will light up Christmas morning if the figurine or chain is from the Jewel Boutique in The Barnyard, Carmel. A heroic horse pendant is handcast in 14k gold and accented

Learn to bake Buches de Noel

"French-born Janine McGregor is a prime mover in what she calls 'a great revolution in American cuisine,'" reports Bon Appetit magazine.

The celebrated cooking instructor and proprietress of Vive La Difference gift store in the Country Club Gate Center, Pacific Grove, will conduct special holiday classes through December where sophisticated chefs may learn the secrets of Buches de Noel (yule log) or croquebouches (cream puffs formed in the shape of a Christmas tree).

In addition, Vive La Difference is a complete kitchen shop which specializes in the fantastic Cuisinart food processors. All models are stocked and full instructions are provided.

French chefs will be the first to note that exquisite cuisine isn't complete unless served in the finest china and stemware. From France and Italy to Vive La Difference come creations by Longchamp, Quimper, Gien, Limoges, Ginori plus silver from England and Italy, Val St. Lambert crystal of Belgium and gleaming copper from around the world.

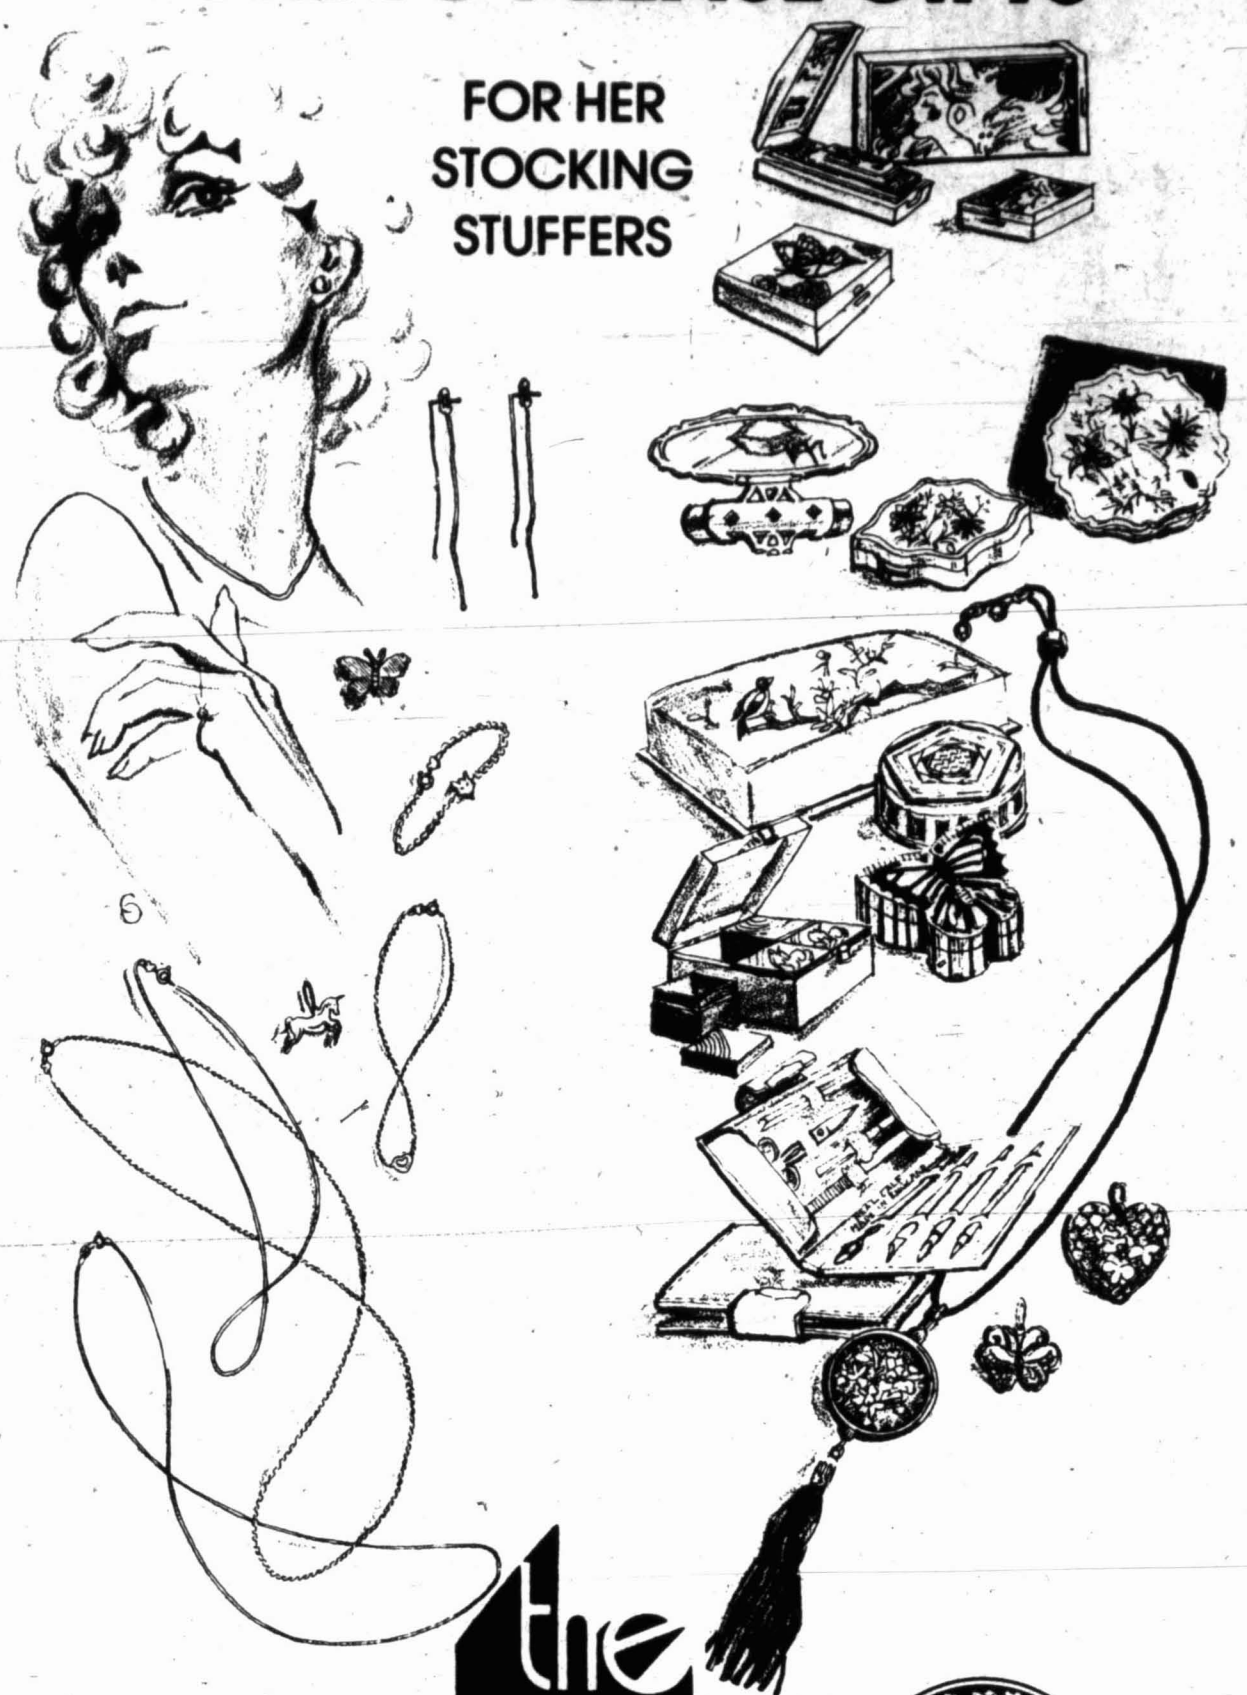

PERFECTLY MATCHED are these smashing ensembles from Carmel Tennis in The Barnyard, Carmel. For women, Geoffrey Beene has created 100 percent cotton velour warm-up suits in luscious tans, plums and navy. Newly arrived from French Adidas is a rich black warm-up suit combined with shades of blue and red. A playing edge is promised with a Lady Advantage racquet by Wilson or a Fansteel Graphite racquet.
